Justice Dept. Reenters Parker Lynching Case

County Grand Jury Adjourns, Takes No Action

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal investigation into the lynching of Mack Charles Parker at Poplarsville, Miss., last April 24 has been resumed.

Acting Atty. Gen. Lawrence E. Walsh made the announcement Thursday night.

He disclosed that U.S. Atty. Robert E. Hauberg at Jackson, Miss., has been instructed to move toward a presentation of the case to a federal grand jury in that state.

Walsh's formal statement came after the Pearl County grand jury at Poplarville—the first to be convened since the lynching — adjourned without considering the Parker case.

Parker, 23-year-old Lumberton, Miss., Negro, was dragged out of the county jail at Poplarville by a masked mob and was thrown into the Pearl River after being beaten and shot.

Federal Kidnap Law Cited

Justice Department officials declined to say whether the new federal investigation might involve a further effort to establish a violation of the federal kidnap law which provides the death penalty.

After the FBI made a month-long investigation on the ground last May, the Justice Department decided that no violation of the kidnap law could be established in view of lack of evidence that Parker was ever taken across a state line.

At Columbia, Miss., Judge Sebe Dale, who would have presided over Parker's trial and in whose court the grand jury made its report, told The Associated Press he didn't think the federal government had a chance to get an indictment.

Dale said he has talked to the district attorney about the FBI report and he feels the case "could be presented to any fair grand jury in the South and the results would be the same."

Jurist Not Surprised

The 62-year-old jurist said he's not surprised about news of the intended federal presentment of the case.

"A great deal of enmity has been directed at the people of the South," he said. "They (the federal authorities) seem hell bent to punish us about everything that comes up. They want to carry it to the last degree.

"But I'm not so sure that the people kind of welcome it (The federal resumption of the investigation," Dale said.

After its investigation, the Justice Department said it had concluded that no successful federal prosecution could be maintained.

Thursday night's statement was in effect an announcement that the department will now let a grand jury decide whether it thinks successful prosecutions can be started against persons named as suspects in the FBI investigation report. That report was turned over to Mississippi officials but not considered by the Pearl County grand jury.

Morse Would Give President Stronger Weapon In Strikes

High Court Still Ponders Steel Case

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Wayne Morse (D-Ore) announced Thursday he plans to ask Congress to vote the President strong new powers to halt strikes threatening national emergencies.

"We can no longer afford the luxury of prolonged disputes such as that now confronting the steel industry," Morse said.

Morse made his announcement as the nation awaited the Supreme Court's decision on a Steelworkers Union appeal from a back-to-work order issued by a lower court.

For a third straight day, the court had the case under study but gave no hint as to when it will act. Meanwhile, the order remains suspended. It would send 500,000 strikers back to the mills at least for 80 days.

With the strike 114 days old, negotiations were at a standstill, and none were planned for the immediate future.

Morse proposed a bill that would provide two alternative procedures for ending emergency - causing strikes and lockouts.

Under one method, the President could name an emergency board that would hold hearings, make findings and issue an order deciding the dispute.

The other procedure would allow the President to seize and operate the closed plants, subject to a congressional veto of his order within 10 days.

The Taft-Hartley law — under which the contested back-to-work order was issued in the steel dispute—does not go as far as Morse proposes. It permits the President to set up a fact-finding board, then to seek a court order requiring the strikers to return to their jobs for 80 days while ways are sought to settle the controversy.

But after the 80-day enforced truce expires, the strikers are free to walk out again and the government is powerless to stop them.

Midwest Storm Closes Schools

By The Associated Press

Ice-coated roads and wind-whipped snow jammed traffic and closed schools in the Midwestern storm zone Thursday.

The storm whirled east from the Rockies on blustery, cold winds and dumped up to eight inches of snow in Nebraska, Iowa, Wisconsin, upper Michigan and Minnesota.

Six deaths were reported. Traffic accidents blamed on the rough weather killed two persons in Wisconsin and one each in Colorado and Iowa. Montana recorded one exposure death. An Iowa trucker was stricken fatally while shoveling snow near his truck.

Skies cleared in the northern Rockies after piling up snow to a depth of 14 inches in northwestern Montana.

The mass of cold air fanned out toward the East and rolled as far south as Texas.

Actor Claude Rains Weds Concert Pianist

WEST CHESTER, Pa. (UPI) — British-born actor Claude Rains 69, and concert pianist Agi Janbor, 50, were married at Rains' home, Hawthorne House, here Wednesday, it was learned.

The ceremony was attended only by Rains' daughter, Jennifer, 21; Adolph Vogel, Merion, Pa., and West Chester attorney Edward Lawrer.

Truck Driver, Two Marine Fliers Die At McChord AFB

TACOMA, Wash. (AP)—A Navy TV3 jet trainer crashed into a parking lot at McChord Air Force Base near here Thursday, killing two Marine colonels and a truck driver.

The dead airmen were identified by Continental Air Defense Command officials as Marine Lt. Cols. Charles E. Kollman, 39, and John Skorich, 41, both of Colorado Springs.

Both Officers Married

Kollman, married and the father of two children, was a native of New Matamoras, Ohio. Skorich also was married and the father of one child. His home was at Taconite, Minn.

Skorich left Peterson Field at Colorado Springs this morning on a flight to McChord, where he was to pick up Kollman and return.

The dead civilian was identified as John Howard Lundeen, 28, Seattle, a truckdriver for Northwest Construction Co., Seattle.

15 Cars Damaged, Destroyed

The officers were in the trainer, which plunged to earth moments after becoming airborne on a takeoff toward its home base at Colorado Springs, Colo.

The truck driver, a civilian employe at McChord, was driving through the parking lot when the two-place plane crashed and burned.

Fifteen cars were damaged or destroyed in the crash and fire. None was occupied.

Negro Singer Plans To Wed White Dancer

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Negro entertainer Sammy Davis, Jr. said Thursday he plans to wed a young white dancer despite objections of her parents.

The girl is Joan Stuart, 21, of Toronto. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Stuart, have not met Davis yet.

"I have never met Joan's parents," he said while rehearsing for a TV show, "nor have they given me the opportunity to speak to them on the telephone.

"Joan is over 21 and knows her own mind. I love her very much and we want to get married."

The mother told the Toronto Telegram:

"Naturally we don't approve. She's only known him about 10 days."

The couple said they met while Davis was in Montreal for a night club engagement and Miss Stuart was dancing in a local revue.

Davis, 33, said the wedding will take place around the first of the year in Canada. He added the couple will make their home here.

Printer Strike Closes Boston Newspapers

BOSTON, MASS. (AP) — Printers struck six Boston daily newspapers Thursday night in a contract dispute, forcing the plants to close down. It is the second such shutdown in 27 months.

The strike—effective immediately—was ordered by the International Typographical Union when the printers rejected the publishers' proposal to arbitrate their offer of the same basic hourly wage increase accepted by 10 other newspaper unions.

John D. Craig, president of the Boston local of the ITU, said picket lines will be established "very shortly."

The plants employ 1,150 printers.

The papers affected are the morning and the evening Globe, the Herald, the Traveler, the Record and the American. They have an aggregate daily circulation of more than 1¼ million. The Christian Science Monitor, also published in Boston was not affected.

The unresolved issue in whether the printers will get more than the 9 cents an hour pay raise, plus 15 cents per shift payable to welfare and retirement funds retroactive to Jan. 1, 1959, and another 7 2-3 cents per hour and 5 cents more to the welfare and retirement funds effective next Jan. 1.

Also at issue is the question of whether the printers will get three days off with pay on the death of a member of their immediate families.

The present printers' wage scale is $119.40, plus $4.50 in pension and welfare benefits.

The previous strike, the first in Boston newspaper history lasted three weeks in August of 1957 when the mailers walked out. The newspapers shut down when other unions refused to cross picket lines.

U.S. Troops Leave Panama Border Zone

PANAMA (AP) — American troops and barbed wire barricades were removed from border intersections in the U.S.-run Panama Canal Zone Thursday. A short time later about 200 Panamanian demonstrators crossed into the zone and planted a big Panama flag in an open area.

A Panama army detachment was rushed to the scene, cleared out the crowd and removed the flag.

American troops took over control of the border dividing the Canal Zone from Panamanian territory after the earlier disorders. The border control duty was turned back to the regular zone police Thursday afternoon.

Test Pilot's Daring Saves Rocket Ship After Mid-Air Blast

X-15, Despite Some Damage, Lands Safely

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (UPI) — The rocket-powered X-15 spouted flames after an explosion on its third powered flight Thursday but test pilot Scott Crossfield made a hazardous emergency landing rather than abandoning the craft in the air.

Crossfield, completely unconcerned after landing the five-million dollar experimental X-15, escaped without injury. A fuel explosion in the lower of two engines which provide the X-15 with 16,000 pounds of thrust apparently touched off the brief fire, a spokesman for North American Aviation said.

"Some damage" to the X-15 resulted. But no definite decision on cause of the mishap will be possible until the craft can be dismantled and studied.

Crossfield said he didn't realize there was any damage to the X-15 until after it had landed.

The landing was spectacular, as always, as the X-15 skidded to a dusty halt on the Rosamond Dry Lake of the Mojave Desert.

It will not be possible to determine whether the 100-million dollar X-15 program will be delayed until the full extent of damage can be learned, according to a spokesman for North American Aviation.

Seconds after the black, dart-nosed X-15 was released from the "mother" B-52 over the Mojave Desert, Crossfield felt an explosion in the aft-section of the craft.

Maj. Robert White, trailing the X-15 in his F-104 jet fighter, instantly radioed Crossfield "it appears you have a small fire in your engine compartment."

Crossfield, North American Aviation's crack pilot assigned to all preliminary X-15 tests, showed no excitement. He answered calmly, "I have a fire warning light. I am beginning to jettison fuel."

At no time was there mention of abandoning the X-15, although Crossfield — flying at about 40,000 feet — had an opportunity to do so.

North American estimated his speed at about 450 miles shortly after the B-52 "drop" at 12:39 p.m. e.s.t.

The speed contrasted with the 1400 miles per hour attained on previous tests and the 4,000 anticipated when White attempts to reach the fringes of outer space.

Reds Won't Try To Fly New Flag In West Berlin

BERLIN (AP)—Faced with the possibility of retaliation from the West, East Germany backed down Thursday on Berlin's explosive flag issue.

The official Communist party organ Neues Deutschland announced that party followers will make no attempt to hoist East Germany's new national flag over Allied-occupied West Berlin this weekend. The paper said East Germany does not wish to provoke a civil war because of the new flags.

Earlier this week, the Western allies — France, Britain and the United States—warned the Soviet Union against allowing the East Germans to raise their new flag above Western territory again. The Soviets were told that Western troops would march, if necessary, to preserve law and order in West Berlin.

The East Germans flew the flags above West Berlin's elevated railway station last month and provoked a battle between Communist railway workers and West Berlin police who tried to tear down the flags. Five policemen were injured.

Kintner Says His Network 'Victimized'

Reports Kickback System Uncovered; Urges Anti-Rig Law

WASHINGTON (AP)—Robert E. Kintner, admitting his own National Broadcasting Co. had been victimized by quiz show fakery, suggested Thursday that Congress pass a law to jail TV program cheaters.

Kintner, NBC president, said his network is taking every step it can to prevent any repetition of the quiz show connivance which shocked millions of television viewers.

He asked Congress and the public not to judge the broadcasting industry by disclosures that many big money quiz contests had been rigged.

Kintner testified before a House Commerce subcommittee, which has uncovered numerous instances of backstage maneuvers to fix the outcome of quiz shows, even to giving contestants the correct answers in advance.

Subcommittee members held Kintner on the stand so long that the scheduled appearance of Dr. Frank Stanton, president of the Columbia Broadcasting System, was postponed until Friday morning.

Stanton's network was accused by an earlier witness of shying away from a prompt investigation when rigging charges were first aired last year.

Kickbacks Indicated

Kintner said NBC has set up a new unit to detect, root out and prevent deception in any of its programs.

He said the network has discovered a kickback system on one of its quiz shows and is handing the evidence to the New York district attorney.

Kintner said the evidence indicates that contestants on the show "Treasure Hunt" turned back some of their winnings to personnel on the program. He said the employes concerned have been discharged and the practice halted. Kintner said NBC regards the practice as a violation of New York State law.

Any new federal law, Kintner said, should be "aimed directly at the wrongdoer, rather than legislation of a blanket variety aimed at the broadcaster — although it should apply to any broadcaster who consciously participated in the wrongdoing."

With that in mind, he told the House investigators, NBC has drafted a bill to make it a federal crime for anyone knowingly and willfully to scheme to control the outcome of a broadcast contest.

Both NBC and CBS have carried quiz shows discredited by revelations of fixing.

Abrams Sticks To Story

The accusation that CBS had shied away from a prompt investigation of backstage rigging charges last year came from George Abrams, who then was vice president for advertising of Revlon, Inc. That cosmetics firm was a sponsor of the "$64,000 Question" and "$64,000 Challenge" shows, both of which were later yanked off the air.

Abrams told the subcommittee he was startled into action by a newspaper account in which the Rev. Charles E. (Stoney) Jackson was described as admitting he had been coached on the "$64,000 question."

Abrams said there had been no discussion until March 1958 of the possibility contestants had been fed the answers before appearing on the $64,000 shows.

In that month, Abrams testified, he heard that Arthur J. Cohn, a contestant on "Challenge," felt that his opponent, Wilton J. Springer, had been given questions and answers in advance. He said he called Cohn and got Cohn's story.

Abrams said he accepted the producers' explanation that an ac-

Murphy To Tour With Eisenhower

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Undersecretary of State Robert Murphy will delay his departure from government to accompany President Eisenhower next month to Europe, the Middle East and Africa, the White House announced Thursday.

Murphy, who had announced that he was resigning to enter private business Dec. 3, will serve as the ranking State Department official on the trip at the personal request of President Eisenhower.

White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said Secretary of State Christian A. Herter will be busy preparing for and participating in the NATO meeting which opens in Paris Dec. 15.

Tawes, Almond Chart Steps Designed To Assure Approval Of Potomac Pact

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Potomac River Compact between Maryland and Virginia was given an additional boost Thursday by the governors of the two states.

The governors announced agreement on steps designed to assure final approval of the compact. The two-state treaty is aimed at settling a dispute over fishing and oystering rights in the Maryland-owned river.

From Gov. J. Millard Tawes of Maryland came another statement that the "compact will have the solid support" of his administration.

Gov. J. Lindsay Almond Jr. of Virginia and Tawes said after a conference both states will request that proceedings pending in the case before the Supreme Court be postponed until after the 1960 Maryland election.

There will be a referendum then on acceptance or rejection of the compact on the part of Maryland.

The compact has been approved by the legislatures of both states, but a group of dissatisfield Maryland voters successfully petitioned for a referendum.

The two governors, meeting with state attorneys general and legislative leaders for nearly 2½ hours, said in a statement later that "we find ourselves in complete agreement on the Potomac River Compact of 1958."

A progress report on out-of-court efforts to settle a suit brought by Virginia against Maryland is due for presentation to former Supreme Court Justice Stanley F. Reed on Nov. 16. Reed was named special master in the litigation after Virginia took to court its fight against Maryland acting alone to nullify the old 1785 Potomac Compact.

Reed will be requested to postpone further proceedings until after the Maryland referendum in November next year.

The compact, which is subject to approval by Congress, was drawn up by a two-state commission after Virginia brought its suit.

The 1785 Compact provided for equal fishing rights and an equal voice between the two states in Potomac fisheries legislation. But Virginia and Maryland had differences over conservation regulations and enforcement during intermittent oyster wars.

White House Denies Ike Golfed During "Bulge"

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The White House Thursday sought to straighten out the record on President Eisenhower and whether he played golf in France during the 1944 Battle of the Bulge. It said the fact was he didn't.

Eisenhower, Allied commander in Europe in World War II, has been criticized sharply at times in the memoirs of some of his fellow generals.

Viscount Alanbrooke, chief of the British General Staff in 1944, recently added to the stories in a book, "Triumph in the West." He called Eisenhower "a charming personality. . .but no real commander."

The retired general, who dined with Eisenhower in London only last August, also was critical of the President's performance during the Battle of the Bulge.

One passage said that "Eisenhower, though supposed to be doing so, is on the golf links at Rheims, entirely detached and taking practically no part in running the war."

Some news dispatches from London took the sentence to mean that Eisenhower was playing golf.

White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said Thursday in response to a question, however, that "somebody is exaggerating this."

"From the time Allied troops landed in Europe until the war was over in Europe, the President didn't even have a golf club in his hand or play at a golf course," Hagerty said.

Crossfield, completely unconcerned after landing the five-million dollar experimental X-15, escaped without injury. A fuel explosion in the lower of two engines which provide the X-15 with 16,000 pounds of thrust apparently touched off the brief fire, a spokesman for North American Aviation said.

"Some damage" to the X-15 resulted. But no definite decision on cause of the mishap will be possible until the craft can be dismantled and studied.

Crossfield said he didn't realize there was any damage to the X-15 until after it had landed.

The landing was spectacular, as always, as the X-15 skidded to a dusty halt on the Rosamond Dry Lake of the Mojave Desert.

It will not be possible to determine whether the 100-million dollar X-15 program will be delayed until the full extent of damage can be learned, according to a spokesman for North American Aviation.

Seconds after the black, dart-nosed X-15 was released from the "mother" B-52 over the Mojave Desert, Crossfield felt an explosion in the aft-section of the craft.

Maj. Robert White, trailing the X-15 in his F-104 jet fighter, instantly radioed Crossfield "it appears you have a small fire in your engine compartment."

Crossfield, North American Aviation's crack pilot assigned to all preliminary X-15 tests, showed no excitement. He answered calmly, "I have a fire warning light. I am beginning to jettison fuel."

At no time was there mention of abandoning the X-15, although Crossfield — flying at about 40,000 feet — had an opportunity to do so.

The speed contrasted with the 1400 miles per hour attained on previous tests and the 4,000 anticipated when White attempts to reach the fringes of outer space.

Reds Won't Try To Fly New Flag In West Berlin

BERLIN (AP)—Faced with the possibility of retaliation from the West, East Germany backed down Thursday on Berlin's explosive flag issue.

The official Communist party organ Neues Deutschland announced that party followers will make no attempt to hoist East Germany's new national flag over Allied-occupied West Berlin this weekend. The paper said East Germany does not wish to provoke a civil war because of the new flags.

Earlier this week, the Western allies — France, Britain and the United States—warned the Soviet Union against allowing the East Germans to raise their new flag above Western territory again. The Soviets were told that Western troops would march, if necessary, to preserve law and order in West Berlin.

The East Germans flew the flags above West Berlin's elevated railway station last month and provoked a battle between Communist railway workers and West Berlin police who tried to tear down the flags. Five policemen were injured.

White House Denies Ike Golfed During "Bulge"

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The White House Thursday sought to straighten out the record on President Eisenhower and whether he played golf in France during the 1944 Battle of the Bulge. It said the fact was he didn't.

Viscount Alanbrooke, chief of the British General Staff in 1944, recently added to the stories in a book, "Triumph in the West." He called Eisenhower "a charming personality. . .but no real commander."

The retired general, who dined with Eisenhower in London only last August, also was critical of the President's performance during the Battle of the Bulge.

One passage said that "Eisenhower, though supposed to be doing so, is on the golf links at Rheims, entirely detached and taking practically no part in running the war."

Some news dispatches from London took the sentence to mean that Eisenhower was playing golf.

White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said Thursday in response to a question, however, that "somebody is exaggerating this."

"From the time Allied troops landed in Europe until the war was over in Europe, the President didn't even have a golf club in his hand or play at a golf course," Hagerty said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Potomac River Compact between Maryland and Virginia was given an additional boost Thursday by the governors of the two states.

The governors announced agreement on steps designed to assure final approval of the compact. The two-state treaty is aimed at settling a dispute over fishing and oystering rights in the Maryland-owned river.

From Gov. J. Millard Tawes of Maryland came another statement that the "compact will have the solid support" of his administration.

Gov. J. Lindsay Almond Jr. of Virginia and Tawes said after a conference both states will request that proceedings pending in the case before the Supreme Court be postponed until after the 1960 Maryland election.

There will be a referendum then on acceptance or rejection of the compact on the part of Maryland.

The compact has been approved by the legislatures of both states, but a group of dissatisfield Maryland voters successfully petitioned for a referendum.

The two governors, meeting with state attorneys general and legislative leaders for nearly 2½ hours, said in a statement later that "we find ourselves in complete agreement on the Potomac River Compact of 1958."

A progress report on out-of-court efforts to settle a suit brought by Virginia against Maryland is due for presentation to former Supreme Court Justice Stanley F. Reed on Nov. 16. Reed was named special master in the litigation after Virginia took to court its fight against Maryland acting alone to nullify the old 1785 Potomac Compact.

Reed will be requested to postpone further proceedings until after the Maryland referendum in November next year.

The compact, which is subject to approval by Congress, was drawn up by a two-state commission after Virginia brought its suit.

The 1785 Compact provided for equal fishing rights and an equal voice between the two states in Potomac fisheries legislation. But Virginia and Maryland had differences over conservation regulations and enforcement during intermittent oyster wars.

Kintner Says His Network 'Victimized'

Reports Kickback System Uncovered; Urges Anti-Rig Law

WASHINGTON (AP)—Robert E. Kintner, admitting his own National Broadcasting Co. had been victimized by quiz show fakery, suggested Thursday that Congress pass a law to jail TV program cheaters.

Kintner, NBC president, said his network is taking every step it can to prevent any repetition of the quiz show connivance which shocked millions of television viewers.

He asked Congress and the public not to judge the broadcasting industry by disclosures that many big money quiz contests had been rigged.

Kintner testified before a House Commerce subcommittee, which has uncovered numerous instances of backstage maneuvers to fix the outcome of quiz shows, even to giving contestants the correct answers in advance.

Subcommittee members held Kintner on the stand so long that the scheduled appearance of Dr. Frank Stanton, president of the Columbia Broadcasting System, was postponed until Friday morning.

Kickbacks Indicated

Kintner said NBC has set up a new unit to detect, root out and prevent deception in any of its programs.

He said the network has discovered a kickback system on one of its quiz shows and is handing the evidence to the New York district attorney.

Kintner said the evidence indicates that contestants on the show "Treasure Hunt" turned back some of their winnings to personnel on the program. He said the employes concerned have been discharged and the practice halted. Kintner said NBC regards the practice as a violation of New York State law.

Any new federal law, Kintner said, should be "aimed directly at the wrongdoer, rather than legislation of a blanket variety aimed at the broadcaster — although it should apply to any broadcaster who consciously participated in the wrongdoing."

With that in mind, he told the House investigators, NBC has drafted a bill to make it a federal crime for anyone knowingly and willfully to scheme to control the outcome of a broadcast contest.

Both NBC and CBS have carried quiz shows discredited by revelations of fixing.

Abrams Sticks To Story

The accusation that CBS had shied away from a prompt investigation of backstage rigging charges last year came from George Abrams, who then was vice president for advertising of Revlon, Inc. That cosmetics firm was a sponsor of the "$64,000 Question" and "$64,000 Challenge" shows, both of which were later yanked off the air.

Abrams told the subcommittee he was startled into action by a newspaper account in which the Rev. Charles E. (Stoney) Jackson was described as admitting he had been coached on the "$64,000 question."

Abrams said there had been no discussion until March 1958 of the possibility contestants had been fed the answers before appearing on the $64,000 shows.

In that month, Abrams testified, he heard that Arthur J. Cohn, a contestant on "Challenge," felt that his opponent, Wilton J. Springer, had been given questions and answers in advance. He said he called Cohn and got Cohn's story.

Abrams said he accepted the producers' explanation that an ac-

Murphy To Tour With Eisenhower

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Undersecretary of State Robert Murphy will delay his departure from government to accompany President Eisenhower next month to Europe, the Middle East and Africa, the White House announced Thursday.

Murphy, who had announced that he was resigning to enter private business Dec. 3, will serve as the ranking State Department official on the trip at the personal request of President Eisenhower.

White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said Secretary of State Christian A. Herter will be busy preparing for and participating in the NATO meeting which opens in Paris Dec. 15.

Nobel Peace Prize Won By Noel-Baker

OSLO, Norway (AP) — Philip Noel-Baker, British statesman and author, won the 1959 Nobel Peace Prize Thursday. He announced in London he will spend the $42,650 prize money to promote the cause of international disarmament.

"War is a damnable, filthy thing and has destroyed civilization after civilization—that is the essence of my beliefs," the scholarly, 70-year-old Laborite told newsmen.

"If the opinion of the people could only be mobilized into an active movement I believe we could have disarmament in a week."

A five-man committee of Norway's Parliament conferred the award under terms of the will of Alfred Nobel, Swedish inventor of dynamite, for Noel-Baker's years of work for disarmament.

The gaunt, white-haired Briton was adjudged the man "who has done the most or best to further brotherhood amongst the peoples, to abolish or cut down standing armies and to create or further the work of peace congresses."

He studied at Haverford (Pa.) College, a Quaker school. An outstanding athlete and middle-distance runner as a youth, he captained the 1920 British Olympic team.

Noel-Baker has been lecturing, writing and working for peace since World War I, in which he won decorations for valor as a commander of ambulance units. He was a member of the British delegation to the 1919 Paris peace conference; was personal assistant to Viscount Cecil of Chelwood at the League of Nations Assembly, 1923-24; helped draft the U.N. charter adopted at San Francisco in 1945; and was a delegate to the first U.N. Assembly in 1946.

Navy To Scrap 14 SeaMasters Built By Martin

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Navy announced Thursday that it will scrap the 14 SeaMaster jet seaplanes built by the Martin Co. of Middle River, Md. under a 441 million dollar contract terminated last August.

Rear Adm. L.D. Coates, deputy chief of the Navy's Bureau of Aeronautics, said usable parts and instruments will be removed before the hulks are scrapped.

The Martin Co. constructed 16 SeaMasters, two of which were destroyed in crashes in 1955 and 1956. Eleven of the 16, including the two destroyed, were flown a total of 535 hours and 56 minutes.

At one time the 600-mile-an-hour SeaMaster was envisioned as a mine layer, a photo reconnaissance plane and as a member of anti-submarine-warfare teams.

But last November the Navy cut its original order from 22 to 14 and the entire program was scrapped in August in an effort to save 72 million dollars in proposed expenditures for the planes and support equipment.

Since August, 13, of the SeaMasters have been sitting on a ramp on the Martin property. The other plane, not fully completed, had been undergoing structural tests.

Comeback Trail Lonely One For Janet Gaynor

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Janet Gaynor is taking a lonely path to a Broadway stage debut without the husband who helped lead her there.

The winsome, petite darling of moviegoers a generation ago is coming back to the bright lights in the role of a middle-aged mother with a heart condition.

The play is "The Midnight Sun" by Joseph Hayes.

Miss Gaynor accepted the role to be near her husband, Gilbert Adrian, the famed costume designer, who had signed for a new musical.

Adrian's recent death put an end to those plans.

"With Adrian doing a Broadway show it just seemed to be the right time to do it," she said during a breakfast interview Thursday. "It just didn't work out."

Miss Gaynor, who won the first Academy Award in 1928 for her work in three films, retired 20 years ago at the height of her career to become Mrs. Adrian.

Now, Miss Gaynor is finding out what many a movie star has learned before. There's a big difference between the cinema and the stage.

"Oh, it's quite different. In the movies you do your emotional bit right then and there, and that's it. In the theater you have to develop a character."

The company began rehearsals in New York Oct. 12, and is here on a four-day premiere run. The next stops are Boston and Philadelphia, and then the New York opening, Nov. 23.

She plays the neurotic mother of three children in their 20s. The play deals with the emotional conflict between the children, the mother and father.

Verdict Due Today

BALTIMORE (AP)—A decision in the malfeasance trial of former Baltimore police inspector Clarence O. Forrester will be handed down at noon Friday.

Criminal Court Judge Edwin Harlan, who heard the case without a jury, late Thursday set the time for rendering the verdict.

Adhesive Firm Sued In Blast

BALTIMORE (AP)—A St. Paul, Minn. concern Thursday was sued for a total of $1,017,000 for injuries suffered in a Baltimore fire allegedly caused by the explosion of a tile adhesive compound.

The suits were filed in Federal District Court on behalf of 11 plaintiffs against the Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing Co.

The actions were based on a fire Nov. 15, 1958 which caused property damage estimated at more than $193,000 in a 3½ story, 25-room house in the Roland Park section.

The company was charged with negligence in failing to give adequate warning of the "extremely hazardous" character of the vapors arising from the compound when used in a ventilated room as directed. The suits said the label on the adhesive cans warned only that it was inflammable.

At least three persons were injured in the fire, the suit said.

Two Baltimore Cops Indicted In Robbery

BALTIMORE (AP)—The Baltimore County grand jury Thursday accused two policemen of conspiring in a drugstore breaking and a robbery of an inn.

Indicted were Cpl. Edward G. Hyson, 36, and Patrolman Ronald E. Gouker, 39. Hyson was charged with conspiring with twin brothers, Alton R. and Albert R. Moyer, in the pharmacy entry. Gouker is accused on conspiring with the same pair in the armed holdup of Bill's Terrace Inn. The Moyers were indicted by the jury on housebreaking and armed robbery charges.

Both alleged crimes took place in October. Bandits got $815 in the holdup and burglars stole $1,800 in cash and merchandise at the drug store, police said.

Food Prices Expected To Drop Again In 1960

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Retail food prices are expected to drop again in 1960, for the second year in a row.

The Agriculture Department made the forecast Thursday in predicting that supplies of most foods, especially meat, will be very large next year.

The two-year decline in national milk production also may be halted or even reversed in 1960, government experts said.

cident had occurred when Springer was asked questions in a warm-up session, but, he added, he "raised the devil with them for being so careless."

That was the first instance of its kind to come to Revlon's attention since the $64,000 shows originated in 1955, Abrams said.

Abrams testified that six months later—which would have been in September 1958—he read the Jackson story in a newspaper and realized that more than the tough or easy question technique may have been used to control contestants.

"At this point," he said, "Revlon called CBS into the picture and asked them to conduct an investigation."

Abrams gave no specific date in September. In New York a CBS spokesman confirmed that CBS was not advised of the March complaint until Sept. 6, 1958.

(The Associated Press erroneously reported earlier that Abrams had testified that CBS first heard of the charges in March.)

Child's Schooling Begins At Home, Md. PTA Told

BALTIMORE (AP) — The home is the "child's first school, what he learns there will determine what the public school can do for him," the Maryland Congress of Parents and Teachers was told Friday.

The advice came from Mrs. Cecil S. Carey, vice president of Region II of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers. She delivered the keynote address at the Maryland group's annual convention.

Mrs. Carey, in her talk before the more than 1,000 delegates, said school children should be given freedom at home to express his feelings and thoughts.

"They will not grow beyond small, selfish obsessions unless mothers and fathers are mature," she said.

Mrs. Carey said it also was the parents' responsibility to protect their children against "the corrosive effect of prejudice."

Baltimore Mayor J. Harold Grady, in welcoming the delegates, got in a plug for his controversial earnings tax to help solve the city's financial difficulties.

"I hope you will look with understanding at the city's efforts to broaden its tax base," he said. "Unless the problem is solved quickly . . . education will suffer."

He said the city's school expenses were increasing at three times the rate of assessment valuation for property tax purposes.

Granting Of Liquor License To Magistrate Upheld

HAGERSTOWN (AP) — Circuit Judge D. K. McLaughlin Thursday upheld a liquor license granted to a city magistrate but added that he personally frowned on the idea.

The Circuit Court ruling upheld the liquor control board is granting a license for attorney Irving Einbinder, a city magistrate, to operate a retail liquor store.

"Reasonable minds might differ," said Judge McLaughlin, "as to whether it would be in the public interest for a magistrate to operate a package liquor store.

"The (liquor control) board sees nothing wrong in such a situation. Although I might add my opinion to the contrary, the holding (of the liquor board) is factual and not arbitrary."

Einbinder plans to open a retail store in a heavily populated section of Hagerstown which had been without a liquor store.

Opponents had appealed from the liquor board ruling on grounds that the store would be too close to a church and school, that the store might be incorporated later and that it should be against public policy for a magistrate to take out a liquor license.

Veterans Groups Rap Bonus Plan

BALTIMORE (AP) — Two veterans organizations have criticized the latest proposal for providing a bonus for Maryland war veterans.

The Legislative Council Wednesday voted to back a plan calling for a bonus financed by increases in the property tax and a one per cent hike in sales and income taxes.

William R. Clay, legislative chairman of the American Legion and Disabled American Veterans, called the action "a cheap political trick to place the veterans of the state in a bad light with other taxpayers.

There are about seven million, 500 thousand widows in the United States.

Queen Annes County Banker Dies At 93

QUEENSTOWN, Md. (AP)—Funeral services will be held here Saturday for William Steadman Cross, a banker, farmer and former Democratic member of the Queen Annes County Board of Commissioners.

The 93 - year - old Cross died Wednesday at the farm of his grandson, William U. Cross, near Centreville. He had been ill for almost five years.

Cross was prominent in Democratic politics in the county and was a former member of the county's Democratic State Central Committee. He served on the Board of Commissioners during the early part of the century.

Cross became associated with the Queenstown Bank of Maryland when it organized in 1899 and served as vice president after the bank reorganized in 1933 until his retirement in 1954. He was an honorary director of the bank at his death.

Cross' wife, the former Mary A. Ruth, died 18 years ago and his son, William, died in 1929.

Sands Of Time, Desert Hide Bomber Crew Fate

By DARRRELL GARWOOD
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Deep in the Libyan desert, the broken remains of a World War II American bomber stands as a grim reminder that there are still areas of the earth so remote that a man lost there faces certain death.

At one moment, the modern human may be flying in air-conditioned comfort, modern technology serving his every need. A few minutes later, uninjured but with death at his elbow, he may stand on a spot from which there is no escape.

The wreckage of a B-24 Liberator bomber called the "Lady Be Good" was sighted from the air by a member of the British D'Arcy Exploration, Co., Ltd., and the find was reported to U.S. authorities on May 11 — more than 16 years after it disappeared.

The plane was in an extremely desolate area 432 miles southeast of Benghazi.

Searched Thoroughly

The U.S. Army and Air Force promptly launched a search of the trackless Sahara wasteland. Using every form of transportation from camels to helicopters, they covered every square mile of desert around the wreckage.

It appears from evidence found in the desert that the men were victims of a cruel turn of fate: they bailed out of the troubled plane at night, assembly only 18 miles from where the plane hit —and set off in the wrong direction.

Trail Peters Out

Searchers found flight boots, strips of parachutes and other items of flight gear left behind by the crewmen to mark their trail. But the trail led northwestward, directly away from the airplane, and petered out after 50 miles at the edge of a "sand sea" —a hell of soft, shifting dunes.

The fact that the accident occurred at night, and the men were unable to tell where the bomber went down, may have cost them their lives—or at least shortened the length of their survival.

The wreckage would have provided shelter from the sun and sandstorms. Food, water and coffee were aboard. The bomber's radio was still working. The men's chances of being spotted from a passing plane would have been considerably better.

Crashed In 1943

An Air Force reconstruction of the bomber's last mission indicates that on April 4, 1943, the "Lady Be Good" had been on a high - altitude bombing run over Naples, Italy, and was trying to get back to its base at Soluck near Benghazi.

American and British troops had only recently joined forces in North Africa, and the Germans still held points along the coast. The pilot or navigator may have been misled by one of the fake radio beams the Germans were sending up. Or a sandstorm or faulty instrument may have been to blame.

In any case the Liberator was more than 300 miles off course when its fuel was exhausted. All indications are that the crew members parachuted safely to earth.

That much is fairly easy to establish. The bomber's fuel tanks were empty when it was found, and the bomb bay was open as though for bail-out. World War II Air Corps veterans recalled that no one wanted to crash-land in a Liberator, because those bombers were famous for breaking apart.

Water Untouched

More conclusive, the wreckage when found contained untouched jugs of water, a thermos of drinkable coffee, cigarets, chewing gum and well-preserved rations. These and other items of supply would certainly have been consumed if anyone had landed uninjured with the plane or reached the scene afterward.

But the crew members must have been instructed before the bail-out to assemble at the scene of the crash if possible. Wartime fliers wtre thoroughly indoctrinated with the idea that, when lost in the desert, the safest procedure was to remain with their plane.

The logical conclusion is that none of the nine men was able to reach the plane after the crash.

This becomes credible when the circumstances are examined. The plane may have coasted on for many miles after the bail-out. It may have veered off in a maneuver no one saw. And the terrific heat of the desert doesn't allow for much aimless searching.

Catholic Priest Who Vanished From Hawaii Turns Up In Ariz.

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — A Roman Catholic priest who disappeared March 4 from Hawaii, turned up in Phoenix Wednesday, married and working for the State of Arizona.

He is David P. Meyer, 28, an Employment Security Commission interviewer in Mesa.

After his disappearance, Meyer was believed drowned until late in March when he was reported alive but ill.

He was assistant pastor of St. Anthony's Parrish at Wailuku on the Hawaiian Island of Maui with the name of Father Damien Meyer.

Mrs. Meyer was the former parish secretary. A mother of four children, she was divorced from her husband, Boyce O. Lynch, five years ago. The couple was believed to have been married in Los Angeles.

Residents May Save 50 Cents On Taxes

Payment of $5 or more on current city taxes prior to January 1 can save a taxpayer an additional charge of 50 cents, Finance Commissioner Lucile Roeder said yesterday.

The additional charge will be made to cover extra clerical work necessary to send the official delinquent notice, she said.

The tax office has a few bills returned by the Post Office when delivery was impossible because of improper address.

NEW YORK (AP) — Dividends paid by companies listed on the New York Stock Exchange hit a new peak in the first nine months of this year.

Owners of common shares received $6,725,094,560, the exchange reported Wednesday.

This was the 17th consecutive year in which a high in dividends was recorded for the nine-month period.

The total was an increase of 5.4 per cent over the common payments by the same companies in the January-September period of 1958.

Of the 1,086 stocks listed on the Big Board at the end of September 928—more than 85 per cent —paid one or more cash dividends.

Forty-two per cent paid larger dividends than last year, 47 per cent paid the same amount in both periods, and 11 per cent paid less than last year.

"Proportionately, the largest gains were paid on shares of shipbuilding and ship operating, amusement, and retail trade companies," the exchange said. "Declines in dividend payments were registered by the leather industry real estate, aircraft and financial companies.

"Three of the 25 groups of listed issues — utilities, chemicals, and petroleum and natural gas — accounted for more than 48 per cent of all cash common stock divideneds in the first nine months of 1959. Three groups of listed common stocks had perfect cash dividend records for every issue during the period—all 14 tobacco, 12 service and 11 rubber issues."

"Revised estimates are now being made that instead of a six to nine-week period following the resumption of steelmaking in which production will be less than 85 per cent of capacity, it may take as long as six months to regain the 85 per cent rate. Even cutting that estimate in half suggests a considerable time though before the market can start seriously discounting a 1960 upturn. The longer the steel strike lasts, the longer it will take to get back to a high production rate. Selective market caution appears to be fully warranted."

Fast Chase

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—A 115-mile an hour auto chase ended in the arrest of a 14-year-old Kanawha County boy here Wednesday night. State police said they stopped the boy to check for a stolen car. The youth took off and reached 115 miles an hour before losing control and plowing into a ditch at nearby Institute. He received only minor cuts and bruises.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Deep in the Libyan desert, the broken remains of a World War II American bomber stands as a grim reminder that there are still areas of the earth so remote that a man lost there faces certain death.

At one moment, the modern human may be flying in air-conditioned comfort, modern technology serving his every need. A few minutes later, uninjured but with death at his elbow, he may stand on a spot from which there is no escape.

The wreckage of a B-24 Liberator bomber called the "Lady Be Good" was sighted from the air by a member of the British D'Arcy Exploration, Co., Ltd., and the find was reported to U.S. authorities on May 11 — more than 16 years after it disappeared.

The plane was in an extremely desolate area 432 miles southeast of Benghazi.

Searched Thoroughly

The U.S. Army and Air Force promptly launched a search of the trackless Sahara wasteland. Using every form of transportation from camels to helicopters, they covered every square mile of desert around the wreckage.

It appears from evidence found in the desert that the men were victims of a cruel turn of fate: they bailed out of the troubled plane at night, assembly only 18 miles from where the plane hit —and set off in the wrong direction.

Trail Peters Out

Searchers found flight boots, strips of parachutes and other items of flight gear left behind by the crewmen to mark their trail. But the trail led northwestward, directly away from the airplane, and petered out after 50 miles at the edge of a "sand sea" —a hell of soft, shifting dunes.

The fact that the accident occurred at night, and the men were unable to tell where the bomber went down, may have cost them their lives—or at least shortened the length of their survival.

The wreckage would have provided shelter from the sun and sandstorms. Food, water and coffee were aboard. The bomber's radio was still working. The men's chances of being spotted from a passing plane would have been considerably better.

Crashed In 1943

An Air Force reconstruction of the bomber's last mission indicates that on April 4, 1943, the "Lady Be Good" had been on a high - altitude bombing run over Naples, Italy, and was trying to get back to its base at Soluck near Benghazi.

American and British troops had only recently joined forces in North Africa, and the Germans still held points along the coast. The pilot or navigator may have been misled by one of the fake radio beams the Germans were sending up. Or a sandstorm or faulty instrument may have been to blame.

In any case the Liberator was more than 300 miles off course when its fuel was exhausted. All indications are that the crew members parachuted safely to earth.

That much is fairly easy to establish. The bomber's fuel tanks were empty when it was found, and the bomb bay was open as though for bail-out. World War II Air Corps veterans recalled that no one wanted to crash-land in a Liberator, because those bombers were famous for breaking apart.

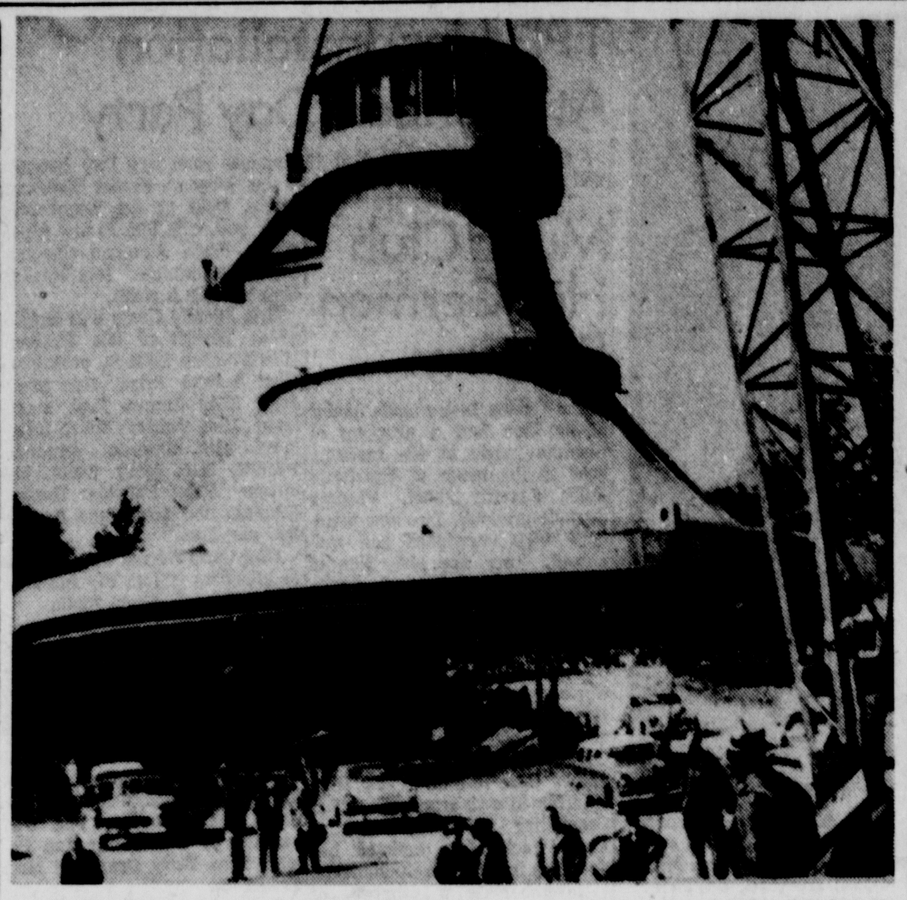
Water Untouched

More conclusive, the wreckage when found contained untouched jugs of water, a thermos of drinkable coffee, cigarets, chewing gum and well-preserved rations. These and other items of supply would certainly have been consumed if anyone had landed uninjured with the plane or reached the scene afterward.

But the crew members must have been instructed before the bail-out to assemble at the scene of the crash if possible. Wartime fliers wtre thoroughly indoctrinated with the idea that, when lost in the desert, the safest procedure was to remain with their plane.

The logical conclusion is that none of the nine men was able to reach the plane after the crash.

This becomes credible when the circumstances are examined. The plane may have coasted on for many miles after the bail-out. It may have veered off in a maneuver no one saw. And the terrific heat of the desert doesn't allow for much aimless searching.



HI-FI SPEAKER?—This huge bell-shaped object is not a "woofer" but a "whoosher." It is part of a 135,000-pound wind tunnel that was transported in sections from California to the National Aviation Facilities Experimental Center in Atlantic City by ship, barge and truck. The bell mouth, which measures 22 feet in diameter, is shown being lifted off a barge in Mays Landing, N. Y. (AP Photofax)

Catholic Priest Who Vanished From Hawaii Turns Up In Ariz.

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — A Roman Catholic priest who disappeared March 4 from Hawaii, turned up in Phoenix Wednesday, married and working for the State of Arizona.

He is David P. Meyer, 28, an Employment Security Commission interviewer in Mesa.

After his disappearance, Meyer was believed drowned until late in March when he was reported alive but ill.

He was assistant pastor of St. Anthony's Parrish at Wailuku on the Hawaiian Island of Maui with the name of Father Damien Meyer.

Mrs. Meyer was the former parish secretary. A mother of four children, she was divorced from her husband, Boyce O. Lynch, five years ago. The couple was believed to have been married in Los Angeles.

Residents May Save 50 Cents On Taxes

Payment of $5 or more on current city taxes prior to January 1 can save a taxpayer an additional charge of 50 cents, Finance Commissioner Lucile Roeder said yesterday.

The additional charge will be made to cover extra clerical work necessary to send the official delinquent notice, she said.

The tax office has a few bills returned by the Post Office when delivery was impossible because of improper address.

NEW YORK (AP) — Dividends paid by companies listed on the New York Stock Exchange hit a new peak in the first nine months of this year.

Owners of common shares received $6,725,094,560, the exchange reported Wednesday.

This was the 17th consecutive year in which a high in dividends was recorded for the nine-month period.

The total was an increase of 5.4 per cent over the common payments by the same companies in the January-September period of 1958.

Of the 1,086 stocks listed on the Big Board at the end of September 928—more than 85 per cent —paid one or more cash dividends.

Forty-two per cent paid larger dividends than last year, 47 per cent paid the same amount in both periods, and 11 per cent paid less than last year.

"Proportionately, the largest gains were paid on shares of shipbuilding and ship operating, amusement, and retail trade companies," the exchange said. "Declines in dividend payments were registered by the leather industry real estate, aircraft and financial companies.

"Three of the 25 groups of listed issues — utilities, chemicals, and petroleum and natural gas — accounted for more than 48 per cent of all cash common stock divideneds in the first nine months of 1959. Three groups of listed common stocks had perfect cash dividend records for every issue during the period—all 14 tobacco, 12 service and 11 rubber issues."

"Revised estimates are now being made that instead of a six to nine-week period following the resumption of steelmaking in which production will be less than 85 per cent of capacity, it may take as long as six months to regain the 85 per cent rate. Even cutting that estimate in half suggests a considerable time though before the market can start seriously discounting a 1960 upturn. The longer the steel strike lasts, the longer it will take to get back to a high production rate. Selective market caution appears to be fully warranted."

Fast Chase

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—A 115-mile an hour auto chase ended in the arrest of a 14-year-old Kanawha County boy here Wednesday night. State police said they stopped the boy to check for a stolen car. The youth took off and reached 115 miles an hour before losing control and plowing into a ditch at nearby Institute. He received only minor cuts and bruises.

Red Cross Shoes

The shoe that made "comfort" such a fashionable word: The Boulevard... 14.95

The makers of our famous Red Cross Shoes have a special talent for fitting fashion to your busy life and your busy feet. And there's no better example of this than our handsome Boulevard. It has such a beautifully-crafted continental air about it, with fashion's flattering new brushed-off squared toe and smart, squared walking heel. But the real wonder of it is in the wearing . . . so soft, so light and flexible, so blissfully cushioned for easy-going luxury. Like all Red Cross Shoes, it fits as though made for your foot alone.

Couple Is Honored At Open House

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Lucas, Sr., and Mr. and Mrs. Philip Lucas, Jr., entertained in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Paul Areford, with an open house at the former's home, 817 Fayette Street.

The former Mrs. Aileen McElfish, daughter of Mrs. Rose King, Cresaptown, became the bride of Mr. Areford, son of Mrs. Adda Areford, city, and the late George Areford, October 16. The ceremony was performed in Calvary Baptist Church, Cresaptown, with Rev. Harold Allem officiating.

A wedding cake, adorned with white flowers, centered the refreshment table, carrying out the bridal motif. The autumn color scheme was used with fall flowers decorating the house.

Mrs. John Singer served the cake. She was assisted in serving by Mrs. Mildred Ash.

Valley Road Club Helps Fire Victims

The Valley Road Homemakers Club took up a collection of $15 for the families in Wiley Ford, whose homes were burned this week, and sent it to Brownie Strawderman, contribution chairman. Mrs. Irene MacDonald conducted the meeting at Central YMCA, Wednesday and quoted John Q. Adams, "Look for Principal."

Speaking of the Homemakers Chorus minstrel, Mrs. John S. Cook, Sr., announced a performance will be given tonight at Columbia Street School. Early in January it is scheduled to be given at Gephart School and in Mt. Savage. Plans were discussed for two other performances later in the winter. A rehearsal will be held at 7:30 Monday at the YMCA.

The group sang, "Come Ye Thankful People, Come," with Mrs. S. T. Weatherholt at the piano and Mrs. Elsie Brinkman giving the history of the hymn; also "Over the River and Through The Wood." Mrs. Cook told of her trip to San Antonio and Mexico City. She displayed a bull whip, skirts, blouse, purse and shoes to match and Mexican baskets, purchased there. Mrs. James Ruppert and Mrs. George Kraft conducted a quiz describing Mrs. Frank Tole, for others to identify. Woman To Woman

By MARY PRIME

NEW YORK (UPI)—A former fashion model has started a dress business designed for "neglected mothers."

The new firm, called "Miss Eve," specializes in smart and simple dresses ranging from $55 to $125.

"They're for mothers who want to dress nicely but who get neglected with children in school," said Eve Bonsall, 33, of Los Angeles, who is president of the firm and the mother of four children.

"We figured the cost of material, making the clothes, and our overhead, and then we put a straight price on the clothes. I don't want to let them get too high — I've promised my friends I'll get them that perfect dress for $89.95," she added.

Before the collection opened, Mrs. Bonsall had her friends try on samples and give their opinions. She also had her mother try on the clothes to be sure some would suit older women without being too old. Of the 24 numbers in the line, a few will be made only in larger sizes especially for older women, and others in smaller sizes — 14 and under — for younger figures.

The first collection, designed for next spring, was shown at Mrs. Bonsall's home last month and in New York this week. There will be four collections a year, available in cities across the United States, including Honolulu.

Mrs. Bonsall interrupted the interview to model some dresses, including a French-striped sheath of foulard silk with a white linen coat lined to match the dress; and a double-breasted bone colored silk line sheath.

The tall, slim brunette, who was born in Devil's Lake, N.D., and spent most of her childhood in Chicago, was a model before her marriage to Shull Bonsall, a TV executive, 16 years ago. She had wanted to return to work when her children reached school age because "it makes you more interesting."

However, she did not want a nine-to-five job that would take her away too much from her home and four youngsters.

Last August, Joe Lee, now the firm's general manager and production manager, suggested the idea of a garment business.

Nuclear Explosions For Peace Advocated

NEW YORK (AP) — Some nuclear explosion testing is necessary to turn the tremendous power of the nuclear weapon into a peacetime tool, a noted atomic scientist said Wednesday.

Nuclear explosions might be used to dig harbors, for mining, and for separating oil from some oil-bearing shale formations, said Dr. Edward Teller of the University of California.

Nuclear bombs, exploded underground, can be used to create great stores of heat which can then be mined to provide low cost energy for man, he added.

ORPHANED—Five-year-old Michael Tedeschi lies unconscious on a street in Ozone Park, Queens, New York, lone family survivor of a car crash that killed his parents and younger brother. Grim reminder of the tragedy is his father's shoe, torn off by the impact. Victor Tedeschi, 41; his wife, Louise, 40, and their other son, Thomas, 3, were killed when their car rammed by two teen-agers fleeing police in a stolen car. Michael is in critical condition with a broken arm, cuts and internal injuries. (AP Photofax)

Goldstein's Oyster Shell Bid Plan Adopted

BALTIMORE (AP) — Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein has won over the two other influential members of the Board of Public Works to his way of thinking in a new state venture to dredge old oyster shells from the bottom of Chesapeake Bay.

Gov. Tawes and Hooper S.Miles, state treasurer, agreed with Goldstein Wednesday to set up a new system of open competitive bidding by private contractors to dig the shells.

Dr. H. C. Byrd, chairman of the Tidewater Fisheries Commission, had urged the board to approve a contract with one firm, the Oyster Shell Corp. It is a Baltimore subsidiary of an Alabama concern.

Goldstein's arguments against the contract as being "too broad and for too long" persuaded the other two members to withhold action for the second time at its October meeting.

The governor's office issued a statement Wednesday saying that an agreement was reached, with Dr. Byrd present, to call for competitive bidding on Dec. 2.

Specifications of the proposed contract include several provisions that meet objections by Goldstein to the original.

The length of the contract will be for five years with an option for renewal of another five. The original was for 10 years with an option for renewal of a similar period.

The state will have the only right to terminate the contract upon failure of the contractor to fulfill any provisions. The State has this right in the original but the contractor also could have pulled out at any time upon payment of a penalty fee.

The Department of Tidewater Fisheries specifically will have authority to "determine the place and time" of all dredging.

Woman To Woman

By MARY PRIME

NEW YORK (UPI)—A former fashion model has started a dress business designed for "neglected mothers."

The new firm, called "Miss Eve," specializes in smart and simple dresses ranging from $55 to $125.

"They're for mothers who want to dress nicely but who get neglected with children in school," said Eve Bonsall, 33, of Los Angeles, who is president of the firm and the mother of four children.

"We figured the cost of material, making the clothes, and our overhead, and then we put a straight price on the clothes. I don't want to let them get too high — I've promised my friends I'll get them that perfect dress for $89.95," she added.

Before the collection opened, Mrs. Bonsall had her friends try on samples and give their opinions. She also had her mother try on the clothes to be sure some would suit older women without being too old. Of the 24 numbers in the line, a few will be made only in larger sizes especially for older women, and others in smaller sizes — 14 and under — for younger figures.

The first collection, designed for next spring, was shown at Mrs. Bonsall's home last month and in New York this week. There will be four collections a year, available in cities across the United States, including Honolulu.

Mrs. Bonsall interrupted the interview to model some dresses, including a French-striped sheath of foulard silk with a white linen coat lined to match the dress; and a double-breasted bone colored silk line sheath.

The tall, slim brunette, who was born in Devil's Lake, N.D., and spent most of her childhood in Chicago, was a model before her marriage to Shull Bonsall, a TV executive, 16 years ago. She had wanted to return to work when her children reached school age because "it makes you more interesting."

However, she did not want a nine-to-five job that would take her away too much from her home and four youngsters.

Last August, Joe Lee, now the firm's general manager and production manager, suggested the idea of a garment business.

Nuclear Explosions For Peace Advocated

NEW YORK (AP) — Some nuclear explosion testing is necessary to turn the tremendous power of the nuclear weapon into a peacetime tool, a noted atomic scientist said Wednesday.

Nuclear explosions might be used to dig harbors, for mining, and for separating oil from some oil-bearing shale formations, said Dr. Edward Teller of the University of California.

Nuclear bombs, exploded underground, can be used to create great stores of heat which can then be mined to provide low cost energy for man, he added.

ORPHANED—Five-year-old Michael Tedeschi lies unconscious on a street in Ozone Park, Queens, New York, lone family survivor of a car crash that killed his parents and younger brother. Grim reminder of the tragedy is his father's shoe, torn off by the impact. Victor Tedeschi, 41; his wife, Louise, 40, and their other son, Thomas, 3, were killed when their car rammed by two teen-agers fleeing police in a stolen car. Michael is in critical condition with a broken arm, cuts and internal injuries. (AP Photofax)

Goldstein's Oyster Shell Bid Plan Adopted

BALTIMORE (AP) — Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein has won over the two other influential members of the Board of Public Works to his way of thinking in a new state venture to dredge old oyster shells from the bottom of Chesapeake Bay.

Gov. Tawes and Hooper S.Miles, state treasurer, agreed with Goldstein Wednesday to set up a new system of open competitive bidding by private contractors to dig the shells.

Dr. H. C. Byrd, chairman of the Tidewater Fisheries Commission, had urged the board to approve a contract with one firm, the Oyster Shell Corp. It is a Baltimore subsidiary of an Alabama concern.

Goldstein's arguments against the contract as being "too broad and for too long" persuaded the other two members to withhold action for the second time at its October meeting.

The governor's office issued a statement Wednesday saying that an agreement was reached, with Dr. Byrd present, to call for competitive bidding on Dec. 2.

Specifications of the proposed contract include several provisions that meet objections by Goldstein to the original.

The length of the contract will be for five years with an option for renewal of another five. The original was for 10 years with an option for renewal of a similar period.

The state will have the only right to terminate the contract upon failure of the contractor to fulfill any provisions. The State has this right in the original but the contractor also could have pulled out at any time upon payment of a penalty fee.

The Department of Tidewater Fisheries specifically will have authority to "determine the place and time" of all dredging.

Hydrocephalic Children Given New Lease On Life

By RALPH DIGHTON

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—After three boys, Mr. and Mrs. B. desperately wanted a daughter.

When a baby girl finally arrived, they thought the fates had smiled on them.

Until they learned she was hydrocephalic.

That means the infant had water on the brain. Fluids that normally circulate at even pressure through the body sometimes become clogged in the brain cavity, making the head swell to grotesque proportions.

The intense pressure prevents the brain from growing and in a short time literally crushes its delicate tissues. The result is at best a retarded and crippled child, at worst—death.

Beverly happened to become one of the first hydrocephalic children helped by a new surgical technique pioneered by Dr. Robert Pudenz, a neurosurgeon and research scientist.

Of the 21 infants Dr. Pudenz has operated on in the past four years, 19 are still alive. Some show traces of brain damage caused by pressure prior to the operation—Beverly, for instance, will need leg braces for a while—but all now have a chance for a normal life.

What is the secret of this new hope for the one in 3,000 babies once doomed to be little more than human vegetables?

A piece of tubing about two feet long.

In a recent talk before the Western Neurosurgical Society at La Jolla, Calif., Dr. Pudens told how the tubing works.

During a two-hour operation a small hole is drilled in the skull above the ear. One end of the tube is inserted into one of the plugged up brain cavities where fluid collects. The other end is run downward through the neck and into the heart, allowing the fluid to drain away into the blood stream.

This sounds simple, but research teams have been working since the turn of the century to accomplish it. Dr. Pudenz himself, who says "I'd give up neurosurgery if I couldn't do research too," spent two years experimenting with animals before perfecting the technique.

Early efforts used rubber or plastic tubes, which deteriorate in the body. Dr. Pudenz uses a noncorrosive, nonirritating tube of silicone, a kind of flexible glass.

Formerly the drip end of the tube was simply run down into a vein and in time the tube became clogged. Dr. Pudenz devised a tiny valve, smaller than a match head, which floats free in one of the chambers of the heart. It can't clog, and allows the fluid to escape into the heart as pressure builds up in the skull.

Word of the technique has spread swiftly around the world. A medical supply house reports it is selling the tubes to surgeons and hospitals at a rate of 150 a month. Dr. Pudenz's royalties have been turned over to the foundation which sponsored his research.

Draft horses don't attain maturity and maximum strength until they reach the age of five or six years.

WANTS "GIVE AWAY" BABY—Mrs. Marjorie McLean, wife of an Oakland, Calif., teamster, yesterday asked to adopt the baby of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Winkley, of England, who want to give the child away at birth. The McLeans have a daughter eight years old. The Winkleys kept their first two children but gave away one baby last year. Mrs. Winkley says she could not face the trouble of caring for the children. St. John's Prexy Virtually Offers Van Doren Job

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — The president of St. John's College said Wednesday he personally would be willing to have Charles Van Doren, a graduate of the "great books college" here, on his staff.

Dr. Richard D. Weigle, college president, noted the position of alumni secretary is open and indicated Van Doren would be seriously considered for it should he apply or be recommended.

Dr. Weigle said there are two other candidates for the job, which is mainly administrative but which could include some teaching.

Van Doren, who received his bachelor of arts degree from St. John's in 1947, lost his teaching position at Columbia University, and a $50,000-a-year job with the National Broadcasting Co. in the wake of his confession Monday that the quiz show "Twenty-one," on which he won $129,000, was rigged.

Appointments at St. John's are made by the board of visitors and governors on recommendation from a faculty instruction committee and the college president.

Benny Proud Of Chimps

By JOE FINNIGAN

The sometime fiddle player greeted two hairy guests, Mr. Marquis Jr. and Miss Candy, like long-lost cousins when they arrived to dine at CBS-TV.

"I don't know if they'll recognize me," Jack said nervously. "After all, I haven't seen them since they were on my show the last time.

Dressed in white trousers, shirt, maroon and white striped sweater and white shoes, the chimps surveyed the studio with an expression of boredom—until they spotted the spread of bananas, puddings and coffee.

Marquis screamed in delight, hoping to tear into the banana bowl, but a word of caution from trainer Gene Detroy sent the anxious three-footer scurrying back to his chair.

A whale doesn't really spout water. When it comes to the surface after making a dive, the whale exhales and the column of warm air condenses to water vapor upon contact with the cooler air.

Benny Proud Of Chimps

By JOE FINNIGAN

Jack's smash hit scene with chimps some months ago is being re-run on his Nov. 7 show along with another sketch.

The sometime fiddle player greeted two hairy guests, Mr. Marquis Jr. and Miss Candy, like long-lost cousins when they arrived to dine at CBS-TV.

"I don't know if they'll recognize me," Jack said nervously. "After all, I haven't seen them since they were on my show the last time.

Dressed in white trousers, shirt, maroon and white striped sweater and white shoes, the chimps surveyed the studio with an expression of boredom—until they spotted the spread of bananas, puddings and coffee.

Marquis screamed in delight, hoping to tear into the banana bowl, but a word of caution from trainer Gene Detroy sent the anxious three-footer scurrying back to his chair.

A whale doesn't really spout water. When it comes to the surface after making a dive, the whale exhales and the column of warm air condenses to water vapor upon contact with the cooler air.

The waltz as it is now danced originally came from Germany.

The United States flag is said to have been named Old Glory by William Driver, master of the brig Charles Daggett, in 1831.

Chicago Grains

CHICAGO (UPI)—Soybeans were firm and other grains lower Thursday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

At the final bell, wheat was off ¼ to ⅝; corn off ⅜ to up ¼; oats off 1⅛ to up ¼; rye off ⅝ to 1½; and soybeans up ¼ to ⅝.

With winter weather and rain reported over much of the grain belt, early buying pushed up corn and soybean prices. Beans gained as much as 3 cents before profit-taking set in.

In wheat, trade was light, but the nearby contracts held firm until the close. Mills were moderate buyers. Commission houses sold. The deferred contracts were easier.

Corn was easy at the close. December showed the greatest advance earlier. Exporters and commercial interests bought the nearby delivery. There was some hedge selling in December, while northwest brokers sold March and May.

Export subsidies were granted on 539,000 bushels of corn.

Oats opened a little higher and then sold off. Cash houses bought December. Commission houses were on both sides of the market. Receipts were light.

After reaching new seasonal highs in November, soybean prices declined somewhat as local longs sold. An export house sold later, but prices were still above the previous level.

Outside markets were mixed.

Cautious Market Closes With Small Net Advance

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market fluctuated within a narrow range reflecting caution in Wall Street pending the Supreme Court ruling on the constitutionality of the Taft-Hartley Act.

The market finished with a small net gain. Industrials gave a good showing as support held among the higher grade stocks—those included in the averages which measure the rise and fall of the market.

Steels held their own with gains of more than 2 in Continental and a fraction in Bethlehem. U. S. Steel eased.

Trading declined to 3,170,000 shares from 3,940,000 shares on Wednesday. The market narrowed to 1,205 issues traded, and of these 554 declined, 445 advanced and 206 held unchanged. There were only 17 new 1959 highs reached while 48 touched new lows.

American Motors was the most active issue of the day with 148,000 shares changing hands. It closed at 89 off 6¼. Rounding out the five most active were Studebaker-Packard, Glen Alden, Revlon and Electric & Musical Industries.

Studebaker was another auto casualty losing 1¼ on the day, and closing at 26½. Chrysler countered with a rise of 1, while Ford trading ex-dividend fell more than a point and General Motors firmed.

Chicago Grains

CHICAGO (UPI)—Soybeans were firm and other grains lower Thursday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

At the final bell, wheat was off ¼ to ⅝; corn off ⅜ to up ¼; oats off 1⅛ to up ¼; rye off ⅝ to 1½; and soybeans up ¼ to ⅝.

With winter weather and rain reported over much of the grain belt, early buying pushed up corn and soybean prices. Beans gained as much as 3 cents before profit-taking set in.

In wheat, trade was light, but the nearby contracts held firm until the close. Mills were moderate buyers. Commission houses sold. The deferred contracts were easier.

Corn was easy at the close. December showed the greatest advance earlier. Exporters and commercial interests bought the nearby delivery. There was some hedge selling in December, while northwest brokers sold March and May.

Export subsidies were granted on 539,000 bushels of corn.

Oats opened a little higher and then sold off. Cash houses bought December. Commission houses were on both sides of the market. Receipts were light.

After reaching new seasonal highs in November, soybean prices declined somewhat as local longs sold. An export house sold later, but prices were still above the previous level.

Outside markets were mixed.

Cautious Market Closes With Small Net Advance

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market fluctuated within a narrow range reflecting caution in Wall Street pending the Supreme Court ruling on the constitutionality of the Taft-Hartley Act.

The market finished with a small net gain. Industrials gave a good showing as support held among the higher grade stocks—those included in the averages which measure the rise and fall of the market.

Steels held their own with gains of more than 2 in Continental and a fraction in Bethlehem. U. S. Steel eased.

Trading declined to 3,170,000 shares from 3,940,000 shares on Wednesday. The market narrowed to 1,205 issues traded, and of these 554 declined, 445 advanced and 206 held unchanged. There were only 17 new 1959 highs reached while 48 touched new lows.

American Motors was the most active issue of the day with 148,000 shares changing hands. It closed at 89 off 6¼. Rounding out the five most active were Studebaker-Packard, Glen Alden, Revlon and Electric & Musical Industries.

Studebaker was another auto casualty losing 1¼ on the day, and closing at 26½. Chrysler countered with a rise of 1, while Ford trading ex-dividend fell more than a point and General Motors firmed.

Health Group To Meet

The Cumberland-LaVale Lay Health Group will hold a special meeting Monday at 1:30 p. m. in the Red Cross room of the County Building on Union Street.

Pigs are said to be the nearest relatives to the hippopotamus.

Half-Modern, Half-Ancient, But Alive; That's Vientiane, Capital City Of Laos

By WENDELL S. MERICK

The capital of Laos has no water or sewage system and few telephones. Yet its streets are dotted with big American and European cars, its shops filled with Western goods.

The population of Vientiane is estimated (according to a recent incomplete census) at 63,000, nearly double the figure of 10 years ago. It is a mixture of Lao, several racial strains common to Laos, Chinese, Indian and Pakistani. Its big businessmen are Chinese—a common situation in Southeast Asia.

Vientiane's lone power plant generates 12,572 kilowatts, not enough for the expanding urban area. Lights frequently blink off, then on, then off again.

Water is distributed by tanker-trucks, and buildings, stores and houses keep their own storage tanks. The city will eventually have a sewage system. Today, it has none. But few Laotians notice its absence.

Only 300 Phones

About 300 telephones are installed in the city, but the majority don't work. The French government has promised Laos new telephone exchange equipment which could handle 1,500 sets, but so far the machinery hasn't arrived, and, as one Lao official says. "Why worry? Telephones don't seem to work here anyway. It is quicker to send a messenger with a note."

Despite the primitive elements, Vientiane has the air of a prosperous city. There are some 2,500 registered autos and the most popular single make is the expensive Mercedes - Benz, practically a must for a government official who wants to make face.

The principal mode of transportation, however, is the bicycle —some 5,000 of them.

Complicating the motorist's life is the network of one-way streets causing drivers to go five times as far to get where they want to go. Sometimes it is easier to walk.

Two Clipjoints

The city's two principal nightclubs are dimly - lit clipjoints where a half-ounce of whisky costs $2,000. In the dark, bills frequently are well padded.

The world's oldest profession flourishes, with its chief operators Chinese girls imported from Hong Kong and Bangkok. Prices are steep, ranging up to $100 per night.

In small shops along the main streets can be found just about every luxury item one would want — except perhaps gadgets which require electricity or power of any sort. But American canned goods, soap, cigarets, Scotch whisky—name it and it can be had for the asking. If you can afford the prices.

For a nation suffering a military-political crisis, one curious situation is the absence of policemen on the streets during the daytime. They exist, about 1,000 of them, but they are mere shadows whom one can't seem to get into focus.

Crime, however, is a comparatively minor problem. People apparently have too much else on their minds.

Half-Modern, Half-Ancient, But Alive; That's Vientiane, Capital City Of Laos

By WENDELL S. MERICK

The capital of Laos has no water or sewage system and few telephones. Yet its streets are dotted with big American and European cars, its shops filled with Western goods.

The population of Vientiane is estimated (according to a recent incomplete census) at 68,000, nearly double the figure of 10 years ago. It is a mixture of Lao, several racial strains common to Laos, Chinese, Indian and Pakistani. Its big businessmen are Chinese—a common situation in Southeast Asia.

Vientiane's lone power plant generates 12,572 kilowatts, not enough for the expanding urban area. Lights frequently blink off, then on, then off again.

Water is distributed by tanker-trucks, and buildings, stores and houses keep their own storage tanks. The city will eventually have a sewage system. Today, it has none. But few Laotians notice its absence.

Only 300 Phones

About 300 telephones are installed in the city, but the majority don't work. The French government has promised Laos new telephone exchange equipment which could handle 1,500 sets, but so far the machinery hasn't arrived, and, as one Lao official says, "Why worry? Telephones don't seem to work here anyway. It is quicker to send a messenger with a note."

Despite the primitive elements, Vientiane has the air of a prosperous city. There are some 2,500 registered autos and the most popular single make is the expensive Mercedes - Benz, practically a must for a government official who wants to make face.

The principal mode of transportation, however, is the bicycle —some 5,000 of them.

Complicating the motorist's life is the network of one-way streets causing drivers to go five times as far to get where they want to go. Sometimes it is easier to walk.

Two Clipjoints

The city's two principal nightclubs are dimly - lit clipjoints where a half-ounce of whisky costs $2,000. In the dark, bills frequently are well padded.

The world's oldest profession flourishes, with its chief operators Chinese girls imported from Hong Kong and Bangkok. Prices are steep, ranging up to $100 per night.

In small shops along the main streets can be found just about every luxury item one would want — except perhaps gadgets which require electricity or power of any sort. But American canned goods, soap, cigarets, Scotch whisky—name it and it can be had for the asking. If you can afford the prices.

For a nation suffering a military-political crisis, one curious situation is the absence of policemen on the streets during the daytime. They exist, about 1,000 of them, but they are mere shadows whom one can't seem to get into focus.

Nurse Lives Alone In North Wilderness

By ALFRED McCormack Jr.

ELY, Minn. (UPI) — A timber wolf howling on a snow-covered hilltop is a familiar sight to the "loneliest woman in American" who lives deep in the northwoods wilderness along the Minnesota-Canadian border.

Dorothy Molter, 52, is a trained nurse, graduate of Calumet High School in Chicago and a nursing school there. She became fed up with city life in 1937.

This will be the 22nd winter she has spent alone on her three connecting islands in Minnesota's famed "canoe country," where planse are forbidden to land on the lakes and travel is by canoe or snowshoe.,

Dorothy, as she prefers to be known, has prematurely white hair. Her face has been tanned by years of outdoor living to the point where she sometimes is mistaken for an Indian. She is stronger than most men. She dislikes formality and fancy dress, wears blue jeans and a shirt with only minor variations for the subzero winter.

Brings In Supplies

She must bring all her supplies over a series of lakes, streams and canoe portages which run north to her Isle of Pines of Knife Lake. She can make the 36-mile round trip to Ely in a day by canoe, bringing back seven 60-pound packs — a trip few others, including Indians and trappers would attempt except in an emergency. It is not uncommon for campers and guides to take three days making the trip one-way.

She considers herelf more the "Florence Nightingale of the Northwoods" than the "loneliest woman in America." Dorothy keeps her nursing certificate up to date, which means traveling to Chicago every few years to work in a hospital for two weeks.

"About the only thing I haven't had happen is some woman having a baby," she recalled.

Canoe Victims

Most patients are victims of canoes which overturned in the rapids, or persons who injured themselves scrambling around on sharp rocks on shore or cut themselves with an axe or knife. Occasionally, in a serious case, Dorothy paddles a canoe 15 miles down to the Canadian Customs station on Basswood Lake, where a U. S. Forest Service plane is summoned by two-way radio.

The last of the guides and canoeists disappear early in October. Then Dorothy gets ready for winter.

"It takes about three or four real good trips to bring in the food," she explained, "and then I have to start the wood chopping." Meat is obtained later, courtesy of the Minnesota - Ontario deer population.

During "freezeup," when canoe travel is impossible and the ice is too thin for snowshoeing, Dorothy is confined to her islands. The rest of the year she takes trips through the woods and along the lakes, angles for the fish or takes moving pictures.

Gradual Change In Switzerland's Climate Threatening Tourist Trade

By PETER UEBERSAX

ZURICH, Switzerland (UPI)—A gradual change in climate is threatening one of Switzerland's greatest tourist assets—the 95 big glaciers that girdle her Alpine peaks.

Like the "blue" Danube which turned a muddy gray many years ago. Switzerland's once ice-blue glaciers are getting dirtier and dirtier.

And what is worse—they are shrinking at an ever increasing rate. More and more cracks are opening up on their big, round backs that bend down over the mountain sides.

A series of long, hot summers and a marked change in the Swiss climate are the main causes of a process that has alarmed many mountain-loving Swiss.

82 Have Shrunk

A recent study by the Swiss Alpine Club said that of 89 glaciers examined by experts last year, 83 have shrunk in length anywhere between 3 and 783 feet in 12 months. Shrinkage during this abnormally warm year has been even greater, although exact figures are not yet available.

What makes this especially sad from a tourist point of view is that those glaciers which protrude farthest into the valleys and are the most easily accessible are shrinking fastest.

At the end of this unusually hot summer, mountain climbers reported that the glaciers looked "awful."

"They are covered with dirt and dust," said Walter Kuhn, a scientist employed by the Swiss We

Temperature Up

Kuhn has been making special studies on climate changes in the Swiss Alps in the months from May to September — the period that affects the size of glaciers — has risen by as much as three degrees centigrade," Kuhn said.

"A dirty glacier melts faster than a clean one. The darker its surface, the more it sbsorbs sun warmth instead of reflecting it."

Minneapolis Jeweler Has Hobby Of Photographing Celebrities

By SAM NEWLUND

Renning, a jeweler by trade makes a hobby of pestering celebrities until they agree to come to his neighborhoor jewelry store and pose for him at his work bench.

The white - haired 61-year-old Renning estimates that 250 Hollywood stars and other VIP's have posed for him peering through his jeweler's eye glass in the past eight years.

They include Bob Hope, the late Tyrone Power, Edward G. Robinson, Cornelia Otis Skinner, Adolph Menjou, Hildegarde, Joe Louis, Rocky Marciano and George Gobel, along with several opera stars and governors.

"They've got to be gig names or I don't go after them," Renning said.

Whenever he hears that a famous person is in town. Renning gets on the telephone and asks the celebrity to come to his store for a picture.

Getting the person on the line is often the toughest part. Switchboard operators and press agents have a habit of intercepting calls from strangers. But Renning never gives up.

Until eight years ago, Renning never had a hobby. And he never had owned a camera until the thought struck him that photographing celebrities would make for a pretty good pastime.

Some time later he went out and bought $1,000 worth of photographic equipment.

In 1951, Renning went after his first big name — Hildegarde, the singer. He had to play a trick to get her to come.

After several failures to reach Hildegarde by telephone. Renning decided a female voice might be more successful. His wife got on the phone, identified herself by the fictitious name of "Myrtle" and was promptly put through to the star.

With that, Renning took the telephone and calmly began his sales pitch.

Hildegarde was furious at being "tricked" and scolded Renning for his audacity. But she simmered down, decided that Renning was a "nice person" after all and agreed to come out to his shop.

Some time later he went out and bought $1,000 worth of photographic equipment.

In 1951, Renning went after his first big name — Hildegarde, the singer. He had to play a trick to get her to come.

After several failures to reach Hildegarde by telephone. Renning decided a female voice might be more successful. His wife got on the phone, identified herself by the fictitious name of "Myrtle" and was promptly put through to the star.

With that, Renning took the telephone and calmly began his sales pitch.

Hildegarde was furious at being "tricked" and scolded Renning for his audacity. But she simmered down, decided that Renning was a "nice person" after all and agreed to come out to his shop.

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN: I have a lovely home, a good husband, a teen-age son and a dog who doesn't have any better manners than a cow in the pasture.

A few weeks ago a friend asked if I'd like a 9-month old retriever. I decided to surprise my husband and son and said "yes." I must have been insane.

To begin with the "puppy" weighs 80 pounds. The first night my husband insisted I let the dog sleep in the living room. The dog cried all night and I got no sleep. The next morning it looked as if a horse had been in the house.

I told my husband the dog could not sleep where there was carpeting so he brought the animal into our bedroom which has a vinyl floor. The dog whined, scratched himself all night and bumped the bed. Again I got no rest. Nothing bothers my husband. He sleeps like a log.

When I suggested the dog be put in the breezeway my husband said "How would YOU like to sleep out there!" (Imagine putting me in the same category with a dog!)

To make a long story short, I'm in the guest room and the dog is in the bedroom. My husband cleans up after him in the morning, but it still smells like a stable in there. What shall I do?

—DOG GONE DISGUSTED.

DEAR DOG GONE: Remain in the guest room until your husband agrees to put the dog in the breezeway, the basement, or in a dog house where he belongs. If the guy doesn't put a higher premium on your company he doesn't deserve it.

DEAR ANN: I am dating a girl 22 who is a college graduate. I always thought she had a terrific outgoing personality, a nimble wit and a good brain. The second time my folks saw her they said she was "loud" and "unrefined."

I've had arguments with her because she insists on talking to strangers in movies, at the ball park, in restaurants—just anywhere. She gets involved in long conversations with people she doesn't know. Last week she started up with a group of conventioneers who had been drinking and it was embarrassing.

I'm beginning to wonder if my parents' evaluation isn't correct. Your opinion, please.

DOUBTING THOMAS.

DEAR DOUBTING: "An outgoing personality" can be an asset, but it shouldn't be going out to people she doesn't know.

Girls who start conversations with strangers create the impression they're looking for new friends. It IS unladylike and in bad taste. Tell her to cut it out, or look for a new fellow.

DEAR ANN: My daughter is 15, a fine student and never cared a hoot about boys until this year. A junior in high school has turned her head and she is just mad about him.

It burns me up the way she has turned over her life to Pat. She does his homework, wears his sweater, talks to him on the phone for hours and wouldn't think of accepting a date with another boy. He bosses her around as if he owned her and she seems to love it. I've talked myself hoarse and now I'm at the end of my rope. Please tell me what to do. IGNORED.

DEAR IGNORED: When you get to the end of the rope, Mother, tie a knot and hang on. This is her first crush. The more you knock it the more she'll defend it. Be pleasant; in fact try to find some qualities in Pat to admire. It rarely fails.

To learn how to keep your boy friend in line without losing him, send for ANN LANDER'S booklet, "Necking and Petting—And How Far To Go," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

(Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD—And still the big religious spectacles keep coming. I was visited by William Free and Alaine Rutledge and given a copy of their book, "The Son of God" which they plan to make into a 12-million dollar motion picture. An attractive young couple, they are just recently married, but have spent years writing the story of the Bible with no embellishments added to the words spoken by Jesus.

I was fascinated by many of the names the Frees gave me as their financial backers in this project: J. C. Penney, owner of the chain stores; Peter Grace, of the Grace Shipping Lines; Beaumont Allen of the May Department Stores; Lawrence Rockefeller, and the religious philanthropost, R. J. Funkhouser, Pennsylvania millionaire.

When I asked them if they knew that John Farrow had been working for 15 years to my knowledge on "The Son of Man," also the story of Christ, they replied they'd like to talk with John about directing their picture. But I have a feeling Johnny will stick to his own project.

The stock of Tab Hunter as an actor went up after "They Came to Cordura." He proved he was other than just a young good-looking leading man. Tab will play Debbie Reynolds' love interest in "Pleasure of His Company" with Fred Astaire, Lilli Palmer and Gary Merrill, which goes in January.

Before he does this, Tab goes East to be on Ethel Merman's Nov. 24 TV show and will duet with Ethel in "You're Just In Love" (from "Call Me Madam") and another tune, "Friendship." Before the end of the year he'll head for the Orient to look over an antique export-import business he's interested in acquiring.

If anyone thinks that 20-year-old Christina Crawford is making a mistake following in the footsteps of her mother Joan Crawford as an actress, such a skeptic should have listened in on Ray Boyle's conversation with me from Milwaukee. Boyle, managing director of the Fred Miller Theatre in Milwaukee (which also has a pretty fair baseball team), told me he has signed Christina for two stage plays.

"I made the trip to New York specially to have Christina read important roles for two shows," he said "and I was extremely impressed. I signed her for both 'At Christmas Time' with June Walker and also 'Dark of the Moon' with Rita Moreno. Watch Chris. You may be seeing her in Hollywood sooner than you think." Now if Joan and her talented adopted daughter will patch up recent differences, Joan could be of invaluable assistance in Chris' career.

While Doris Day and Mary Melcher were motoring through the New England states they took time out to buy "The Velvet Mountain" by Earl Felton.

Doris' idea is to have Rock Hudson co-star with her again. Their "Pillow Talk" has been a sensation at the boxoffice wherever it has played, and Rock told me that he wanted to make another picture with Doris, so you can expect to see him in "The Velvet Mountain." This will be made for Universal-International as that's Rock's studio and that's where "Pillow Talk" was produced.

On Sunday, Merle Oberon returns to her home in Mexico City. She told me that awaiting her there is little Francesca, the baby she and Bruno Pagliai adopted four months ago. "We found her in England," Merle said, "and she is half Italian and half English—just as little Bruno."

The little boy is a beauty, and in his quaint clothes looks like a Gainsborough painting. He made an appearance at Merle's party for the Henry Fords, and was fascinated with the accordion in Bernie Richards orchestra. We decided he was musical.

Merle has been offered several films, but she says she has retired to become a happy wife and mother.

The imperial ball committee of WAIF is beside itself with joy. Edd "Kookie" Byrnes is coming to their ball, and so are Rosemary and Robert Stack, and again Bob will be asked to dance with Princess Maria Cecilie. Kookie will be one of the princess' partners, too, but first "Kookie" will go to Jack Warner's party for Vice President Richard Nixon.

Those who have accepted for the imperial ball, the party Jane Russell gives every year to find American homes for European orphans, are Mary Pickford and Buddy Rogers, Donna Reed and Tony Owen, and many others. Lauritz Melchior will sing the German national anthem when the princess arrives with her father, Prince Louis Ferdinand, and her mother, the Grand Duchess Kira.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Try A Little Laziness!

A spell of laziness now and then is the best beauty builder there is. The professional beauties whom I see daily know that it's an absolute necessity for a woman to call a halt frequently to all of her activities if she wants to maintain a top-notch appearance. It takes a continually renewed body and rested nerves to have and hold the coveted, outward marks of beauty—an alert carriage, an unlined face, shining hair, steady voice, ready smile and winning disposition.

But it's a sad, sad fact that even women who understand this well let themselves get so wound up that they can't make the most of an opportunity for a lazy day when it comes along.

No one can tell you what brand of laziness will be good for you. You have to choose your own. What is relaxing for you may be jitter-making to another. While a little solitude is a restful change to me, another person deprived of companionship will spend the entire time ticking off her problems mentally. And mental stress is a real foe of beauty.

To unwind tension and fatigue, you must find a way to spend your free time that will bring relief from nagging worries. A sure way is to spend your leisure hours in some pastime so absorbing that all you can think about is it.

This list culled from conversations with the Powers Girls may give you some ideas:

From M. H.: I paint—canvas and oils. I'm not good at it, but it sure keeps me absorbed!

From P. N.: I refinish old furniture. It gives me freedom from routine and worry and a new piece for the living room as a by-product!

C. R.: I hand myself a bouquet every week from my own garden plot.

R. V.: My backhand smashes the ball and my irritations right over the net.

S. C.: Plenty of goo on my face, a book in my hand, and in no time I catch up on myself and my reading.

L. L. B.: Slathered in oil, disguised in dark glasses, I just stretch out straight in the sun and let the world go by. Guess I'm just a lazy bones.

That's the best thing any girl can be occasionally if she wants to be attractive permanently!

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD—And still the big religious spectacles keep coming. I was visited by William Free and Alaine Rutledge and given a copy of their book, "The Son of God" which they plan to make into a 12-million dollar motion picture. An attractive young couple, they are just recently married, but have spent years writing the story of the Bible with no embellishments added to the words spoken by Jesus.

I was fascinated by many of the names the Frees gave me as their financial backers in this project: J. C. Penney, owner of the chain stores; Peter Grace, of the Grace Shipping Lines; Beaumont Allen of the May Department Stores; Lawrence Rockefeller, and the religious philanthropost, R. J. Funkhouser, Pennsylvania millionaire.

When I asked them if they knew that John Farrow had been working for 15 years to my knowledge on "The Son of Man," also the story of Christ, they replied they'd like to talk with John about directing their picture. But I have a feeling Johnny will stick to his own project.

The stock of Tab Hunter as an actor went up after "They Came to Cordura." He proved he was other than just a young good-looking leading man. Tab will play Debbie Reynolds' love interest in "Pleasure of His Company" with Fred Astaire, Lilli Palmer and Gary Merrill, which goes in January.

Before he does this, Tab goes East to be on Ethel Merman's Nov. 24 TV show and will duet with Ethel in "You're Just In Love" (from "Call Me Madam") and another tune, "Friendship." Before the end of the year he'll head for the Orient to look over an antique export-import business he's interested in acquiring.

If anyone thinks that 20-year-old Christina Crawford is making a mistake following in the footsteps of her mother Joan Crawford as an actress, such a skeptic should have listened in on Ray Boyle's conversation with me from Milwaukee. Boyle, managing director of the Fred Miller Theatre in Milwaukee (which also has a pretty fair baseball team), told me he has signed Christina for two stage plays.

"I made the trip to New York specially to have Christina read important roles for two shows," he said "and I was extremely impressed. I signed her for both 'At Christmas Time' with June Walker and also 'Dark of the Moon' with Rita Moreno. Watch Chris. You may be seeing her in Hollywood sooner than you think." Now if Joan and her talented adopted daughter will patch up recent differences, Joan could be of invaluable assistance in Chris' career.

While Doris Day and Mary Melcher were motoring through the New England states they took time out to buy "The Velvet Mountain" by Earl Felton.

Doris' idea is to have Rock Hudson co-star with her again. Their "Pillow Talk" has been a sensation at the boxoffice wherever it has played, and Rock told me that he wanted to make another picture with Doris, so you can expect to see him in "The Velvet Mountain." This will be made for Universal-International as that's Rock's studio and that's where "Pillow Talk" was produced.

On Sunday, Merle Oberon returns to her home in Mexico City. She told me that awaiting her there is little Francesca, the baby she and Bruno Pagliai adopted four months ago. "We found her in England," Merle said, "and she is half Italian and half English—just as little Bruno."

The little boy is a beauty, and in his quaint clothes looks like a Gainsborough painting. He made an appearance at Merle's party for the Henry Fords, and was fascinated with the accordion in Bernie Richards orchestra. We decided he was musical.

Merle has been offered several films, but she says she has retired to become a happy wife and mother.

The imperial ball committee of WAIF is beside itself with joy. Edd "Kookie" Byrnes is coming to their ball, and so are Rosemary and Robert Stack, and again Bob will be asked to dance with Princess Maria Cecilie. Kookie will be one of the princess' partners, too, but first "Kookie" will go to Jack Warner's party for Vice President Richard Nixon.

Those who have accepted for the imperial ball, the party Jane Russell gives every year to find American homes for European orphans, are Mary Pickford and Buddy Rogers, Donna Reed and Tony Owen, and many others. Lauritz Melchior will sing the German national anthem when the princess arrives with her father, Prince Louis Ferdinand, and her mother, the Grand Duchess Kira.

International Meeting Of Movie Censors Favored

By ROBERT MUSEL

LONDON (UPI) — The British censor was talking about the good old days of movie-making when boys fell in love with girls, couples got married before they went on their honeymoons and the only four letter word in the dialogue was "love.' '

He was harking back to this golden era because some films in the last three years have been so realistic or so saage that even the French have had to raise the age limit for seeing "adult only' pictures from 16 to 18.

"Perhaps," said John Trevelyan, Secretary of the British Board of Film Censors, "the time has come for an international meeting of censors to consider where the industry is going. I mean there must be limits somewhere."

In Britain, the minimum age for adult films will probably remain at 16 although, Trevelyan said, there might be some advantages in raising it for pictures featuring violence and brutality.

"The adolescent age group should not be exposed to too much of this sort of thing —they are too imitative at that age."

But he said he wasn't worried about the effect of sex or nudity on British youngsters.

"The French raised their limit because they are puritans at heart," he said, "and they want to preserve sex for the grownups, which is a good idea if it can be done. The Americans also are more concerned about sex in films than other things.

"But our teen-agers regard it as amusing, rather than anything worse, so we only cut out the more obvious stuff, the cruder things. We even allow nudist films up to a point, for example and believe me on screen there is nothing duller.

"Realism, intelligently handled is excellent stuff for the cinema," he said. "But producers must realize that people do not react the same way to the same situation all over the world. That is why it would be to their advantage to know from the censors how far they can go in each country, and tailor their scripts accordingly."

Elizabeth Records Christmas Message

LONDON (AP) — Recordings of Queen Elizabeth's traditional Christmas message will be sent early to Commonwealth countries so her subjects around the world can hear her speech Christmas Day.

In past years, when the Queen made her broadcast live from London, recordings of the speech were not heard in such countries as New Zealand and Australia until the following day, because of the time difference.

The Queen, who is expecting a baby early in 1960, will not be making her usual television appearance on Christmas Day.

Use Of Guitar Becoming Popular With Many Recording Artists

By WILLIAM D. LAFFLER

NEW YORK (UPI) — The guitar has been a popular instrument on records since the days of Edison, mostly because of the perennial demand for hillbilly music. Now, with the development of hi-fi, it has come into its own as an internaitonal musical machine.

"Solo Flamenco" by Sabicas (ABC Paramount ABC-304) is a delightful illustration of the depth of the guitar. Sabicas was once a child prodigy and with the years have come the embellishments of experience. Here is a rousing grouping of Spanish tunes played with gypsy fervor.

"Blood Wedding Suite" by Vicente Gomez (Decca DL-8918) is another brilliant piece of guitar virtuosity. Gomez, regarded as a giant performer for many years, plays his own compositions and those of Victor Young, F. Tarrega and Ferdinand Sor.

Two guitars share equal billing with a harp on "On Stage," by Luis Alberto Del Parana and his Trio Los Paraguayos (Epic LN-3594). Here too, is a sunburst of Spanish music played with such enthusiasm that even the casual listener will involve himself in the goings-on.

Katharine Hepburn Cast As Mother Of Elizabeth Taylor In Recent Movie

By HENRY GEIS

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Katharine Hepburn, who was young enough to play John Barrymores daughter in her first film, is now old enough to play Elizabeth Taylor's mother-in-law, and that—at 50—is exactly what she's doing.

For the angular, freckle-faced redhead is no more reluctant to play her age than she is to admit it. Miss Hepburn was born (in Hartford, Conn.) on Nov. 8, 1909, and from now on she espects to do "fiftyish" roles. It's as simple and as straightforward as that.

In her latest movie, "Suddenly, Last Summer," recently completed in London, she depicts a lonely bitter dowager whose son is married to Miss Taylor.

Sam Spiegel, producer of the film, believes "Katie" is embarking on a new career. He compares her to the late Ethel Barrymore. "If I had produced this film back in the 1930's I would have cast Miss Barrymore in the role of Mrs. Venable Katie Hepburn fits it perfectly now," he said.

Some critics say the Hepburn mannerisms bear a marked resemblance to thos of the late actress. This could be true, since Miss Hepburn maintained a long personal friendship with Miss Barrymore and regarded her as a mentor.

To move from romantic leads into the shoes of an Ethel Barrymore is more than most glamor gals could accomplish. But Katharine Hepburn has always defied the stereotype of a Hollywood heroine.

She ran around in a baggy sweater and blue jeans long before such costume became acceptable. Most of the money she has earned is salted away in careful investments. She has been able to move smoothly from movie lots into Shavian and Shakespearean roles on Broadway.

Her dramatic talent has been praised highly and just as hotly condemned. In 1938, a film exhibitor dismissed her as "box office poison." Bu5 20 years later she could still draw crowds to the movies.

A 50th birthday may affect the kind of roles Miss Hepburn will play but it hasn't slowed her down. She still possesses an electric vitality and undauntedly pursues her golf, tennis and sw'imming.

Egyptian Relations Appear Improving

Relations between the United States and the United Arab Republic at last give evidence of improving, in contrast to the hectic days of a few years ago when it appeared Russian inroads into the confidence of the Egyptians might become all-pervading. Soviet influence in the federated states of Syria and Egypt is still strong, but it has cooled perceptibly.

The proposed Aswan dam, one of the sore points which caused Arab-American friction, is still not built, but Egyptians are reminded almost daily by the Cairo press that Moscow promises Russian technicians and builders will be there soon to begin work on the $100 million project. It is the promise of this dam which has kept Russian influence alive in the arid lands.

A policy of "quiet diplomacy" has been adopted by American attaches in Cairo. Financial aid, once halted because President Nasser refused to accept any conditions attached to monetary gifts, has been resumed. Various U.S.-Egypt teams are working on projects such as reclaiming farmland from the expanse of salt flats bordering the Nile, medical research and airport safety.

As a result of a business trip to Washington by the minister of the treasury and economy, Egypt has been assured that further economic aid will be forthcoming, and private investment is reported to show signs of increased interest. Senator Fulbright, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, calls for the turning of a new leaf in relations between the United Arab Republic and the United States.

There have been serious differences between Cairo and Washington in the past, but this is certainly not a new development in international relations. Fortunately, the issues which caused friction are fading with the passing of time.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

Nehru's Dilemma

Nehru, who rules modern India through the Congress Party, is the father of his own difficulties. His country, after it was given its independence by Great Britain, sought a technique for being all things to all sides. To avoid war or being involved in diplomatic difficulties, Nehru adopted the remoteness of philosophy. He remained within the Commonwealth, although he abhorred the Empire. He accepted American aid but also sought and got Russian aid. He was opposed to all forms of imperialism but attempted to build an Indian Ocean hegemony. He denied the overlordship of any nation but established one in Kashmir. He worked out a co-existence with Red China in collaboration with Chou En-lai but was forced to give refuge to Red China's enemy, the Dalai Lama of Tibet. Everlastingly prattling about peace, he is now on the verge of war with Red China.

Nehru's problem is that he cannot control the course of history. It works its way through channels which he cannot master. For instance, the establishment of the Communist state in Kerala might have been averted if Nehru had found jobs for thousands of intellectuals who are out of work. Perhaps he might have achieved that by establishing a system of general compulsory education from the kindergarten to the university. That would have given B.A.'s and M.A.'s jobs.

In India, this would not only require a huge outlay of funds, as it does anywhere, but it would come in conflict with local customs and local languages and dialects and amazing varieties of religious practices. At any rate, he had to put down the Communists in Kerala and thus deny himself the glory of complete and perfect toleration of evil as well as good. His life has been a constant compromise with what he says he believes to be true.

Perhaps Nehru will learn that the Platonic life that he leads, far from the madding crowd and the realism of immediate problems, is a luxury which the upper middle class of India could enjoy when Great Britain manned the boundaries and kept other conquerors out. India has had a long history of being conquered and of being held by aliens who ultimately became Indians of one sort or another. The British sealed the borders and for two centuries kept out other invaders, particularly the Russians and the Chinese. The great luxury of the upper and middle classes in India was protected by British arms and diplomacy.

The Russians had no claim on India but held that what Clive could do by sea, some Russians could do by land. Russia was like a snowball, blown in all directions by the winds of circumstance and growing ever larger as it rolled on. The Khyber Pass was an invitation to take India but Russia, under the Czars, did not seek a war with England. The Czars, like the present Communists, believed in the inevitability of Russia's conquest of the world, and when they looked at the map, there was ample reason for their conclusions.

Although China was a dismembered country much of this century, suffering from spheres of influence, territorial possessions by foreign countries, concessions, settlements, extraterritoriality, etc., etc., nevertheless in every Chinese memory were the great days of the Middle Kingdom, when Peking was the center of the Universe and when nations from distant places sent tribute to the Manchu court.

Although the Chinese overthrew the Manchus and became a Republic, controlled by Warlords, they were very proud of Manchu operations, particularly of such a regime as that of the Emperor Chien Lung when China was most expanded.

This is a problem that faces Nehru, because Communist China is using nationalistic expansion as an off-set to the hard times which the Commune plans imposed on an otherwise gay people. The Chinese like war, despite what has been written about their pacifism. I once calculated that there has not been a century of peace in all of Chinese history. Their greatest historical novel, the "San Kuo," really a vast collection of folk history, deals with wars and carnage. Confucius wrote so lovingly of peace because he lived in the midst of war. The Revolution of 1912 let loose the militarism of the nation and not the Constitutionalists took over but the Warlords.

It is this Chinese militarism that Nehru is now encountering and he does not know what to do about it.

FCC Has Ducked Responsibility Of Rigged Television Shows

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — Charles Van Doren's public confession of deception recalls some earlier testimony regarding deception by the man who is supposed to keep the networks clean. He is John Doerfer, appointed chairman of the Federal Communications Commission with the blessing and urging of the late Sen. Joe McCarthy.

When Doerfer was called to testify regarding rigged quiz programs, he gave all sorts of alibis as to why the FCC has not required a more honest brand of programming.

"Has the commission authority to prevent programs which perpetrate fraud?" asked Rep. John Moss of California.

"There is a good deal of doubt about that," replied the FCC chairman.

"Under the act," pressed Moss, referring to the act of Congress creating the FCC, "the commission has the right to stop false and misleading statements."

"We can't get into specifics," replied the man who is supposed to police the networks. "We must consider the all-over situation."

"What authority does the commission have over the networks?" asked committee counsel Lishman.

"It has no authority over the networks, only the licensee," replied Doerfer.

This was dodging the issue and Congressman Rogers of Texas picked Doerfer up on it. Rogers knew that every TV and radio network is permitted to own its own basic network of radio and TV stations, some of them more profitable than the network. All the FCC has to do is cancel one or more of these stations—or even threaten to—and the network will stand on its hind feet and beg forgiveness.

"Does the commission have the power to revoke licenses?" asked Rogers.

"Yes," admitted Doerfer, "it has the rule-making power."

"It has the power against deceit and fraud?" pressed Rogers.

"Certain types," admitted Doerfer. "It doesn't need rules, but it must be illegal frauds, deceit of misrepresentation."

"Should you have the power to deal with these other types?"

"I don't think the commission should have the power to rule off quiz programs," replied the man who took a solemn oath to enforce the laws of Congress which specify that programs must be for the public good.

Doerfer's Own Deceit

The real weakness of Chairman Doerfer's position, however, was not touched upon by the Congressmen who cross-examined him. This was the fact that Doerfer was also guilty of fraud and deceit in connection with his expense accounts. So were the other members of the commission. Obviously it is difficult for those who have been guilty of deceit themselves to make such a charge against the networks.

Chairman Doerfer, according to sworn evidence before the Moulder Committee, took a trip to Oklahoma City in 1956, paid for by Station KWTV, then continued on to Spokane, Wash., then back to Washington, D. C., taking his wife along. For the first part of this trip he was reimbursed by KWTV, then was given $575 by the Association of Radio and TV Broadcasters to cover the Spokane leg of the trip. Yet he turned around and charged the government for his own travel from Oklahoma City to Spokane and Spokane to Washington, plus $12 a day expense money.

When Chairman Doerfer was caught with this deceitful expense account he tried to alibi that he was only trying to keep in touch with the radio-TV industry. However, Comptroller General Joseph Campbell, an Eisenhower appointee, ruled Dec. 24, 1957, that it was highly unethical first for Doerfer and other members of the FCC to take trips at the expense of the TV industry; and second to then turn round and charge the government for those trips.

Chairman Doerfer had to undergo an embarrassing experience somewhat like that of Charles Van Doren. Appearing publicly before the Congressional investigating committee, he alibied rather than repented. All this put him in a difficult position to crack down on other deceit on the networks.

Whether Doerfer will ever police the networks is highly doubtful. He has become too obligated to them. Dr. Bernard Schwartz, the former counsel of the Harris Committee, summed up the reasons why the present FCC is not going to clean up the networks in the following secret memo he submitted to Congress:

"The Federal Communications Commission is the supreme court of the communications industry . . . if the commissioners have acted in a manner that would be deemed improper in a judge, they have not lived up to such (judicial) powers . . .

"A commissioner was fully reimbursed by the industry for the expenses incurred by him and his wife in attending an industry convention at which he delivered an address. This commissioner also claimed from and was paid by the government his full expenses (travel and per diem) to attend the same convention. Such a duplication of expense accounts apparently involves a criminal felony in that a 'false, fictitious, or fraudulent' claim was filed against the United States within the meaning of 18 U. S. C. 287 by the commissioner in question. See also 18 U. S. C. 1001. 1914.

"Members of the commission have had their room, board, and other expenses (E. G., cafe, valet, golf fees, etc.) paid by the industry while attending industry conventions. At the same time, these commissioners have claimed and received per diem from the government for living expenses incurred by them in attending the same conventions.

Supreme Court Seen Upholding Strike Order

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON—The Supreme Court of the United States will uphold the order of the lower court requiring the striking steel workers to go back to work—if precedents and court decisions of the past are respected.

For there would be a greater calamity for the labor unions if the injunctive powers were held not to be within the power of Congress to confer upon the Federal courts. It would mean that all the orders issued for the last 20 years by courts as a consequence of decisions by the National Labor Relations Board, requiring employers to "reinstate" discharged employes, now would be of doubtful validity.

On the surface, it might appear that no law of Congress could compel any man to go to work against his will or an employer to rehire a dismissed employe. But when an order to terminate a strike for 80 days, as provided in the Taft-Hartley Law, is issued by a court, it doesn't compel any individual to go back to work. It applies rather to the power of a union to keep members from returning to their jobs. The court order is directed to the union or members acting in concert rather than to the choice by an individual worker. Similarly, an employer can fire a worker for inefficiency but not just because he is a member of a union.

The theory that has governed Congressional power with respect to labor-management relations is that each individual has a right to work or not to work but that no organization—either a labor union or an employer group—can exercise arbitrary power over individuals without being subject to Federal law when interstate commerce is involved. This principle is derived from the so-called "commerce clause" of the Constitution, which says that Congress has the power to regulate interstate commerce. All the laws relating to monopolies, to trusts and combinations of any kind are based on that part of the Constitution.

Union labor, of course, doesn't come under any antitrust laws today, but there is no doubt that Congress has the Constitutional power to enact such laws whenever it pleases.

It was when Congress passed the railway labor act in 1926 that the first step was taken to require the recognition of unions by the railroads whenever a majority of the employes vote to do their bargaining through unions. Later on in 1935, Congress passed the Wagner Act, which gave legal recognition to the principle of compulsory collective bargaining in all industries engaged in interstate commerce. The Taft-Hartley Act of 1947 reaffirmed this requirement.

There have been many cases before the Supreme Court of the United States contesting the validity of orders issued by the National Labor Relations Board, but the power of Congress to write laws governing labor-management relations has been consistently upheld. Indeed, there have been a number of cases in which the right of Congress to pass laws authorizing injunctions and back-to-work orders has gone to the Supreme Court to be construed. At one time the coal miners union fought a legal battle against such a court order even though the law provided for government seizure of the mines. The labor leaders contested the back-to-work order, but the Supreme Court upheld the injunction as well as the power of Congress to write laws providing for such injunctions.

The theory back of all these laws is that the union is a group of individuals who collectively exercise or attempt to exercise rights over other individuals and that failure by a union to obey a court injunction constitutes a conspiracy to violate the law.

To topple over now the right of Congress to authorize the courts to issue injunctions against any strike that occurs during a national emergency is to imperil the whole legal structure on which labor's rights of collective bargaining have been built up. It is true that the lawyers for the steelworkers unions have conceded that, when a "real emergency" arises, the executive and not the courts must prove that such an emergency has occurred. On this point, however, the Supreme Court can hardly substitute its own judgement in the current steel strike for the facts as proclaimed by the President of the United States.

Based, therefore, on previous cases and precedents, it would appear that the union leaders have wasted a precious period of more than two weeks by their legal battle questioning the constitutionality of the Taft-Hartley Act's provisions dealing with a national emergency. The workers might already have been receiving wages so sorely needed by their families. Not only have many millions of dollars of income been taken from the workers but millions of tons of steel production have been taken from the American people, including workers in industries other than steel.

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

IKE-NIXON RIFT? — You can discount those reports of a rift between President Eisenhower and Vice President Richard M. Nixon over Russian policy.

A story has been going the Washington rounds that the two have fallen out over the invitation to Nikita Khrushchev to visit the United States. According to the account, Nixon was opposed to the visit and has been trying to disassociate himself from it.

But all efforts to trace it to its source have been in vain. No one in a position to know will own up to it, either on or off the record. All of them denounce it as untrue—a smear—and an obvious effort to put Nixon in a bad light.

The fact is that President Eisenhower has spoken of Nixon in the highest terms through the years, and just recently has praised him unstintingly for his good showing in Russia.

TIT FOR TAT? — Now that N. Y. Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller has decided to make a "non-political" invasion of California, it is natural to assume that Vice President Richard M. Nixon will reply in kind, and schedule a trip into New York state.

Nixon has a number of standing invitations to cities in the state, if he decides to make the effort. One thing is certain, if he does invade the state it will not be New York City, but rather some up-state community where he is known to have strength. He wants to make a good showing.

However, there is no certainty that Nixon will choose to play the game this way. First of all, he wants to wait until after Rockefeller's West Coast visit in order to assess the New Yorker's actual political strength and appeal outside his own stamping grounds.

Nixon may well conclude that Rockefeller's presidential potential is not as strong as claimed. In that event, he may play the part of the gallant foe and let the incursion go unanswered.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

By Jim Bishop

A young lady of fifteen writes to ask me if she is old enough to "make a decision which will affect my whole life." She did not tell me the problem, but from long experience with girls, I would guess that it concerns: Home. School. A boy — one of them or all three.

I will not tell her name, so we'll call her Cora. She says that I am her hero, which shows that her judgment is open to suspicion. Why a gray-haired sawed-off runt of 52 when the world is full of Tab Hunters? Cora is, as Gayle says in her brand of elegant English, slightly shook.

It occurs to me that no one is old enough to make a big decision alone. If this isn't so, then why do the big corporations have boards of directors? Why does the President of the United States need a cabinet and a congress? Why do doctors call other doctors as consultants? Why don't we have one supreme court justice instead of nine?

The wise thing for Cora, I would suggest, is to think out her problems and then bring them to her mother and father for review. If her parents are unsympathetic, take the problem to two older relatives.

At 15, I had a tremendous problem. I fell in love with the girl who lived downstairs. She never even answered my hello when we passed in the hall. I wanted to die for her, and I think she was willing to let me.

She was in love with John Gilbert. My only consolation was that he wouldn't say hello to her if they passed each other in the hall. I used to lie in bed thinking of dramatic ways of killing myself so that this girl would feel sorry when I was gone. I couldn't take the problem to my mother or my father because their solution to these delicate matters was epsom salts in a glass of cider.

I went to the lady next door. She was a friend of the family and I swore her to secrecy. Then I unburdened my heart and told her the story. She understood. She had once been in love with a piano player in a silent movie house. Every afternoon after school the lady next door would ask me more about my tragic love. It's a strange thing: the more I talked it out, the less affection I felt for the girl downstairs.

Cora should know that, every year, about 30,000 boys and girls of 15 leave home. Each one has a problem. Each one makes a decision all by himself, and the decision is always wrong because, while we may be able to run away from our families, we cannot run away from that face we see in the morning mirror.

One of God's gentle jests is that, into each 15-year-old, he puts enormous pride, super-sensitivity, good intellect and practically no common sense. No one is more easily offended, no one is closer to tears or laughter.

Lieut. John Cronin of the Missing Persons Bureau in New York City is a wise man. He isn't wise enough to make his own decisions — Cronin has superiors — but he has enough wisdom to list the reasons why 600 boys and girls of 15 leave home in New York each year.

They are: 1. Distaste of school. 2. Disagreeable home surroundings. 3. Spirit of adventure. 4. Greed of parents for child's earnings. 5. Foreign-born parents trying to instill old world traditions in young minds.

Cora's problem may not fall into any of those categories. Whatever it may be, I can assure her that she will not solve it by (1). Leaving home. (2). Dropping out of school. (3). Defying her parents. (4). Losing her self-respect. (5). Committing a wrong with a boy.

Cora is correct in one assumption: she thinks I remember what it is like to be 15. I do, I do. It's the most soulful, most beautiful, most heartbreaking time of life. It is wretched and wonderful, a time of budding adolescence and dying childhood. No one understood me. I didn't understand myself. I had pimples.

I'm not glib. I cannot give answers to love problems. But I'm pretty good at devising the safe course for young ladies, because that's the kind I raised. I savvy them, even when they don't make much sense to anybody else.

You know what's worse than having a love problem? Not having any. . .

Why Children May Get Migraine Headaches

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Migraine headaches in children are traced frequently to inability of the youngster to express hostility toward parents and teachers. The boy or girl is unable to fight back and headache is the outcome of mounting resentment and growing tension.

The type of distress is not much different from that which occurs in adults. It is associated usually with extreme nausea and projectile vomiting. In some cases vomiting is more bothersome than head pain.

It is difficult to say why one child suffers from headache when under duress, whereas others do not. Many psychological factors enter the picture and the episode is likely to follow a period of anxiety, overprotection, frustration, or feelings of guilt.

These young migraine victims tend to be intense, intelligent, and ambitious. They are aware of everything about them, and in many respects are ahead of the game. Yet they are frustrated or blocked at every turn by well meaning but overanxious adults.

Others develop headache because their parents and teachers are perfectionists and expect too much from them. Headache follows excitement, fatigue, or tension, and sometimes is precipitated by nonemotional agents such as overexposure to the sun or to loud noises.

Temporary relief follows taking the usual remedies for migraine such as ergotamine tartrate with caffeine alone or in combination with a tranquilizer. Aspirin is of little value.

More permanent relief is obtained when the parents cooperate by taking stock of their own behavior and living conditions. It helps to lessen tension in the home and to allow the child to proceed at his own pace. This takes time and understanding.

This type of treatment is impossible when the mother or father is mentally upset and cannot cope with the situation. In such instances, the parent is sicker than the child—a case of the blind leading the blind.

INFLAMED DUODENUM

E. D. writes: Is duodenitis similar to ulcer?

REPLY

No, but the two may coexist. Duodenitis is inflammation of the first segment of the small intestine. The lining becomes red and swollen. An ulcer is a hole or crater that develops in the wall of the duodenum near the outlet of the stomach. It is associated with too much acid and overactivity of the stomach.

OXYGEN

Mrs. B. C. writes: Why isn't nasal oxygen used for heart attacks? Wouldn't it be more beneficial than an oxygen tent?

REPLY

Both supply oxygen. In this respect, one method is no more effective than another. Nasal oxygen is less expensive than the tent but many patients object to having a tube in the nose. In addition, the current of oxygen through the tube leads to dryness of the throat. The tent, on the other hand, is cooler and more pleasant.

FEARS STARVATION

Mrs. D. writes: My doctor put me on an 800 calorie diet and my weight didn't budge a bit. Now he wants me to cut it down to 600 calories and, if that doesn't work, to 400. Won't I starve to death?

REPLY

No. Methinks you are more interested in food than in reducing.

(Dr. Van Dellen will send a leaflet on migraine if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request).

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Taft's tailor arrived to try on the President's new Prince Albert, and was hustled into the reception line by zealous guards. "How do you do, Major Pants."

Egyptian Relations Appear Improving

Relations between the United States and the United Arab Republic at last give evidence of improving, in contrast to the hectic days of a few years ago when it appeared Russian inroads into the confidence of the Egyptians might become all-pervading. Soviet influence in the federated states of Syria and Egypt is still strong, but it has cooled perceptibly.

The proposed Aswan dam, one of the sore points which caused Arab-American friction, is still not built, but Egyptians are reminded almost daily by the Cairo press that Moscow promises Russian technicians and builders will be there soon to begin work on the $100 million project. It is the promise of this dam which has kept Russian influence alive in the arid lands.

A policy of "quiet diplomacy" has been adopted by American attaches in Cairo. Financial aid, once halted because President Nasser refused to accept any conditions attached to monetary gifts, has been resumed. Various U.S.-Egypt teams are working on projects such as reclaiming farmland from the expanse of salt flats bordering the Nile, medical research and airport safety.

As a result of a business trip to Washington by the minister of the treasury and economy, Egypt has been assured that further economic aid will be forthcoming, and private investment is reported to show signs of increased interest. Senator Fulbright, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, calls for the turning of a new leaf in relations between the United Arab Republic and the United States.

There have been serious differences between Cairo and Washington in the past, but this is certainly not a new development in international relations. Fortunately, the issues which caused friction are fading with the passing of time.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

Nehru's Dilemma

Nehru, who rules modern India through the Congress Party, is the father of his own difficulties. His country, after it was given its independence by Great Britain, sought a technique for being all things to all sides. To avoid war or being involved in diplomatic difficulties, Nehru adopted the remoteness of philosophy. He remained within the Commonwealth, although he abhorred the Empire. He accepted American aid but also sought and got Russian aid. He was opposed to all forms of imperialism but attempted to build an Indian Ocean hegemony. He denied the overlordship of any nation but established one in Kashmir. He worked out a co-existence with Red China in collaboration with Chou En-lai but was forced to give refuge to Red China's enemy, the Dalai Lama of Tibet. Everlastingly prattling about peace, he is now on the verge of war with Red China.

Nehru's problem is that he cannot control the course of history. It works its way through channels which he cannot master. For instance, the establishment of the Communist state in Kerala might have been averted if Nehru had found jobs for thousands of intellectuals who are out of work. Perhaps he might have achieved that by establishing a system of general compulsory education from the kindergarten to the university. That would have given B.A.'s and M.A.'s jobs.

In India, this would not only require a huge outlay of funds, as it does anywhere, but it would come in conflict with local customs and local languages and dialects and amazing varieties of religious practices. At any rate, he had to put down the Communists in Kerala and thus deny himself the glory of complete and perfect toleration of evil as well as good. His life has been a constant compromise with what he says he believes to be true.

Perhaps Nehru will learn that the Platonic life that he leads, far from the madding crowd and the realism of immediate problems, is a luxury which the upper middle class of India could enjoy when Great Britain manned the boundaries and kept other conquerors out. India has had a long history of being conquered and of being held by aliens who ultimately became Indians of one sort or another. The British sealed the borders and for two centuries kept out other invaders, particularly the Russians and the Chinese. The great luxury of the upper and middle classes in India was protected by British arms and diplomacy.

The Russians had no claim on India but held that what Clive could do by sea, some Russians could do by land. Russia was like a snowball, blown in all directions by the winds of circumstance and growing ever larger as it rolled on. The Khyber Pass was an invitation to take India but Russia, under the Czars, did not seek a war with England. The Czars, like the present Communists, believed in the inevitability of Russia's conquest of the world, and when they looked at the map, there was ample reason for their conclusions.

Although China was a dismembered country much of this century, suffering from spheres of influence, territorial possessions by foreign countries, concessions, settlements, extraterritoriality, etc., etc., nevertheless in every Chinese memory were the great days of the Middle Kingdom, when Peking was the center of the Universe and when nations from distant places sent tribute to the Manchu court.

Although the Chinese overthrew the Manchus and became a Republic, controlled by Warlords, they were very proud of Manchu operations, particularly of such a regime as that of the Emperor Chien Lung when China was most expanded.

This is a problem that faces Nehru, because Communist China is using nationalistic expansion as an off-set to the hard times which the Commune plans imposed on an otherwise gay people. The Chinese like war, despite what has been written about their pacifism. I once calculated that there has not been a century of peace in all of Chinese history. Their greatest historical novel, the "San Kuo," really a vast collection of folk history, deals with wars and carnage. Confucius wrote so lovingly of peace because he lived in the midst of war. The Revolution of 1912 let loose the militarism of the nation and not the Constitutionalists took over but the Warlords.

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — Charles Van Doren's public confession of deception recalls some earlier testimony regarding deception by the man who is supposed to keep the networks clean. He is John Doerfer, appointed chairman of the Federal Communications Commission with the blessing and urging of the late Sen. Joe McCarthy.

When Doerfer was called to testify regarding rigged quiz programs, he gave all sorts of alibis as to why the FCC has not required a more honest brand of programming.

"Has the commission authority to prevent programs which perpetrate fraud?" asked Rep. John Moss of California.

"There is a good deal of doubt about that," replied the FCC chairman.

"Under the act," pressed Moss, referring to the act of Congress creating the FCC, "the commission has the right to stop false and misleading statements."

"We can't get into specifics," replied the man who is supposed to police the networks. "We must consider the all-over situation."

"What authority does the commission have over the networks?" asked committee counsel Lishman.

"It has no authority over the networks, only the licensee," replied Doerfer.

This was dodging the issue and Congressman Rogers of Texas picked Doerfer up on it. Rogers knew that every TV and radio network is permitted to own its own basic network of radio and TV stations, some of them more profitable than the network. All the FCC has to do is cancel one or more of these stations—or even threaten to—and the network will stand on its hind feet and beg forgiveness.

"Does the commission have the power to revoke licenses?" asked Rogers.

"Yes," admitted Doerfer, "it has the rule-making power."

"It has the power against deceit and fraud?" pressed Rogers.

"Certain types," admitted Doerfer. "It doesn't need rules, but it must be illegal frauds, deceit of misrepresentation."

"Should you have the power to deal with these other types?"

"I don't think the commission should have the power to rule off quiz programs," replied the man who took a solemn oath to enforce the laws of Congress which specify that programs must be for the public good.

Doerfer's Own Deceit

The real weakness of Chairman Doerfer's position, however, was not touched upon by the Congressmen who cross-examined him. Supreme Court Seen Upholding Strike Order

The workers might already have been receiving wages so sorely needed by their families. Not only have many millions of dollars of income been taken from the workers but millions of tons of steel production have been taken from the American people, including workers in industries other than steel.

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

IKE-NIXON RIFT? — You can discount those reports of a rift between President Eisenhower and Vice President Richard M. Nixon over Russian policy.

A story has been going the Washington rounds that the two have fallen out over the invitation to Nikita Khrushchev to visit the United States. According to the account, Nixon was opposed to the visit and has been trying to disassociate himself from it.

But all efforts to trace it to its source have been in vain. No one in a position to know will own up to it, either on or off the record. All of them denounce it as untrue—a smear—and an obvious effort to put Nixon in a bad light.

The fact is that President Eisenhower has spoken of Nixon in the highest terms through the years, and just recently has praised him unstintingly for his good showing in Russia.

TIT FOR TAT? — Now that N. Y. Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller has decided to make a "non-political" invasion of California, it is natural to assume that Vice President Richard M. Nixon will reply in kind, and schedule a trip into New York state.

Nixon has a number of standing invitations to cities in the state, if he decides to make the effort. One thing is certain, if he does invade the state it will not be New York City, but rather some up-state community where he is known to have strength. He wants to make a good showing.

However, there is no certainty that Nixon will choose to play the game this way. First of all, he wants to wait until after Rockefeller's West Coast visit in order to assess the New Yorker's actual political strength and appeal outside his own stamping grounds.

Nixon may well conclude that Rockefeller's presidential potential is not as strong as claimed. In that event, he may play the part of the gallant foe and let the incursion go unanswered.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

By Jim Bishop

A young lady of fifteen writes to ask me if she is old enough to "make a decision which will affect my whole life." She did not tell me the problem, but from long experience with girls, I would guess that it concerns: Home. School. A boy — one of them or all three.

I will not tell her name, so we'll call her Cora. She says that I am her hero, which shows that her judgment is open to suspicion. Why a gray-haired sawed-off runt of 52 when the world is full of Tab Hunters? Cora is, as Gayle says in her brand of elegant English, slightly shook.

It occurs to me that no one is old enough to make a big decision alone. If this isn't so, then why do the big corporations have boards of directors? Why does the President of the United States need a cabinet and a congress? Why do doctors call other doctors as consultants? Why don't we have one supreme court justice instead of nine?

The wise thing for Cora, I would suggest, is to think out her problems and then bring them to her mother and father for review. If her parents are unsympathetic, take the problem to two older relatives.

At 15, I had a tremendous problem. I fell in love with the girl who lived downstairs. She never even answered my hello when we passed in the hall. I wanted to die for her, and I think she was willing to let me.

She was in love with John Gilbert. My only consolation was that he wouldn't say hello to her if they passed each other in the hall. I used to lie in bed thinking of dramatic ways of killing myself so that this girl would feel sorry when I was gone. I couldn't take the problem to my mother or my father because their solution to these delicate matters was epsom salts in a glass of cider.

I went to the lady next door. She was a friend of the family and I swore her to secrecy. Then I unburdened my heart and told her the story. She understood. She had once been in love with a piano player in a silent movie house. Every afternoon after school the lady next door would ask me more about my tragic love. It's a strange thing: the more I talked it out, the less affection I felt for the girl downstairs.

Cora should know that, every year, about 30,000 boys and girls of 15 leave home. Each one has a problem. Each one makes a decision all by himself, and the decision is always wrong because, while we may be able to run away from our families, we cannot run away from that face we see in the morning mirror.

One of God's gentle jests is that, into each 15-year-old, he puts enormous pride, super-sensitivity, good intellect and practically no common sense. No one is more easily offended, no one is closer to tears or laughter.

Lieut. John Cronin of the Missing Persons Bureau in New York City is a wise man. He isn't wise enough to make his own decisions — Cronin has superiors — but he has enough wisdom to list the reasons why 600 boys and girls of 15 leave home in New York each year.

They are: 1. Distaste of school. 2. Disagreeable home surroundings. 3. Spirit of adventure. 4. Greed of parents for child's earnings. 5. Foreign-born parents trying to instill old world traditions in young minds.

Cora's problem may not fall into any of those categories. Whatever it may be, I can assure her that she will not solve it by (1). Leaving home. (2). Dropping out of school. (3). Defying her parents. (4). Losing her self-respect. (5). Committing a wrong with a boy.

Cora is correct in one assumption: she thinks I remember what it is like to be 15. I do, I do. It's the most soulful, most beautiful, most heartbreaking time of life. It is wretched and wonderful, a time of budding adolescence and dying childhood. No one understood me. I didn't understand myself. I had pimples.

I'm not glib. I cannot give answers to love problems. But I'm pretty good at devising the safe course for young ladies, because that's the kind I raised. I savvy them, even when they don't make much sense to anybody else.

You know what's worse than having a love problem? Not having any. . .

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Migraine headaches in children are traced frequently to inability of the youngster to express hostility toward parents and teachers. The boy or girl is unable to fight back and headache is the outcome of mounting resentment and growing tension.

The type of distress is not much different from that which occurs in adults. It is associated usually with extreme nausea and projectile vomiting. In some cases vomiting is more bothersome than head pain.

It is difficult to say why one child suffers from headache when under duress, whereas others do not. Many psychological factors enter the picture and the episode is likely to follow a period of anxiety, overprotection, frustration, or feelings of guilt.

These young migraine victims tend to be intense, intelligent, and ambitious. They are aware of everything about them, and in many respects are ahead of the game. Yet they are frustrated or blocked at every turn by well meaning but overanxious adults.

Others develop headache because their parents and teachers are perfectionists and expect too much from them. Headache follows excitement, fatigue, or tension, and sometimes is precipitated by nonemotional agents such as overexposure to the sun or to loud noises.

Temporary relief follows taking the usual remedies for migraine such as ergotamine tartrate with caffeine alone or in combination with a tranquilizer. Aspirin is of little value.

More permanent relief is obtained when the parents cooperate by taking stock of their own behavior and living conditions. It helps to lessen tension in the home and to allow the child to proceed at his own pace. This takes time and understanding.

This type of treatment is impossible when the mother or father is mentally upset and cannot cope with the situation. In such instances, the parent is sicker than the child—a case of the blind leading the blind.

INFLAMED DUODENUM

E. D. writes: Is duodenitis similar to ulcer?

REPLY

No, but the two may coexist. Duodenitis is inflammation of the first segment of the small intestine. The lining becomes red and swollen. An ulcer is a hole or crater that develops in the wall of the duodenum near the outlet of the stomach. It is associated with too much acid and overactivity of the stomach.

OXYGEN

Mrs. B. C. writes: Why isn't nasal oxygen used for heart attacks? Wouldn't it be more beneficial than an oxygen tent?

REPLY

Both supply oxygen. In this respect, one method is no more effective than another. Nasal oxygen is less expensive than the tent but many patients object to having a tube in the nose. In addition, the current of oxygen through the tube leads to dryness of the throat. The tent, on the other hand, is cooler and more pleasant.

FEARS STARVATION

Mrs. D. writes: My doctor put me on an 800 calorie diet and my weight didn't budge a bit. Now he wants me to cut it down to 600 calories and, if that doesn't work, to 400. Won't I starve to death?

REPLY

No. Methinks you are more interested in food than in reducing.

(Dr. Van Dellen will send a leaflet on migraine if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request).

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

President William Howard Taft was holding a reception in the White House for some military V. I. P.s and members of foreign embassies. Taft's tailor arrived to try on the President's new Prince Albert, and was hustled into the reception line by zealous guards. When he reached the President, Taft remarked, "You look very familiar to me." "Naturally, Mr. President, chuckled the tailor. "I made your pants." "Ah, yes," said the President, nudging him along. "How do you do, Major Pants."

Grade Students Take Tour Of City Filtration Plant

Thirty-two Columbia Street fourth graders were taken on a tour of the city's filtration plant and water facilities at Lake Gordon yesterday.

The tour is the result of a project instituted by Howard Gilpin, a student teacher, who will be graduated from Frostburg State Teachers College in February.

Gilpin said the project is basically scientific, showing the relationships between water, carbon dioxide, plant and fish life, or in other words the balance of nature. It started with a regular classroom aquarium, the group began talking about what kills fish life and eventually led to the need for filtration of water.

The tour was arranged through the cooperation of Ralph R. Webster, county superintendent of schools, Miss Catherine Thomas, Columbia Street principal; Water Commissioner G. Ray Light and Sanitary Engineer Franklin J. Blaney.

The group, accompanied by some parents, traveled to Lake Gordon by bus. Following the tour, a picnic area was set up by Blaney and the students ate lunch prepared by the school cafeteria.

LANCASTER, Pa. (UPI)—Hamilton Watch Co. has bought control of Wallace Silversmiths Ind., Wallingford, Conn., for about $5,500,000. The company said it paid $18 a share for 304,996 of the 305,106 outstanding shares of Wallace common stock.

County Delegates Attend PTA Meeting In Baltimore

Allegany County Council of Parents and Teachers was represented in Baltimore yesterday at the opening session of the annual meeting of the Maryland Congress of Parents and Teachers.

Designated delegates from the county are Mrs. Paul Gipe, Bowling Green, and Herbert Dye, Midland. Also attending are Mrs. Virginia Buckalew, Frostburg, county council president, and Arthur Howard, Flintstone.

Mayor Harold Grady of Baltimore yesterday repeated to the Congress what he already had told the state's teachers: School expenses are going up so fast the city must have a broader tax base.

Grady addressed the opening session of the 44th annual state PTA convention. About 300 of the 1,000 expected delegates were present.

He asked the delegates to take back to their counties a full understanding of the city's proposed earnings tax. Gov. Tawes last month refused to call a special session of the General Assembly to give the city the necessary approval to impose the new tax.

Grady said that Baltimore school expenses are expanding three times faster than are income from property assessments.

Search German Ship

Informed sources said the freighter was suspected of carrying a consignment of arms to North Africa for the Algerian rebels.

Underwriters Recommend Two More Fire Companies

The National Board of Fire Underwriters has recommended that the City of Cumberland establish new engine companies at Headquarters and in the vicinity of Louisiana Avenue and Williams Street.

Police and Fire Commissioner Philmore Fleming and Fire Chief Virgil A. Parker said the proposal is contained in a report on a survey made here last April by Engineers A. H. Selleck, Carl L. Frick Jr., and Assistant Engineer William E. Proper in cooperation with the Maryland Fire Underwriters Rating Bureau. Cumberland received a fifth class rating in the 1959 survey, a rise of one class over 1949, and this should have a reducing effect on fire insurance rates.

The aditional engine company should be equipped with pumpers of at least 750 gallons per minute capacity, the report said.

It was also recommended that: Sufficient men be appointed to the department at once so that there will be at least four men on duty at all times with each engine and ladder company; the recently adopted building code and Fire Prevention Code should be rigidly enforced; that proper authority be given to the Middle Department Association of Fire Underwriters to enforce the municipal electrical ordinances and that permits be required and inspections made of all new electrical work: that owners of existing defectively constructed buildings which involve a serious life hazard or are so located so as to form conflagration breeders be required to protect floor, fire wall and exposed window openings; and that approved automatic sprinkler equipment be required in all buildings which by reason of their size, construction or occupancy involve a serious life hazard or might act as conflagration breeders.

These were the major recommendations as they pertained to the Fire Department.

Among others were these: That the assistant chief on duty respond to all alarms except those known to be of a minor nature; that sufficient company officers be appointed so that there will be one on duty at all times with each ladder and engine company.

It was recommended that as soon as possible and practicable, department membership be increased so that the least number on duty at all times, will be seven men with each high valve engine and ladder company and five men with the remaining and recommended engine companies.

It also urged the addition of equipment to the pumper and ladder truck and requested rules and regulations be brought up to date, printed and distributed to all members and properly enforced; that suitable training facilities be provided in an area where the use of smoke and water will not be restricted and that training be expanded to include frequent practice at the grounds by companies, both individually and combined, daily company drills and schools in quarters; that company members regularly make inspections of buildings in their respective areas and the information documented for use in the training program; that the response to box alarms and to telephone alarms for fires in buildings be at least the ladder, two engine companies and a chief officer; and that complete records, including those of hose, training and company activities be maintained.

In looking at the fire alarm system, the report urged a full-time fire alarm superintendent to properly maintain it; that a regular qualified operator be on duty at all times; that fire alarm headquarters be relocated to a fire-resistant building to reduce possibility of service interruption: that a transmitter be provided and with telephone and radio setup installed at alarm headquarters; install additional boxes so one will be visible from and be within 500 feet of every building in high value districts and within 800 feet of every building in closely-built sections.

It also recommended steps by which the reliability of fire alarms could be increased.

Dedication Of Armory Postponed

The dedication of the new State Armory in Ridgedale Addition has been postponed until next spring, Lt. Col. Robert C. Matlick, commanding officer of the 115th Medium Tank Battalion, Maryland National Guard, announced yesterday.

The armory's interior has been completed by the contractor, the John I. Vandegrift Company, but outside work remains to be done.

It had been hoped that the dedication would have been scheduled for Veterans Day, next Wednesday, but Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckford, state adjutant general, decided to wait until the exterior is finished.

Col. Matlick said Headquarters, Headquarters Company and Company C of the tank battalion has not been given orders to move its equipment from the old armory on North Centre Street.

But he said the Quartermasters Department of the National Guard has stocked coal in the new building located on Brown Avenue.

Work that remains to be done on the outside includes blacktopping the drives, grading and installing curbing.

Brown Avenue leading to the armory has been dug up for the installation of a sewer and water lines, and City Engineer C. R. Nuzum said the city is waiting for the earth to settle before paving it.

This will not be done, Nuzum told Gen. Reckord, until next spring.

After the completion of these jobs, Gen. Reckord said the dedication ceremonies will be held.

Major Leaks Located In Water Main

The loss from the four leaks Blaney estimated at around a quarter-million gallons of water daily. A number of smaller leaks were also discovered during the 11-mile walk, Blaney said.

Some of the leaks were the result of logging operations, and at least one of the major leaks is the result of a hole having been bored in the main, and left unplugged.

It is assumed that the hole was made by loggers who wished to get fresh water, Blaney stated. Work on repairing the leaks is expected to begin next week.

It was also learned during the walking tour that logging roads had run over the water line right-of-way, and that much debris had been left about the area. The persons responsible will be ordered to clean up, Blaney said.

The new water main line will be walked next week to try and locate any major leaks, he added.

Dedication Of Armory Postponed

The dedication of the new State Armory in Ridgedale Addition has been postponed until next spring, Lt. Col. Robert C. Matlick, commanding officer of the 115th Medium Tank Battalion, Maryland National Guard, announced yesterday.

The armory's interior has been completed by the contractor, the John I. Vandegrift Company, but outside work remains to be done.

It had been hoped that the dedication would have been scheduled for Veterans Day, next Wednesday, but Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckford, state adjutant general, decided to wait until the exterior is finished.

Col. Matlick said Headquarters, Headquarters Company and Company C of the tank battalion has not been given orders to move its equipment from the old armory on North Centre Street.

But he said the Quartermasters Department of the National Guard has stocked coal in the new building located on Brown Avenue.

Major Leaks Located In Water Main

The loss from the four leaks Blaney estimated at around a quarter-million gallons of water daily. A number of smaller leaks were also discovered during the 11-mile walk, Blaney said.

Some of the leaks were the result of logging operations, and at least one of the major leaks is the result of a hole having been bored in the main, and left unplugged.

It is assumed that the hole was made by loggers who wished to get fresh water, Blaney stated. Work on repairing the leaks is expected to begin next week.

It was also learned during the walking tour that logging roads had run over the water line right-of-way, and that much debris had been left about the area. The persons responsible will be ordered to clean up, Blaney said.

Harrisburg's Attempts To Solve Traffic Problems Dramatic And Encouraging

By JAMES SCHOETTLER
United Press International

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI) — The problems of downtown Harrisburg are serious and difficult. The attempts to solve them have been dramatic and encouraging.

Pennsylvania's capital city is criss-crossed by major east-west and north-south through routes that connect the four corners of the state. The shopping district is jammed into a four-block-wide strip between the Susquehanna River and the main line of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

State government buildings take a huge bite out of what's left of the area between the river and the railroad — and disgorge 14,000 people into downtown streets every weekday afternoon at five.

Ten years ago, this congestion was aggravated by the fact that the city was connected with its big "West Shore" suburbs across the river by only two bridges, which carried through traffic as well as commuters and shoppers right into downtown Harrisburg.

New Bridges Built

Today, new bridges, expressways, elevated highways and a parking lot in the middle of the river are helping Harrisburg to keep up with the increase in traffic, and maybe one jump ahead.

The city is also rearranging traffic flow to keep cars, trucks, and buses moving faster and more safely. Streets are being made one-way, and on the main business street, one lane is reserved for buses.

Harrisburg's skyline, once dominated by the Capitol dome and the Market Square Presbyterian Church spire, is being transformed. Five new tall buildings are either under construction or in the planning stage. Three of these, including a 19-story apartment house now going up, are part of a new project designed to replace a slum area within two blocks of the Capitol. The housing authority plans to have 1,430 units in use by 1961.

State Helps

The state, which has spent 35 million dollars on new buildings and repairs and renovations for old ones in the last 10 years, plans to spend another 16 million dollars in Harrisburg within the next two years.

Mayor Nolan F. Zeigler says that not only the buildings and the streets but the people of Harrisburg as well are undergoing a change.

"Perhaps the biggest change," the Mayor said, "is that the people of Harrisburg have been awakened to what is happening, to the problems the city faces. They were asleep before. Now one person after another is devoting time and energy to helping the city."

1 teaspoon pepper
4 tablespoons mixed dried savory and marjoram
1 cup chopped parsley
2 cans (10½ oz.) oyster stew

Prepare bread crumbs. Saute onion and celery in the shortening until onion is transparent and add to the crumbs. Add seasoning and parsley and moisten with the oyster stew. Toss with a fork until lightly blended.

Stuff and truss the bird. Put leftover dressing in a casserole and bake it in the oven with the turkey for about 45 minutes before the bird is ready for the table.

Cooler Days Invite This Meat Soup

Acting as almost a meal in itself, this soup is delicately seasoned and highlights ground beef. The beef is shaped into tiny meat balls to add character and a variety of shapes to this wholesome fall luncheon or supper entree.

Italian Meat Ball Soup

4 medium onions, sliced
3 tablespoons butter
¼ cup cracker crumbs
¼ teaspoon salt
1 egg, beaten
1 teaspoon lemon juice
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 tablespoon lard or drippings
1 can (10½ ounces) condensed beef bouillon soup
2 cups water
1 beef bouillon cube
⅛ teaspoon rosemary
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 medium tomato

Cook onion in butter or margarine until tender. Combine ground beef, cracker crumbs, salt, egg, lemon juice and 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce. Shape into 24 tiny meat balls, using a rounded teaspoon per ball. Brown on all sides in lard or drippings. Pour off drippings. Add browned meat balls, beef bouillon soup, water, bouillon cube, rosemary, salt and Worcestershire sauce to cooked onion rings. Cover tightly and simmer 15 minutes. Peel tomato, cut into strips and remove seeds. Add to soup, cover and cook about 1 minute. Yield: 4 to 5 servings.

Mexicale Pie

1½ pounds ground beef
½ cup chopped onion
2 tablespoons shortening
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup ketchup
¼ cup water
1 teaspoon chili powder
1 teaspoon vinegar
1 package (12 ounces) corn muffin mix

Heat oven to 350°F. (moderate). Brown meat and onion in shortening in skillet. Stir in salt and next 4 ingredients; simmer 10 minutes. Prepare muffin mix as directed on package. Spread batter evenly on bottom and sides of greased baking dish (11½" x 7⅜" x 1½"). Spoon meat mixture into corn crust. Bake 30 minutes or until cornbread is done. Makes 6 servings.

Mexican Rice

1 cup rice
3 tablespoons shortening
½ pound ground beef
½ cup chopped onion
1 clove garlic, minced
1 can (1 pound) tomatoes
1½ cups water
½ cup ketchup
1 tablespoon chili powder
2 tablespoons salt

Lightly brown rice in shortening in large skillet, stirring frequently. Add ground beef, onion and garlic; cook, stirring, until meat browns. Add tomatoes and remaining ingredients. Cover; simmer 30 minutes, stirring occasionally, until rice is tender and liquid absorbed. Makes 4-6 servings.

To make fine bread crumbs in the electric blender, crumb just one slice of bread at a time; blend on high until finely crumbled and then empty the glass container into a measuring cup; continue the process until you have the needed amounts of crumbs.

Slick Trick For October Luncheon

In meal planning, often times, it's the combination that counts. Certainly two peppy partners that make a wonderful luncheon combination are pork sausage patties and applesauce. In this case, it's pink applesauce.

Pork sausage patties, pink applesauce and corn bread sticks . . . wouldn't your family enjoy this meal on a brisk October afternoon?

This fall, pork is playing a stellar role in meal planning due to its abundant supply and high nutriive value. Pork, as we all know, is an excellent source of protein and B vitamins, being especially high in thiamine.

Sausage, Pink Applesauce

1 pound pork sausage
2 tablespoons water
1 can (16 ounces) applesauce
1 teaspoon lemon juice
3 tablespoons cinnamon candies

Shape sausage into 4 patties about ¾ inch thick. Add water to patties in frying-pan. Cover tightly and simmer 15 minutes. Pour off drippings. Brown patties on both sides. Combine applesauce, lemon juice and cinnamon candies and add to sausage. Heat through. Yield: 4 servings.

Cooler Days Invite This Meat Soup

Acting as almost a meal in itself, this soup is delicately seasoned and highlights ground beef. The beef is shaped into tiny meat balls to add character and a variety of shapes to this wholesome fall luncheon or supper entree.

Italian Meat Ball Soup

½ pound ground beef
4 medium onions, sliced
3 tablespoons butter
¼ cup cracker crumbs
¼ teaspoon salt
1 egg, beaten
1 teaspoon lemon juice
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 tablespoon lard or drippings
1 can (10½ ounces) condensed beef bouillon soup
2 cups water
1 beef bouillon cube
⅛ teaspoon rosemary
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 medium tomato

Cook onion in butter or margarine until tender. Combine ground beef, cracker crumbs, salt, egg, lemon juice and 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce. Shape into 24 tiny meat balls, using a rounded teaspoon per ball. Brown on all sides in lard or drippings. Pour off drippings. Add browned meat balls, beef bouillon soup, water, bouillon cube, rosemary, salt and Worcestershire sauce to cooked onion rings. Cover tightly and simmer 15 minutes. Peel tomato, cut into strips and remove seeds. Add to soup, cover and cook about 1 minute. Yield: 4 to 5 servings.

Mexicale Pie

1½ pounds ground beef
½ cup chopped onion
2 tablespoons shortening
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup ketchup
¼ cup water
1 teaspoon chili powder
1 teaspoon vinegar
1 package (12 ounces) corn muffin mix

Heat oven to 350°F. (moderate). Brown meat and onion in shortening in skillet. Stir in salt and next 4 ingredients; simmer 10 minutes. Prepare muffin mix as directed on package. Spread batter evenly on bottom and sides of greased baking dish (11½" x 7⅝" x 1½"). Spoon meat mixture into corn crust. Bake 30 minutes or until cornbread is done. Makes 6 servings.

Mexican Rice

1 cup rice
3 tablespoons shortening
½ pound ground beef
½ cup chopped onion
1 clove garlic, minced
1 can (1 pound) tomatoes
1½ cups water
½ cup ketchup
1 tablespoon chili powder
2 tablespoons salt

Lightly brown rice in shortening in large skillet, stirring frequently. Add ground beef, onion and garlic; cook, stirring, until meat browns. Add tomatoes and remaining ingredients. Cover; simmer 30 minutes, stirring occasionally, until rice is tender and liquid absorbed. Makes 4-6 servings.

To make fine bread crumbs in the electric blender, crumb just one slice of bread at a time; blend on high until finely crumbled and then empty the glass container into a measuring cup; continue the process until you have the needed amounts of crumbs.

Slick Trick For October Luncheon

In meal planning, often times, it's the combination that counts. Certainly two peppy partners that make a wonderful luncheon combination are pork sausage patties and applesauce. In this case, it's pink applesauce.

Pork sausage patties, pink applesauce and corn bread sticks . . . wouldn't your family enjoy this meal on a brisk October afternoon?

This fall, pork is playing a stellar role in meal planning due to its abundant supply and high nutriive value. Pork, as we all know, is an excellent source of protein and B vitamins, being especially high in thiamine.

Sausage, Pink Applesauce

1 pound pork sausage
2 tablespoons water
1 can (16 ounces) applesauce
1 teaspoon lemon juice
3 tablespoons cinnamon candies

Shape sausage into 4 patties about ¾ inch thick. Add water to patties in frying-pan. Cover tightly and simmer 15 minutes. Pour off drippings. Brown patties on both sides. Combine applesauce, lemon juice and cinnamon candies and add to sausage. Heat through. Yield: 4 servings.

Molasses Flavor Popular In Cookies And Cider

With the return of fall, refreshment service has moved from patio and porch to the family living room. In keeping with the homey atmosphere are molasses treats for late afternoon or evening snacks.

A delightful way to vary and dress up cider is with whole cloves, sticks of cinnamon and unsulphured molasses. The cider, served warm, is a delightful beverage of a brisk autumn night.

In keeping with the welcoming cheer of the cider are molasses cookies . . . big, almost of cake texture, and molasses-popular of flavor. There's a welcoming aroma throughout the house when molasses cookies have been baked.

Store-bought doughnuts are a refreshment choice morning, noon or night. They couple well in popularity with the molasses cookies.

Molasses Spiced Cider

12 whole cloves
2 quarts cider
¾ cup unsulphured molasses
2 2-inch sticks cinnamon
⅓ cup lemon juice

Stud lemon slices with cloves. Combine cider, unsulphured molasses, cinnamon and lemon slices in a large saucepan. Bring to a boil, reduce heat and simmer 15 minutes. Remove cinnamon sticks. Add lemon juice. Serve hot in mugs.

Yield: 8 servings.

Molasses Walnut Mounds

1 cup unsulphured molasses
½ cup shortening
1 egg
3 tablespoons hot water
2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon soda
½ teaspoon each, salt, cinnamon, cloves, ginger and nutmeg
Walnut halves

Mix together unsulphured molasses, shortening and egg; stir in hot water. Sift together flour, soda, salt and spices. Gradually add to molasses mixture, stirring until well blended. Drop by heaping tablespoonfuls on greased baking sheet. Top each with walnut half. Bake in a moderately hot oven (400°F.) 8 minutes. To store, place cooled cookies in tightly covered container.

Yield: Approximately 24 cookies.

Shrimp Ho-Ho

1 pound green shrimp
1 medium cucumber
1 can (4 ounces) pimiento, drained
¼ cup butter or margarine
1¼ teaspoons salt
¼ cup ketchup
1½ cups milk
1½ tablespoons cornstarch
2 tablespoons sherry

Clean shrimp; split lengthwise. Pare cucumber; remove seeds. Cut lengthwise into 16 strips, then crosswise into quarters. Cut pimiento into strips. Saute shrimp in butter in saucepan 3 minutes. Add cucumber, pimiento and salt; cook, covered, 3 minutes. Stir in ketchup and 1 cup milk. Blend cornstarch with remaining milk; stir into shrimp mixture. Cook, stirring, until mixture comes to a boil and thickens slightly. Stir in sherry. Serve over hot cooked rice. Makes 4-5 servings.

Shrimp Curry

¾ pound cooked shrimp, fresh or frozen
½ cup chopped onion
¼ cup chopped onion
¼ cup butter or other fat, melted
¼ cup flour
1 teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
1¾ cups chicken broth or bouillon
1½ teaspoons curry powder
½ cup applesauce
3 cups cooked rice
Curry condiments

Thaw frozen shrimp. Cook onion in butter until tender. Blend in flour, salt, and pepper. Add broth gradually and cook until thick, stirring constantly. Add curry powder, applesauce, and shrimp; heat. Serve on rice with any of the following curry condiments. Serves 6.

Curry Condiments

Chopped hard-cooked egg whites
Sieved hard-cooked egg yolks
Chopped salted peanuts
Chopped green onion tops
Chopped tomatoes
Chutney
Freshly grated coconut

Supper Quickie

1 pound ocean perch fillets or other fish fillets, fresh or frozen
3 tablespoons chopped green pepper
¼ cup butter or other fat, melted
3 tablespoons chopped pimiento
1 can (4 ounces) sliced mushrooms, drained
1 can (10½ ounces) condensed mushroom soup
½ cup milk
½ teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
1 tablespoon sherry
2 cans (5½ ounces each) chow mein noodles or toast points

Thaw frozen fillets and skin if necessary. Cut into 1-inch pieces. Cook green pepper in butter until tender. Add fish and continue cooking for 5 minutes or until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. Add pimiento, mushrooms, mushroom soup, milk, salt, and pepper. Heat. Stir in sherry. Serve over noodles. Serves 6.

Molasses Flavor Popular In Cookies And Cider

With the return of fall, refreshment service has moved from patio and porch to the family living room. In keeping with the homey atmosphere are molasses treats for late afternoon or evening snacks.

A delightful way to vary and dress up cider is with whole cloves, sticks of cinnamon and unsulphured molasses. The cider, served warm, is a delightful beverage of a brisk autumn night.

In keeping with the welcoming cheer of the cider are molasses cookies . . . big, almost of cake texture, and molasses-popular of flavor. There's a welcoming aroma throughout the house when molasses cookies have been baked.

Store-bought doughnuts are a refreshment choice morning, noon or night. They couple well in popularity with the molasses cookies.

Molasses Spiced Cider

12 whole cloves
2 quarts cider
¾ cup unsulphured molasses
2 2-inch sticks cinnamon
⅓ cup lemon juice

Stud lemon slices with cloves. Combine cider, unsulphured molasses, cinnamon and lemon slices in a large saucepan. Bring to a boil, reduce heat and simmer 15 minutes. Remove cinnamon sticks. Add lemon juice. Serve hot in mugs.

Yield: 8 servings.

Molasses Walnut Mounds

1 cup unsulphured molasses
½ cup shortening
1 egg
3 tablespoons hot water
2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon soda
½ teaspoon each, salt, cinnamon, cloves, ginger and nutmeg
Walnut halves

Mix together unsulphured molasses, shortening and egg; stir in hot water. Sift together flour, soda, salt and spices. Gradually add to molasses mixture, stirring until well blended. Drop by heaping tablespoonfuls on greased baking sheet. Top each with walnut half. Bake in a moderately hot oven (400°F.) 8 minutes. To store, place cooled cookies in tightly covered container.

Yield: Approximately 24 cookies.

Shrimp Ho-Ho

1 pound green shrimp
1 medium cucumber
1 can (4 ounces) pimiento, drained
¼ cup butter or margarine
1¼ teaspoons salt
¼ cup ketchup
1½ cups milk
1½ tablespoons cornstarch
2 tablespoons sherry

Clean shrimp; split lengthwise. Pare cucumber; remove seeds. Cut lengthwise into 16 strips, then crosswise into quarters. Cut pimiento into strips. Saute shrimp in butter in saucepan 3 minutes. Add cucumber, pimiento and salt; cook, covered, 3 minutes. Stir in ketchup and 1 cup milk. Blend cornstarch with remaining milk; stir into shrimp mixture. Cook, stirring, until mixture comes to a boil and thickens slightly. Stir in sherry. Serve over hot cooked rice. Makes 4-5 servings.

Shrimp Curry

¾ pound cooked shrimp, fresh or frozen
½ cup chopped onion
¼ cup chopped onion
¼ cup butter or other fat, melted
¾ cup flour
1 teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
1¾ cups chicken broth or bouillon
1½ teaspoons curry powder
½ cup applesauce
3 cups cooked rice
Curry condiments

Thaw frozen shrimp. Cook onion in butter until tender. Blend in flour, salt, and pepper. Add broth gradually and cook until thick, stirring constantly. Add curry powder, applesauce, and shrimp; heat. Serve on rice with any of the following curry condiments. Serves 6.

Curry Condiments

Chopped hard-cooked egg whites
Sieved hard-cooked egg yolks
Chopped salted peanuts
Chopped green onion tops
Chopped tomatoes
Chutney
Freshly grated coconut

Supper Quickie

1 pound ocean perch fillets or other fish fillets, fresh or frozen
3 tablespoons chopped green pepper
¼ cup butter or other fat, melted
3 tablespoons chopped pimiento
1 can (4 ounces) sliced mushrooms, drained
1 can (10½ ounces) condensed mushroom soup
½ cup milk
½ teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
1 tablespoon sherry
2 cans (5½ ounces each) chow mein noodles or toast points

Thaw frozen fillets and skin if necessary. Cut into 1-inch pieces. Cook green pepper in butter until tender. Add fish and continue cooking for 5 minutes or until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. Add pimiento, mushrooms, mushroom soup, milk, salt, and pepper. Heat. Stir in Sherry. Serve over noodles. Serves 6.

Open Face Hamburg

Open Face Hamburg Imperial, for spectacular easy-to-serve flavor supreme version of America's favorite: hamburger with onion. Quick, one-dish meal for after-the-game parties that will thrill the family, too!

Pound hamburger, or ground round steak
2 large white or yellow onions, peeled and sliced ⅜ inch thick
Onion salt
Salt and pepper
King size hamburger buns, only 3
Makes 6

Cook under the oven broiler, rotisserie or over charcoal grill. Season hamburger with onion salt, salt and pepper. Mould by hand into thick, bun-size patties. Broil or grill to "rare" or "well done" as desired. Warm or lightly toast buttered bun halves. Cut peeled large onions in thick ⅜-inch slices and broil or grill on one side until golden brown. While piping hot, place cooked hamburger on bun half; top with two slices grilled onion. Serve open-top. Garnish with green onions. For hearty appetites serve in pairs on individual small platters or large dinner plates.

Increase recipe as required for number served.

Waffles Will Break Ice In A Hurry

Now here is an idea! Why not have one of your children host a get acquainted party for the new student? It could be a lot of fun. Plan an afternoon or early evening supper.

Arrange a waffle feast. Have plenty of sirup, jam and jellies available. The waffle recipe is an easy one as well as being a basic recipe. Below the recipe, you'll find three variations given to really create interest. First, there are instructions for chocolate waffles, next bacon waffles and finally, nut waffles.

Waffles

2 cups sifted enriched flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
2 eggs, separated
1¾ cups milk
6 tablespoons melted lard
1 tablespoon sugar, if desired

Sift together flour, baking powder and salt. Add egg yolks and milk and beat thoroughly. Add melted lard. Beat egg whites and fold into batter. Bake in a hot waffle iron. Yield: three 9½-inch square waffles.

Variations:

Chocolate Waffles: Substitute 3 tablespoons of cocoa for 3 tablespoons of flour in basic recipe. Add 2 tablespoons of sugar instead of one.

Tuna Crunch

1½ tablespoons margarine or butter
¼ cup coarsely chopped onion
¼ cup coarsely chopped celery
1 egg, beaten
1 can cream of celery soup—10½ oz.
⅛ cup milk
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
2 dashes Tabasco
1 can chunk-style tuna—6½ oz.

1. Heat oven to moderate (350°). Butter a shallow 1-quart baking dish.
2. Crush ½ cup Corn biscuit to ¼ cup.
3. Melt margarine over medium heat. Add onion and celery. Cook until slightly brown (about 5 minutes).
4. Combine egg and soup. Stir and add milk gradually.
5. Mix in onion mixture, mustard, Tabasco, tuna and whole Corn biscuit.
6. Pour into baking dish. Sprinkle crushed corn over top.
7. Bake 40 minutes, or until browned.

Fruited Ginger Ring

As flavorful and good as it is attractive . . . that's Fruited Ginger Ring. Its spicy tang combines ginger, cinnamon, currants and candied fruit peel.

Serve it warm with orange or lemon sauce to enhance the zesty fruit flavor. Or, cool the cake and serve it with generous scoops of ice cream. Either way, you have the perfect dessert.

Fruited Ginger Ring

2 cups sifted enriched flour
½ teaspoon soda
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon ginger
¼ cup currants
¼ cup chopped candied fruit peel
½ cup shortening
¼ cup brown sugar
1 egg
¾ cup molasses
½ cup hot water

Sift together flour, soda, salt, cinnamon and ginger. Add currants and fruit peel. Cream together shortening and sugar until light and fluffy. Add egg and beat well. Stir molasses and hot water, mixing until well blended. Add sifted dry ingredients and mix until smooth. Turn batter into well-greased 9-inch ring mold or 7 x 11-inch pan. Bake in slow oven (325° F.) about 45 minutes. Serve warm with orange or lemon sauce.

Makes one 9-inch ring or 7 x 11-inch cake.

Children Favor Mother's Liver-Pineapple Patties

How often do you serve variety meats in your home? If your family is reluctant to endorse a meal highlighting variety meats, your problem is solved.

Not only will it be solved but the children will probably be the first to ask for seconds.

Liver-Pineapple Patties

1 pound sliced liver
6 slices bacon
2 tablespoons lard or drippings
1 cup soft bread crumbs
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
1 egg, beaten
⅛ cup catchup
6 pineapple slices

Cook liver in lard or drippings until lightly browned on both sides. Grind liver. Add bread crumbs, salt and pepper to liver. Stir in Worcestershire sauce, egg and catchup. Shape into 6 patties, using approximately ⅓ cup for each. Cut each bacon slice in half. Crisscross bacon halves and place a patty in the center of each. Wrap bacon around patty and place on pineapple ring with bacon ends down. Place liver-pineapple patties on a rack in an open roasting pan. Bake in a moderate oven (350° F.) 45 to 50 minutes. Yield: 6 servings.

The term "playing percentages," though it has mysterious connotations for many players, is nothing more than selecting the play which has the better chance of success. The mathematicians have spared us the necessity of working the things out for ourselves, and it is appropriate for us to accept the figures which they have reached by dint of hard labor and infinite patience.

Against today's three no trump contract, West led the six of diamonds and four tricks in that suit were rattled off. Dummy discarded a heart and declarer a club. West continued with the six of clubs and declarer won in dummy with the king.

At this point it appears on the surface that declarer has eight more tricks to cash: six spades, another club, and a heart. The rub, however, is that South has no entry to permit the cashing of the ace of clubs. Holding nine spades, declarer chose a line of play which depended on each adversary holding two of the suit. If that were the case, the ace and king of spades would pick up the outstanding cards and the eight of spades would become an entry to the South hand. When East failed to follow to the second lead, declarer's hopes were shattered, he was obliged to concede a heart trick at the end for down one.

Now for the mathematical findings of our statisticians (which you are asked to accept as gospel). The chances of four cards breaking 2-2, are not very good. The 3-1 split is more probable.

South, therefore, had less than an even chance to develop the eight of spades as an entry. The better play was to overtake the king of clubs with the ace and try the heart finesse. A finesse is exactly a 50-50 chance. It is true that this line of play risks going down two tricks instead of one, but 100 points is a small price to pay for the increased chance of making the contract.

Menu Varied With Sesame Veal Chops

To some homemakers, however, sesame seeds may be a complete new way to enhance a recipe. Particularly in a veal recipe such as this, sesame seeds add that certain flavor to highlight the mild taste of veal.

Veal, being young beef with very little fat, requires moist heat cookery. In this acclaimed recipe, the veal rib chops are first browned. The braising is accomplished in a covered baking dish in a slow oven.

In addition to the flavor of the sesame seeds, chopped onion, green beans and celery soup all have the opportunity to lend their individual flavors to the veal chop casserole.

Sesame Veal Chops

6 rib veal chops, cut ½ to ¾ inch thick
1 egg, beaten
2 tablespoons milk
¼ cup flour
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon paprika
2 tablespoons sesame seeds, toasted (if desired)
⅓ cup lard or drippings
2 packages (10 ounces each) frozen green beans, cooked
2 tablespoons finely chopped onion
1 can (10½ ounces) condensed celery soup
¼ cup milk
1 teaspoon salt

Combine egg and 2 tablespoons milk. Mix together flour, salt, pepper, paprika and sesame seeds. Dip chops in egg mixture, then flour mixture. Brown chops in lard or drippings. Mix green beans, onion, celery soup, ¼ cup milk and salt. Pour into an 8x12-inch baking dish. Place veal chops on top. Cover and bake in a slow oven (300° F.) 45 minutes. Uncover and continue baking 15 minutes. Yield: 6 servings.

Try Spiced Pork Steaks

It's easy to acquaint your family with a new food combination. Particularly now during the fall and winter months when pork is in abundant supply, you'll find many new and varied ways to include this popular meat in your menu plans.

One such recipe is called Spiced Pork Steaks. This recipe features arm or blade pork steak pleasantly seasoned with a combination of ginger, cumin seed and sliced onions, if desired.

Pork today is the leader in meat talk. So plan more and more of your meals around this meat. Not only is pork good, but it is good for you.

Spiced Pork Steaks

4 to 6 arm or blade pork steaks cut ½ to ¾ inch thick
2 tablespoons lard or drippings
1½ teaspoons salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
¼ teaspoon ginger
1 teaspoon crushed cumin seed
1 onion, sliced, if desired

Brown steaks in lard or drippings. Pour off drippings. Season both sides of steak with salt, pepper, ginger and cumin seed. Top with onion slices. Cover tightly and cook slowly for 1 hour. 4 to 6 servings.

Open Face Hamburg

Open Face Hamburg Imperial, for spectacular easy-to-serve flavor supreme version of America's favorite: hamburger with onion. Quick, one-dish meal for after-the-game parties that will thrill the family, too!

Pound hamburger, or ground round steak
2 large white or yellow onions, peeled and sliced ⅜ inch thick
Onion salt
Salt and pepper
Makes 6

Cook under the oven broiler, rotisserie or over charcoal grill. Season hamburger with onion salt, salt and pepper. Mould by hand into thick, bun-size patties. Broil or grill to "rare" or "well done" as desired. Warm or lightly toast buttered bun halves. Cut peeled large onions in thick ⅜-inch slices and broil or grill on one side until golden brown. While piping hot, place cooked hamburger on bun half; top with two slices grilled onion. Serve open-top. Garnish with green onions. For hearty appetites serve in pairs on individual small platters or large dinner plates.

Increase recipe as required for number served.

Which has the most calories—a grapefruit, or a cup of frozen French fried potatoes? Surprise . . . . one large grapefruit contains 200 calories, the same as a cup — 10-12 pieces — of frozen French fries when crisped without extra fat in a 450° oven.

Important new facts about . . .

MRS. FILBERT'S MARGARINE AND FAMILY HEALTH

Today some claim that saturated animal fats build up cholesterol in the blood, while unsaturated vegetable oils may help reduce cholesterol. Since evidence is still inconclusive, your doctor is the one to advise you on this.

But you should know that Mrs. Filbert's Margarine is made from only the finest vegetable oils, which contain no cholesterol and are 80% unsaturated. Mrs. Filbert's is enriched with vitamins A and D, is highly digestible, low in salt.

Result: a nutritious, healthful source of quick food energy . . . a product you can enjoy with confidence. Compare Mrs. Filbert's to any spread, at any price.

Waffles Will Break Ice In A Hurry

Now here is an idea! Why not have one of your children host a get acquainted party for the new student? It could be a lot of fun. Plan an afternoon or early evening supper.

Arrange a waffle feast. Have plenty of sirup, jam and jellies available. The waffle recipe is an easy one as well as being a basic recipe. Below the recipe, you'll find three variations given to really create interest. First, there are instructions for chocolate waffles, next bacon waffles and finally, nut waffles.

Waffles

2 cups sifted enriched flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
2 eggs, separated
1¾ cups milk
6 tablespoons melted lard
1 tablespoon sugar, if desired

Sift together flour, baking powder and salt. Add egg yolks and milk and beat thoroughly. Add melted lard. Beat egg whites and fold into batter. Bake in a hot waffle iron. Yield: three 9½-inch square waffles.

Variations:

Chocolate Waffles: Substitute 3 tablespoons of cocoa for 3 tablespoons of flour in basic recipe. Add 2 tablespoons of sugar instead of one.

Tuna Crunch

2½ cups shredded corn biscuit
1½ tablespoons margarine or butter
¼ cup coarsely chopped onion
¼ cup coarsely chopped celery
1 egg, beaten
1 can cream of celery soup—10½ oz.
⅛ cup milk
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
2 dashes Tabasco
1 can chunk-style tuna—6½ oz.

1. Heat oven to moderate (350°). Butter a shallow 1-quart baking dish.
2. Crush ½ cup Corn biscuit to ¼ cup.
3. Melt margarine over medium heat. Add onion and celery. Cook until slightly brown (about 5 minutes).
4. Combine egg and soup. Stir and add milk gradually.
5. Mix in onion mixture, mustard, Tabasco, tuna and whole Corn biscuit.
6. Pour into baking dish. Sprinkle crushed corn over top.
7. Bake 40 minutes, or until browned.

Fruited Ginger Ring

As flavorful and good as it is attractive . . . that's Fruited Ginger Ring. Its spicy tang combines ginger, cinnamon, currants and candied fruit peel.

Serve it warm with orange or lemon sauce to enhance the zesty fruit flavor. Or, cool the cake and serve it with generous scoops of ice cream. Either way, you have the perfect dessert.

Fruited Ginger Ring

2 cups sifted enriched flour
½ teaspoon soda
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon ginger
¼ cup currants
¼ cup chopped candied fruit peel
½ cup shortening
¼ cup brown sugar
1 egg
¾ cup molasses
½ cup hot water

Sift together flour, soda, salt, cinnamon and ginger. Add currants and fruit peel. Cream together shortening and sugar until light and fluffy. Add egg and beat well. Stir molasses and hot water, mixing until well blended. Add sifted dry ingredients and mix until smooth. Turn batter into well-greased 9-inch ring mold or 7 x 11-inch pan. Bake in slow oven (325° F.) about 45 minutes. Serve warm with orange or lemon sauce.

Makes one 9-inch ring or 7 x 11-inch cake.

Children Favor Mother's Liver-Pineapple Patties

How often do you serve variety meats in your home? If your family is reluctant to endorse a meal highlighting variety meats, your problem is solved.

Not only will it be solved but the children will probably be the first to ask for seconds.

Liver-Pineapple Patties

1 pound sliced liver
6 slices bacon
2 tablespoons lard or drippings
1 cup soft bread crumbs
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
1 egg, beaten
⅛ cup catchup
6 pineapple slices

Cook liver in lard or drippings until lightly browned on both sides. Grind liver. Add bread crumbs, salt and pepper to liver. Stir in Worcestershire sauce, egg and catchup. Shape into 6 patties, using approximately ⅓ cup for each. Cut each bacon slice in half. Crisscross bacon halves and place a patty in the center of each. Wrap bacon around patty and place on pineapple ring with bacon ends down. Place liver-pineapple patties on a rack in an open roasting pan. Bake in a moderate oven (350° F.) 45 to 50 minutes. Yield: 6 servings.

The term "playing percentages," though it has mysterious connotations for many players, is nothing more than selecting the play which has the better chance of success. The mathematicians have spared us the necessity of working the things out for ourselves, and it is appropriate for us to accept the figures which they have reached by dint of hard labor and infinite patience.

Against today's three no trump contract, West led the six of diamonds and four tricks in that suit were rattled off. Dummy discarded a heart and declarer a club. West continued with the six of clubs and declarer won in dummy with the king.

At this point it appears on the surface that declarer has eight more tricks to cash: six spades, another club, and a heart. The rub, however, is that South has no entry to permit the cashing of the ace of clubs. Holding nine spades, declarer chose a line of play which depended on each adversary holding two of the suit. If that were the case, the ace and king of spades would pick up the outstanding cards and the eight of spades would become an entry to the South hand. When East failed to follow to the second lead, declarer's hopes were shattered, he was obliged to concede a heart trick at the end for down one.

Now for the mathematical findings of our statisticians (which you are asked to accept as gospel). The chances of four cards breaking 2-2, are not very good. The 3-1 split is more probable.

South, therefore, had less than an even chance to develop the eight of spades as an entry. The better play was to overtake the king of clubs with the ace and try the heart finesse. A finesse is exactly a 50-50 chance. It is true that this line of play risks going down two tricks instead of one, but 100 points is a small price to pay for the increased chance of making the contract.

Menu Varied With Sesame Veal Chops

To some homemakers, however, sesame seeds may be a complete new way to enhance a recipe. Particularly in a veal recipe such as this, sesame seeds add that certain flavor to highlight the mild taste of veal.

Veal, being young beef with very little fat, requires moist heat cookery. In this acclaimed recipe, the veal rib chops are first browned. The braising is accomplished in a covered baking dish in a slow oven.

In addition to the flavor of the sesame seeds, chopped onion, green beans and celery soup all have the opportunity to lend their individual flavors to the veal chop casserole.

Sesame Veal Chops

6 rib veal chops, cut ½ to ¾ inch thick
1 egg, beaten
2 tablespoons milk
¼ cup flour
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon paprika
2 tablespoons sesame seeds, toasted (if desired)
⅓ cup lard or drippings
2 packages (10 ounces each) frozen green beans, cooked
2 tablespoons finely chopped onion
1 can (10½ ounces) condensed celery soup
¼ cup milk
1 teaspoon salt

Combine egg and 2 tablespoons milk. Mix together flour, salt, pepper, paprika and sesame seeds. Dip chops in egg mixture, then flour mixture. Brown chops in lard or drippings. Mix green beans, onion, celery soup, ¼ cup milk and salt. Pour into an 8x12-inch baking dish. Place veal chops on top. Cover and bake in a slow oven (300° F.) 45 minutes. Uncover and continue baking 15 minutes. Yield: 6 servings.

Try Spiced Pork Steaks

It's easy to acquaint your family with a new food combination. Particularly now during the fall and winter months when pork is in abundant supply, you'll find many new and varied ways to include this popular meat in your menu plans.

One such recipe is called Spiced Pork Steaks. This recipe features arm or blade pork steak pleasantly seasoned with a combination of ginger, cumin seed and sliced onions, if desired.

Pork today is the leader in meat talk. So plan more and more of your meals around this meat. Not only is pork good, but it is good for you.

Spiced Pork Steaks

4 to 6 arm or blade pork steaks cut ½ to ¾ inch thick
2 tablespoons lard or drippings
1½ teaspoons salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
¼ teaspoon ginger
1 teaspoon crushed cumin seed
1 onion, sliced, if desired

Brown steaks in lard or drippings. Pour off drippings. Season both sides of steak with salt, pepper, ginger and cumin seed. Top with onion slices. Cover tightly and cook slowly for 1 hour. 4 to 6 servings.

Randolph Calls For Safeguards Of Resources

Says Government Has Responsibility

JACKSON'S MILL, W. Va. (UPI) — Sen. Jennings Randolph (D-W. Va.) said here Wednesday night that we must be "prepared" to examine the relationship of private rights to the national welfare.

"Freedom is not license, and the right to use natural resources does not confer the right to abuse them," Randolph told the 18th annual meeting of West Virginia Soil Conservation District supervisors.

"We must devise a body of state and national laws which will preserve the national heritage and the public welfare from the effects of private misunderstanding and private neglect," he said.

The senator said such laws must be only a part of a national awareness of the need for increased effort and planning in the wise utilization of our material resources.

"Government has an inescapable responsibility to help initiate, support and sustain this effort. Private interests must accept their stewardship of natural resources as a public trust with an obligation to future generations.

"And, as individuals, we must re-examine our purchasing habits so that use and function govern our consumption of precious resources," Randolph said.

In an address earlier Wednesday at Davis and Elkins College, Elkins, he said local and regional feeling sometimes causes a difference of opinion by members of his party in Congress.

The Elkins Democrat noted that during the last session of Congress, members from the same state, even when of different parties, voted together three-fourths of the time on national issues.

AAUW And Civic Clubs To Help Survey Problems Of Aged In Western Maryland

OAKLAND — During the next three weeks, members of the Maryland Federation of Women's Clubs and the American Association of University Women of Frederick, Washington, Allegany and Garrett counties will be cooperating with the new State Commission on the Aging in taking an inventory of the services now available to aging citizens in Western Maryland.

Institutions, agencies, churches and all other organizations which may have some special services to render to senior citizens will be interviewed by representatives of the two women's organizations and requested to state what services they are rendering and how many are benefiting from their services. A brief questionnaire has bee prepared which the interviewers will carry with them to guide them in obtaining the information from the institutions and agencies.

The purpose of the inventory is to ascertain just what services are now being rendered and what is needed to complete the necessary services in each county. The results of the survey will serve as a guide to the Governor's Commission in planning its work for the future. It will also serve as the basis for a Regional Conference planned for Western Maryland in the spring of the year. It is hoped that all those called on for information will give the largest measure of cooperation possible to the interviewers, so that the Governor's Commission may obtain the most accurate picture possible of the present situation.

The information collected will be tabulated and interpreted by Dr. Elinor Pancoast, who is working as a consultant with the commission. Dr. Pancoast was formerly head of the Department of Sociology of Goucher College.

Gerald Monsman, executive director of the new State Commission, pointed out that every effort is being made to call on all organizations and institutions which might be rendering some service to older citizens, roughly those 65 years and older, but that it is possible that the interviewers will not know of the organization or agency and will, therefore, fail to include it in their list of interviews.

Accordingly, Mr. Monsman urged all who are making a contribution in this field to contact the office in their counties of the participating organizations, to let them know of their services, or to communicate directly with the State Commission which has its offices in Room 408 of the State Office Building, 301 West Preston Street, Baltimore 1, Md.

Mr. Monsman said the members of the Federated Women's Clubs and of the American Association of University Women are rendering an extremely valuable service to the State Commission and to the older citizens of the state, and he hoped all those whom they may contact during the next three weeks will regard their visit in that light and extend to them the fullest possible measure of cooperation.

Mrs. Eugene Baumgartner of Oakland is general chairman for the four counties and the Garrett County group participating includes, Miss Edith Brock of the American Association of University Women, county chairman; Mrs. William Browning, member of the Civic Club of Oakland; Mrs. William Hesen, member of the AAUW and the Junior Women's Civic Club of Oakland, and Mrs. Frederick Thayer, member of the Junior Civic Club.

Randolph Calls For Safeguards Of Resources

Says Government Has Responsibility

JACKSON'S MILL, W. Va. (UPI) — Sen. Jennings Randolph (D-W. Va.) said here Wednesday night that we must be "prepared" to examine the relationship of private rights to the national welfare.

"Freedom is not license, and the right to use natural resources does not confer the right to abuse them," Randolph told the 18th annual meeting of West Virginia Soil Conservation District supervisors.

"We must devise a body of state and national laws which will preserve the national heritage and the public welfare from the effects of private misunderstanding and private neglect," he said.

The senator said such laws must be only a part of a national awareness of the need for increased effort and planning in the wise utilization of our material resources.

"Government has an inescapable responsibility to help initiate, support and sustain this effort. Private interests must accept their stewardship of natural resources as a public trust with an obligation to future generations.

"And, as individuals, we must re-examine our purchasing habits so that use and function govern our consumption of precious resources," Randolph said.

In an address earlier Wednesday at Davis and Elkins College, Elkins, he said local and regional feeling sometimes causes a difference of opinion by members of his party in Congress.

The Elkins Democrat noted that during the last session of Congress, members from the same state, even when of different parties, voted together three-fourths of the time on national issues.

AAUW And Civic Clubs To Help Survey Problems Of Aged In Western Maryland

OAKLAND — During the next three weeks, members of the Maryland Federation of Women's Clubs and the American Association of University Women of Frederick, Washington, Allegany and Garrett counties will be cooperating with the new State Commission on the Aging in taking an inventory of the services now available to aging citizens in Western Maryland.

Institutions, agencies, churches and all other organizations which may have some special services to render to senior citizens will be interviewed by representatives of the two women's organizations and requested to state what services they are rendering and how many are benefiting from their services. A brief questionnaire has bee prepared which the interviewers will carry with them to guide them in obtaining the information from the institutions and agencies.

The purpose of the inventory is to ascertain just what services are now being rendered and what is needed to complete the necessary services in each county. The results of the survey will serve as a guide to the Governor's Commission in planning its work for the future. It will also serve as the basis for a Regional Conference planned for Western Maryland in the spring of the year. It is hoped that all those called on for information will give the largest measure of cooperation possible to the interviewers, so that the Governor's Commission may obtain the most accurate picture possible of the present situation.

The information collected will be tabulated and interpreted by Dr. Elinor Pancoast, who is working as a consultant with the commission. Dr. Pancoast was formerly head of the Department of Sociology of Goucher College.

Gerald Monsman, executive director of the new State Commission, pointed out that every effort is being made to call on all organizations and institutions which might be rendering some service to older citizens, roughly those 65 years and older, but that it is possible that the interviewers will not know of the organization or agency and will, therefore, fail to include it in their list of interviews.

Accordingly, Mr. Monsman urged all who are making a contribution in this field to contact the office in their counties of the participating organizations, to let them know of their services, or to communicate directly with the State Commission which has its offices in Room 408 of the State Office Building, 301 West Preston Street, Baltimore 1, Md.

Mr. Monsman said the members of the Federated Women's Clubs and of the American Association of University Women are rendering an extremely valuable service to the State Commission and to the older citizens of the state, and he hoped all those whom they may contact during the next three weeks will regard their visit in that light and extend to them the fullest possible measure of cooperation.

Mrs. Eugene Baumgartner of Oakland is general chairman for the four counties and the Garrett County group participating includes, Miss Edith Brock of the American Association of University Women, county chairman; Mrs. William Browning, member of the Civic Club of Oakland; Mrs. William Hesen, member of the AAUW and the Junior Women's Civic Club of Oakland, and Mrs. Frederick Thayer, member of the Junior Civic Club.

Bible Class Has Meeting At Frostburg

FROSTBURG—Van Dyke Bible Class of First Methodist Church met a recent evening with Mrs. Anna Harding presiding. The meeting opened with the group singing "Sweet Hour of Prayer." The topic for the program was "The Lord's Prayer."

Mrs. Lillian Duncan read a poem, "Just For a Minute." Another poem, "A Salior's Prayer and a Father's Prayer," was presented by Mrs. Gertrude Richardson. Danagay Hardin rendered a solo, accompanied at the piano by her mother, Mrs. Hardin.

"Prayer of Our Nation," a reading, was given by Mrs. Rosalin Hochard. Mrs. Hardin gave a reading on "The Lord's Prayer," written by Mrs. Maude Taylor. The meeting closed with the singing of "I Would Be True."

The next session will be held November 24 with Miss Margaret Hosken and Mrs. Agnes Sinko in charge of the program. Mrs. Lillian Duncan, Mrs. Margaret Kight and Mrs. Ida Hayman will serve on the refreshment committee.

Will Sound Siren

SHAFT — Fire Chief William Landefeld has announced that the siren will be sounded every night at 5 p. m. beginning Monday, November 9, during the winter months.

Seeks Dismissal

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—A former State Police Sergeant asked Kanawha County Intermediate Court Judge William J. Thompson Thursday to quash an indictment against him. W. S. Webb was indicted on bribery charges involving some $20,000 by the September term of the grand jury.

There are more than 78 million motor vehicles in use in all the countries of the world.

UO Report On Clothes, Food Given

WESTERNPORT — Mrs. Elizabeth Thomas, secretary of the United Organizations, gave a report on the amount of clothing and foodstuff the group has during a recent meeting at the Westernport Library.

Since the recent house-to-house solicitation conducted by the Boy Scouts under the direction of Alton Fortney, the UO has 2,000 pieces of clothing including 1,500 for adults, and 1,200 packages or cans of nonperishable food.

Some 125 pairs of shoes including 50 pairs for children are also on hand. The clothing has been arranged at the UO storage room in the Union Hall and the food has been placed in the Walker building, Second Street, Piedmont.

Mrs. Thomas is at the United Organizations office on Fridays of each week to distribute articles for the needy and beginning December 1 will be at the office daily Monday through Friday until after Christmas.

New applications will be ready for applicants on December 1. Wayne Ritchie discussed the aims and purposes of the UO at the meeting.

Dr. Frank DeMirano, chairman of the group, presided and the next meeting will be held November 30, 7:30 p.m. at the Westernport Library.

Rate Boosts Are Sought By Gas Firms

Federal Commission Studies Applications

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Power Commission said Thursday that four subsidiaries of the Columbia Gas System have filed proposed wholesale natural gas rate increases totaling more than $23,500,000 a year.

The biggest of the rate boosts was filed by United Fuel Gas Co. of Charleston, W.Va. It would raise prices to nine wholesale customers in West Virginia, Kentucky, Ohio and Pennsylvania by $14,614,000 a year, or 9.3 per cent.

The other three subsidiaries and their proposed rate hikes were: Ohio Fuel Gas Co. of Columbus, Ohio $1,005,600 or 2.8 per cent; Kentucky Gas Transmission Corp. of Charleston, W.Va., $3,649,700 or 9.3 per cent, and Atlantic Seaboard Corp. of Charleston, W.Va. $4,383,000 or 6 per cent.

Ohio Fuel serves 28 customers in Ohio. Kentucky Gas would boost rates to 12 customers in Ohio and Kentucky. Atlantic Seaboard serves 13 customers in Kentucky, West Virginia, Virginia the District of Columbia, Maryland and Pennsylvania.

Bible Class Attends Dinner

BARTON—The regular monthly meeting of the Friendly Helpers Bible Class was held Tuesday evening following a dinner at Moon's restaurant in Cumberland.

Devotions were conducted by Mrs. Ella L. Green, who gave a reading on Thanksgiving based on the book of Ephesians, followed by prayer by the group. Mrs. Mary Penman presided at the business session. Roll call was answered with Bible verses. Routine reports were given and various projects discussed. Birthdays were observed by Mrs. Nellie Dye, Mrs. Ruth Shuhart, Miss Elizabeth Yates and Mrs. Alice Barnard.

Plans were formulated for the annual Christmas party, which will be held at the home of Mrs. Ruth Shuhart on December 7. Hostesses will include Mrs. Virginia Duncan, Mrs. Mary Deniker, Mrs. Margaret Ross, Mrs. Mae Smith and Mrs. Shuhart. Gifts will be exchanged and secret sisters for the past year revealed.

Those attending the dinner included Mr. and Mrs. Austin Michael, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Dye, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Penman, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Metz, Mr. and Mrs. Darius Green, Mr. and Mrs. David Ross, Mr. and Mrs. William Barnard, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Shuhart Jr., Miss Elizabeth Yates, Mrs. Mae Smith, Mrs. Verda Michael and Wilmer Yates.

Local Church Holding Rally

The Church of God, Fifth and Seymour streets is conducting a rally.

Rev. Raymond H. Hughes, state overseer for the Churches of God, will speak this evening.

Three separate services are scheduled for Saturday with the first at 10 a. m. and the others for 2 and 7 p. m.

The Saturday night service has been designated as the Youth Service with Rev. E. M. Abbott, state youth director, as preacher.

The theme of the rally will be "Win the lost at any cost," and is being sponsored by nine local churches.

Musical selections will be provided by members of all nine participating churches, according to Rev. C. D. Coley, pastor of the host church.

Firemen Plan Supper

Wiley Ford volunteer firemen will sponsor a steak and turkey supper from 3 to 7 p. m. at the fire hall. The meal will be prepared and served by members of the Auxiliary unit.

To Vote On Levy

KINGWOOD, W. Va. (UPI) — Preston County voters will cast their ballots in a special levy election Nov. 22 designed to put the Preston County Memorial hospital here back on a sound financial basis. If voters approve the levy it would increase taxes on Class I, II and III property and be in effect three years.

Mineral County Polio Vaccine Clinic Nov. 13

KEYSER — The next Mineral County polio vaccine clinic will be held Friday, November 13, in the Potomac State College gymnasium from 8 a. m. until 10 a. m.

First, second, third and some fourth injections will be given to persons under 40 years of age. The vaccine is for pre-schoolers and adults to 40 years of age as well as those attending school.

A limited amount of vaccine has been made available to be used for fourth injections.

The health department has expressed hope that all children and adults who come within the age group and have not had the injections will attend this clinic.

Second injections are given one month after the first; thirds are given seven to twelve months after the second and the fourths are recommended after another twelve months. This vaccine is given free.

Rate Boosts Are Sought By Gas Firms

Federal Commission Studies Applications

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Power Commission said Thursday that four subsidiaries of the Columbia Gas System have filed proposed wholesale natural gas rate increases totaling more than $23,500,000 a year.

The biggest of the rate boosts was filed by United Fuel Gas Co. of Charleston, W.Va. It would raise prices to nine wholesale customers in West Virginia, Kentucky, Ohio and Pennsylvania by $14,614,000 a year, or 9.3 per cent.

The other three subsidiaries and their proposed rate hikes were: Ohio Fuel Gas Co. of Columbus, Ohio $1,005,600 or 2.8 per cent; Kentucky Gas Transmission Corp. of Charleston, W.Va., $3,649,700 or 9.3 per cent, and Atlantic Seaboard Corp. of Charleston, W.Va. $4,383,000 or 6 per cent.

Ohio Fuel serves 28 customers in Ohio. Kentucky Gas would boost rates to 12 customers in Ohio and Kentucky. Atlantic Seaboard serves 13 customers in Kentucky, West Virginia, Virginia the District of Columbia, Maryland and Pennsylvania.

Bible Class Attends Dinner

BARTON—The regular monthly meeting of the Friendly Helpers Bible Class was held Tuesday evening following a dinner at Moon's restaurant in Cumberland.

Devotions were conducted by Mrs. Ella L. Green, who gave a reading on Thanksgiving based on the book of Ephesians, followed by prayer by the group. Mrs. Mary Penman presided at the business session. Roll call was answered with Bible verses. Routine reports were given and various projects discussed. Birthdays were observed by Mrs. Nellie Dye, Mrs. Ruth Shuhart, Miss Elizabeth Yates and Mrs. Alice Barnard.

Plans were formulated for the annual Christmas party, which will be held at the home of Mrs. Ruth Shuhart on December 7. Hostesses will include Mrs. Virginia Duncan, Mrs. Mary Deniker, Mrs. Margaret Ross, Mrs. Mae Smith and Mrs. Shuhart. Gifts will be exchanged and secret sisters for the past year revealed.

Those attending the dinner included Mr. and Mrs. Austin Michael, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Dye, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Penman, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Metz, Mr. and Mrs. Darius Green, Mr. and Mrs. David Ross, Mr. and Mrs. William Barnard, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Shuhart Jr., Miss Elizabeth Yates, Mrs. Mae Smith, Mrs. Verda Michael and Wilmer Yates.

Survey New Baptist Camp Site

The three men above are surveying the recently purchased camp near Cresaptown, which was bought by the Western District Baptist Association. Seated is Rev. J. C. Ledbetter, pastor of Bedford Road Baptist Church. Standing at left, Rev. Wesley Harris, pastor of Welsh Memorial Baptist Church, Frostburg, and John Coleman, Layman, of LaVale Baptist Church. The group announced that Saturday has been set aside for all men of the Western District Association to be at the camp to aid in clearing along survey lines in preparation for a fire lane about the property. A topographical map will be submitted to the Southern Baptist Architectural Board for their aid in planning for the future development of the property which will be used for Christian purposes. The property had been developed in past years as an Indian village but has been unused for some time. A lodge, formerly at the camp, was destroyed by fire. Three wigwam-type buildings have been damaged by vandals but can be repaired. The dam to be used for swimming will also have to be rebuilt. The property includes over 175 acres and is located on Dan's Mountain about three miles west of Cresaptown.

Sewer Survey Planned At Westernport

WESTERNPORT — Engineers will be employed to conduct a survey and prepare specifications for the eight-inch sewer from Greene's Addition to the Georges Creek. This project is commonly called Jake's Sewer. After specifications have been completed, bids will be offered for construction work.

Action on the sewer project was taken at a meeting of Mayor Ray L. Wilt and Commissioners last night. The town hopes to secure aid from the federal government to pay for part of the job.

Horace P. Whitworth Sr., town attorney, advised town officials to begin plans for the construction of the sewer as Judge D. Kenneth McLaughlin, of Hagerstown, approved court preceedings brought by Jake Wilson. The town was ordered to begin the work by March 1, 1960.

Following the suggestions of Horace P. Whitworth Jr., the town will have all ordinances pertaining to the criminal code compiled and printed in a booklet. A study of some the older ordinances, which are outmoded as pertaining to street cars and other infractions, will be made. Police and magistrates will be provided with copies of the revised ordinances.

A letter was read from Miss Hazel Inskeep, principal of Westernport Elementary School, thanking the Police Department for its assistance during the recent Halloween celebration at the school.

Mrs. Katherine Dailey, town clerk, reported that $84.80 was received from parking meters the past two weeks. Council ordered that $1,243 be transferred from the water account to the general fund.

Grand Officers Pay Visit To Lonaconing KP

LONACONING — Cecil Llewellyn and Bruce Simons had the rank of page conferred upon them at Rising Sun Lodge No. 86, Knights of Pythias, Lonaconing.

George Coddington, of Oakland, made his official visit to Rising Sun Lodge at this meeting and gave an address on "Public Highway Safety" which is one of the Grand Chancellor of Maryland Otto B. Cheeseman's program projects for his year in office.

The Grand Chancellor suggested that the Lonaconing lodge have a sign erected at the entrance of their building designating it as Rising Sun Lodge, Knights of Pythias, of Maryland. Plans are being considered to have a neon sign installed.

Moorefield Homecoming Queen Is Jean Williams

MOOREFIELD — Miss Jean Williams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Williams, will reign as queen during the first homecoming celebration of Moorefield High School Saturday. She was selected by members of the football team.

A senior at Moorefield High, she will be crowned at half-time ceremonies in the game between the Yellow Jackets and LaSalle of Cumberland.

The queen's attendants will be Miss Mary Ellen Taylor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Taylor, and Miss Mary Lou Ruckman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Welton Ruckman, who were runnersup in the voting.

The homecoming is being sponsored by the Moorefield Boosters Club.

The football game will start at 1:45 p. m. at the high school and a dinner will be held at the Moose Home at 6:30. Further entertainment is not scheduled following the dinner but those attending may remain at the Moose Home for informal conversation and dancing to recorded music.

Lonaconing Church Lists Activities

LONACONING — The Woman's Society of Christian Service had the first chapter of its study course, "Luke's Portrait of Christ," with Rev. Ben Hartley as instructor. The course followed a business meeting Monday evening at the First Methodist Church.

Rev. Mr. Hartley announced the next session of this course will be held on Sunday at 7:30 p.m. at the church.

Student Recognition Service will be held the Sunday after Christmas, and the W.S.C.S. made plans to honor students at the service at 11 a.m. at the First Methodist Church. Mrs. Sarah Buckholtz and Mrs. Florence Duckworth presented the motion.

Monday, December 7, at 6 p.m. will be the annual Christmas dinner and each member will exchange jingle gifts.

"Social Creeds and Moving Populations" was the topic of the devotional services held by the 25 members attending. Mrs. Martha Grindle gave Scripture reading.

Mrs. Ann Foote, president, conducted the meeting and Miss Eleanor Evans gave the report of the recording secretary. Mrs. Edith Crowe, who was unable to be present.

Mrs. John Miller reported 172 coupons have been forwarded to the Ashbuy home.

Mrs. Hilda Phillips and Mrs. Marie Moffatt, who have November birthdays, served the refreshments.

Survey New Baptist Camp Site

The three men above are surveying the recently purchased camp near Cresaptown, which was bought by the Western District Baptist Association. Seated is Rev. J. C. Ledbetter, pastor of Bedford Road Baptist Church. Standing at left, Rev. Wesley Harris, pastor of Welsh Memorial Baptist Church, Frostburg, and John Coleman, Layman, of LaVale Baptist Church. The group announced that Saturday has been set aside for all men of the Western District Association to be at the camp to aid in clearing along survey lines in preparation for a fire lane about the property. A topographical map will be submitted to the Southern Baptist Architectural Board for their aid in planning for the future development of the property which will be used for Christian purposes. The property had been developed in past years as an Indian village but has been unused for some time. A lodge, formerly at the camp, was destroyed by fire. Three wigwam-type buildings have been damaged by vandals but can be repaired. The dam to be used for swimming will also have to be rebuilt. The property includes over 175 acres and is located on Dan's Mountain about three miles west of Cresaptown.

Brenda Bean, Marion Brashear, Leslie Byers, Robert Hamilton, Benjamin Evans, Elaine Moffatt, Helen Ann Simpson, Sandra Stevenson and Louise Smith are eighth graders.

Sodality Meets

MT. SAVAGE — The Sodality of the Blessed Virgin Mary of St. Patrick's Catholic Church will meet at 7:30 p.m. today in the school.

Mrs. Charles Hager Heads Frostburg Homemakers

FROSTBURG — Mrs. Charles Hager was elected president and Mrs. James Morgan Jr., was elected treasurer by the Frostburg Homemakers Club at a recent meeting held at State Teachers College.

Serving on the nominating committee were Mrs. Adam Baer, Mrs. LaVern Kerr, Mrs. Paul Rice and Mrs. George Griffith. These two new officers will serve for a term of two years.

The club has chosen Miss Darlene Logue, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Logue, 147 Bowery Street to represent them in the Miss Pancake contest to be held Saturday at the American Legion building.

The meeting opened with the reading of the "Beattitudes For Homemakers" by Mrs. Elsie Kroll and Mrs. Adam Baer.

Mrs. George Griffith, music chairman, presented the hymn of the month, "In Christ There Is No East Or West." She gave the history of this hymn and led group singing.

Mrs. Ruth Todd showed slides of pictures taken on her recent trip to Europe. Mrs. Perry Myers announced that the club would celebrate Achievement Day at the November meeting by displaying articles made by members, arts and crafts, holiday decorations and suggestions for Christmas gifts.

Miss Mary Wise, County Home Demonstration Agent, will visit the club at the November meeting and give a demonstration.

Members were reminded of the county Achievement Day which will be held on Thursday November 12, beginning at 11 a. m. at LaVale Methodist Church. Reservations for the luncheon must be made by tomorrow.

The first President of 48 states was William Howard Taft. The first President to broadcast by radio was Warren G. Harding.

Sewer Survey Planned At Westernport

WESTERNPORT — Engineers will be employed to conduct a survey and prepare specifications for the eight-inch sewer from Greene's Addition to the Georges Creek. This project is commonly called Jake's Sewer. After specifications have been completed, bids will be offered for construction work.

Action on the sewer project was taken at a meeting of Mayor Ray L. Wilt and Commissioners last night. The town hopes to secure aid from the federal government to pay for part of the job.

Horace P. Whitworth Sr., town attorney, advised town officials to begin plans for the construction of the sewer as Judge D. Kenneth McLaughlin, of Hagerstown, approved court preceedings brought by Jake Wilson. The town was ordered to begin the work by March 1, 1960.

Following the suggestions of Horace P. Whitworth Jr., the town will have all ordinances pertaining to the criminal code compiled and printed in a booklet. A study of some the older ordinances, which are outmoded as pertaining to street cars and other infractions, will be made. Police and magistrates will be provided with copies of the revised ordinances.

A letter was read from Miss Hazel Inskeep, principal of Westernport Elementary School, thanking the Police Department for its assistance during the recent Halloween celebration at the school.

Mrs. Katherine Dailey, town clerk, reported that $84.80 was received from parking meters the past two weeks. Council ordered that $1,243 be transferred from the water account to the general fund.

Grand Officers Pay Visit To Lonaconing KP

LONACONING — Cecil Llewellyn and Bruce Simons had the rank of page conferred upon them at Rising Sun Lodge No. 86, Knights of Pythias, Lonaconing.

George Coddington, of Oakland, made his official visit to Rising Sun Lodge at this meeting and gave an address on "Public Highway Safety" which is one of the Grand Chancellor of Maryland Otto B. Cheeseman's program projects for his year in office.

The Grand Chancellor suggested that the Lonaconing lodge have a sign erected at the entrance of their building designating it as Rising Sun Lodge, Knights of Pythias, of Maryland. Plans are being considered to have a neon sign installed.

Midlothian Homemakers Elect Head

Christmas Party Being Planned

FROSTBURG — The Midlothian Homemakers Club met a recent evening at the home of Mrs. Raymond Kennel with Mrs. Thomas Simmons presiding. Mrs. Blaine Willetts read the history of the hymn of the month, "Come Ye Thankful People." Roll call was answered with each member telling "What Am I Most Thankful For."

Mrs. Mason Diehl and Mrs. Matthew Willetts were elected president and treasurer, respectively, for a two-year period.

Mrs. Matthew Skidmore, family life chairman, reported on "How to Combat Worry and Develop Mental Health." Mrs. Herman Winters gave a report on the "Best Buy of the Month Concerning Food and Nutrition." Mrs. Robert Neat, Wrights Crossing, was welcomed as a new member.

It was announced that the annual Christmas party will be held at Nave's Dining Room in Cumberland. Refreshments were served by Ruth and Cathy Lancaster.

Mothers To Meet

MT. SAVAGE — The Mothers Club will meet Monday, at 7:30 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Margaret Keel, Calla Hill. All mothers of Boy Scouts in Troop 50 are urged to attend.

Legion Plans Member Drive

FROSTBURG — Harry Cosgrove, commander of Farrady Post 24, American Legion, has announced that the annual membership drive will begin on November 11 and has named the following committee.

UPP Locals Ratify Two Year Pact

Covington Is Third Unit To Approve

COVINGTON, Va. (AP)—Locals of the United Papermakers and Paperworkers in Covington, Williamsburg, Pa. and Luke, Md. plants have ratified a two-year labor contract with West Virginia Pulp and Paper Co.

The contract includes a wage increase of 3 per cent, with a minimum of 7 cents an hour the first year, and a 4 per cent increase, with a minimum of 8 cents an hour, the second year.

This will hike the minimum hourly rate to $1.89 for the coming year and $1.97 for the second year of the contract, effective Nov. 9.

Other benefits include an additional paid holiday (Dec. 24), making seven in all; shift differential for the overnight shift increased 2 cents an hour and payment to employes for losses incurred because of jury duty.

The company will pay hospitalization premiums for an employe for six months if an employe is ill, with this outlay to be deducted from his pay after he returns to work.

Smith has been operated upon for throat cancer and was unable to speak loudly or distinctly and the court permitted him to be questioned directly, giving a nod or shake of his head for yes and no answers to the questions.

Earlier Llewellyn and Miller each testified they were en route to work on the morning of the shooting. The former said he had started to climb a gate to take a short cut across Smith's property when he heard the defendant call out. He noticed Smith pointing a shotgun in his direction, he said, before the weapon was discharged.

Miller, who resides with his uncle, testified the blast knocked him to the ground. He said he and Llewellyn were used to climbing over the gate even though the defense contended there was room enough to go through.

Both men denied jumping up or down on the gate.

Attorney Vernon E. Rankin is the defense counsel. Prosecuting Attorney Donald C. Hott is prosecuting the case. The jury is composed of three women and nine men.

Coach Ed Schwarz's Allegany High School Campers will be shooting for their fifth straight victory in the Cumberland Valley Athletic League when they tackle the Westminster High School Owls tonight at 8 o'clock at the Greenway Avenue bowl.

Westminster and Allegany have tangled four times on the gridiron and the Campers have yet to beat the Carroll Countians. Fort Hill owns a 9-0 record against the Owls.

Allegany is leading the C.V.A.L. race with a 4-0 record and with Westminster and Fort Hill yet to be met in league games. Fort Hill, which has finished on top three years in a row, including two ties with North Hagerstown, is trailing the Campers in the current race with a 3-0-1 mark. The Sentinels play South Hagerstown in the Hub City Saturday night and windup with Allegany on Thanksgiving Day.

Seek 5th Win In Row

Since suffering its only defeat of the season on October 2 at the hands of undefeated Keyser High, Allegany has reeled off four straight wins over South Hagerstown, Martinsburg, LaSalle and Frederick and owns an overall record of 6-1.

Coach Ruby's Owls, however, have found the going much rougher and have won five while losing three. Westminster has been jolted by Bel Air, 21-19, and by Fort Hill, 25-7 and Hanover, Pa., 18-14, the past two weekends. Frederick, the team that battled Fort Hill to a 7-7 draw, on Sept. 18, was walloped by Westminster, 34-6 and by Allegany 20-0. In fact, the Cadets have not won a league game in four outings this season.

In another C.V.A. League game on tap for tonight, Martinsburg High's Bulldogs (0-5-0) will windup its league campaign with the Cadets (0-3-1) at Frederick.

Ridgeley At Hancock

Coach Paul Imphong's Hancock High School eleven (4-2) will play host to Ridgeley High School's Blackhawks (1-7) in a Friday afternoon game at Hancock.

Tom O'Connor's team will be striving to break a seven-game losing streak since winning the season opener from Circleville. This game will windup the season for Ridgeley.

Southern's Highlanders and the Petersburg High Vikings will be lowering the curtain on their schedules when they tangle in a Potomac Valley Conference game this afternoon in Oakland.

Coach Earl Adolphson's Garrett Countians must win or tie to finish in the .500 circle as the Highlanders are now 4-4 overall and 0-4 in the 11-school circuit.

Wayne Barr's Petersburg team has won five out of eight games this season and is 4-2 in the P.V.C.

Trains Peru Entry Won Here In 1931

Fred Joyce To Play Seek Andy's Scalp

By C. V. BURNS

A TRAINER who started off on the half milers when he was 17 and saddled his first winner at the Fairgo track of the Cumberland Fair Association in 1931, is conditioning Lightning, Peru's representative for next week's $100,000 International race at Laurel.

Lightning has won 11 of his 21 starts in three seasons of racing.

No matter how Lightning fares in the International, the selection of Clark as trainer comes as a distinct honor. The 55-year-old horseman just last month was re-elected president of the American Trainers' Association.

Clark's greatest success so far this year has been with two fillies bred by the Christiana Stable. Tempted and Endine have earned more than $300,000 between them and Clark has been their trainer since they first set foot on a race track.

He doesn't mind admitting times were tough back in the 1930s on the half mile circuit. He slept in tack rooms, mucked out his own stalls and walked his own hots.

Clark became trainer of the Peruvian horse when one of his former employers, Liz Whitney Person, recommended him to Col. C. J. Tippett, owner of Lightning.

COACH Charley Lattimer informs us that Fred Joyce will be back in action when the Fort Hill Sentinels do battle with South Hagerstown's Rebels in the Hub City Saturday night.

Joyce, regular center and only regular holding over from last year's team, has been idle since the first quarter of the Martinsburg game Sept. 25 with an injured back. He has missed four games in a row.

Fred has been on the Fort Hill varsity squad for four years and lettered as a sophomore. He worked out this week and is expected to see limited action tomorrow.

BOBBY BROWN, Valley High School soccer star, who was injured in the Knights' final game at Frostburg on Tuesday, had his collarbone broken in three places, according to information received last night from Lonaconing.

J. GLENN BEALL, Jr., vice president, and John H. Mosner, secretary of the Cumberland Fair Association, will attend a meeting of the Maryland Half Mile Tracks Association to be held today at the Pimlico Hotel.

This is the first of a series of meetings to make plans for the 12-day racing meets at the five Maryland minor tracks in 1960.

THREE oft-defeated Florida college football coaches received the effigy treatment this week from unhappy fans and one was Andy Gustafson, of Miami University, where a number of Cumberland boys have played in recent years.

The Gustafson effigy carried the legend:

The sign referred to Quarterback Curci's getting most of the offensive duty in preference to other backs.

Dr. John K. Rozum, formerly of Cumberland, is often mentioned as one of Miami's grid scouts.

The teams will tangle for the ninth time since 1928 on Saturday at Moorefield. The series is all even now at 3-3-2.

Arthur Slocum was the Explorers' mentor in 1928, Pat Conway in 1941, Jack Plum in 1942, Phil Carolan in 1943, Phil Minks and Palmer in 1944, John Long in 1945 and 1946 and Norman Geatz in 1946. Don Harden made his debut as LaSalle's head coach this year.

UNDEFEATED Keyser High School (7-0) has yielded only 12 points in seven games with three left to play but Keyser's Golden Tornado of 1927, coached by Benjamin Jennings, gave up only six points in nine games.

That team won nine and lost none and scored 236 points.

The only touchdown scored against the 1927 team came in the final game of the season Thanksgiving Day when a guy named Hetzel of Harpers Ferry ran 65 yards for the score 10 seconds before the final gun.

Keyser shut out eight teams in a row before the final game, namely, Grafton 18-0, Parsons 30-0, Thomas 26-0, Tunnelton 34-0, Martinsburg 25-0, Allegany 12-0, Meyersdale 27-0, Charles Town 21-0 and took the final from Harpers Ferry, 33-6.

Players on the Keyser team 32 years ago were Stanhagen, Davis, Sanders, Aronholt, Umstot, Kenney, Wagoner, Bailey, Miers, Mills, Rice and McIlwee.

Charles Aronholt, captain of the team, is the father of "Chuck" Aronholt, who now plays guard on offense, safety man on defense and is Allegany High School's point-kicking specialist.

And that's "Eck" Miers, who will make his debut as basketball mentor at Keyser High School next month as successor to John R. Shelton.

Rugged Vols Will Be High For LSU Tilt

"No Rest For Weary," Billy Cannon Says

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI) — Louisiana State Thursday winds up preparations for Tennessee, the last big stumbling block in the Tigers' path to a second straight national title.

Rugged Tennessee, ranked 16th, will put forth the first single wing offense that most of the Tigers have played against in their college careers.

The Vols will be high for this one, but there was some concern over whether LSU could work itself up to another supreme effort like the one it came up with to beat mighty Mississippi last week, 7-3.

"There's no rest for the weary," muttered Billy Cannon, who is fast becoming a bayou country legend even though he's got three more games — four counting a certain bowl game — to play for LSU.

"We just get rid of Ole Miss and there's Tennessee staring us in the face this weekend," said Cannon, who almost single-handedly got rid of Ole Miss with an 89-yard touchdown gallop.

Coach Paul Dietzel stressed defense against the brutal blocking of Tennessee's single wing this week. Dietzel said Tennessee is "as tough a team as we'll play this year."

The Tigers should be at full strength, seeking their 20th straight win. They will also be trying to protect their goal line from its first enemy touchdown of the season. Only nine points, all on field goals, have been scored against the Tigers this year.

If the Tigers can get past Tennessee, there is nothing in sight but a thunderous upset to keep them from an undefeated season. Only Mississippi State and Tulane both home games, remain on the LSU schedule after this week.

Boston Granted AFL Franchise

Eight Grid Teams Join New Circuit

NASHUA, N.H. (AP)—Leo B. Dowd said Thursday he was notified by Harry Wismer, chairman of the American Football League expansion committee, that Boston has been granted the eighth and last franchise in the new professional football circuit.

Johansson Is Sought As Witness

D'Amato's Hearing To Resume Today

By JACK CUDDY
United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York State Athletic Commission Thursday night sought heavy weight champion Ingemar Johansson as a witness at Friday's resumption of fight-manager Cus D'Amato's hearing.

Johansson is scheduled to arrive early Friday from Hollywood, Calif. A commission spokesman said, "We'll ask Johansson to take the stand."

D'Amato, manager of ex-champion Floyd Patterson, fought determinedly Thursday at the opening session of his hearing to prevent permanent revocation of his manager's license on five misconduct charges.

During the stormy session, D'Amato and attorneys Edwin S. Schweig and Julius November challenged the authority of the commission, demanded that one commissioner disqualify himself for "pre-judging," and hammered at the credibility of the commission's star witness, Bill Rosensohn.

Rosensohn, who promoted the June 26 fight in which Sweden's Johansson won the crown from Patterson, was on the stand most of the day, giving direct testimony and answering cross examination.

The five charges against D'Amato stem from the June 26 fight.

He is charged with:

—Deliberately disobeying a commission order to appear at the Sept. 14 session of the commission's general hearing into activities surrounding the Johansson-Patterson fight promotion.

—Associating with Charles Antonucci (known as Charley Black) a former fight manager, convicted gambler and consort of persons of ill repute.

—Acting as a promoter and matchmaker without a license, directly or indirectly.

—Foisting Harry Davidow of Brooklyn upon Johansson as a 10-per cent manager for five years.

—Disobeying the rule that a manager must give an itemized report on a boxer's purse within five days after a fight.

D'Amato denied all charges except a violation of the purse report rule, which his attorneys admitted "technically" Thursday with the explanation he got no report on the June 26 fight from promoter Rosensohn until July 24.

Coach Ed Schwarz's Allegany High School Campers will be shooting for their fifth straight victory in the Cumberland Valley Athletic League when they tackle the Westminster High School Owls tonight at 8 o'clock at the Greenway Avenue bowl.

Westminster and Allegany have tangled four times on the gridiron and the Campers have yet to beat the Carroll Countians. Fort Hill owns a 9-0 record against the Owls.

Allegany is leading the C.V.A.L. race with a 4-0 record and with Westminster and Fort Hill yet to be met in league games. Fort Hill, which has finished on top three years in a row, including two ties with North Hagerstown, is trailing the Campers in the current race with a 3-0-1 mark. The Sentinels play South Hagerstown in the Hub City Saturday night and windup with Allegany on Thanksgiving Day.

Seek 5th Win In Row

Since suffering its only defeat of the season on October 2 at the hands of undefeated Keyser High, Allegany has reeled off four straight wins over South Hagerstown, Martinsburg, LaSalle and Frederick and owns an overall record of 6-1.

Coach Ruby's Owls, however, have found the going much rougher and have won five while losing three. Westminster has been jolted by Bel Air, 21-19, and by Fort Hill, 25-7 and Hanover, Pa., 18-14, the past two weekends. Frederick, the team that battled Fort Hill to a 7-7 draw, on Sept. 18, was walloped by Westminster, 34-6 and by Allegany 20-0. In fact, the Cadets have not won a league game in four outings this season.

In another C.V.A. League game on tap for tonight, Martinsburg High's Bulldogs (0-5-0) will windup its league campaign with the Cadets (0-3-1) at Frederick.

Ridgeley At Hancock

Coach Paul Imphong's Hancock High School eleven (4-2) will play host to Ridgeley High School's Blackhawks (1-7) in a Friday afternoon game at Hancock.

Tom O'Connor's team will be striving to break a seven-game losing streak since winning the season opener from Circleville. This game will windup the season for Ridgeley.

Southern's Highlanders and the Petersburg High Vikings will be lowering the curtain on their schedules when they tangle in a Potomac Valley Conference game this afternoon in Oakland.

Coach Earl Adolphson's Garrett Countians must win or tie to finish in the .500 circle as the Highlanders are now 4-4 overall and 0-4 in the 11-school circuit.

Wayne Barr's Petersburg team has won five out of eight games this season and is 4-2 in the P.V.C.

Both Adolphson and Barr are completing their first season as head coaches at Oakland and Petersburg, respectively.

Trains Peru Entry Won Here In 1931

Fred Joyce To Play Seek Andy's Scalp

By C. V. BURNS

A TRAINER who started off on the half milers when he was 17 and saddled his first winner at the Fairgo track of the Cumberland Fair Association in 1931, is conditioning Lightning, Peru's representative for next week's $100,000 International race at Laurel.

Lightning has won 11 of his 21 starts in three seasons of racing.

No matter how Lightning fares in the International, the selection of Clark as trainer comes as a distinct honor. The 55-year-old horseman just last month was re-elected president of the American Trainers' Association.

Clark's greatest success so far this year has been with two fillies bred by the Christiana Stable. Tempted and Endine have earned more than $300,000 between them and Clark has been their trainer since they first set foot on a race track.

He doesn't mind admitting times were tough back in the 1930s on the half mile circuit. He slept in tack rooms, mucked out his own stalls and walked his own hots.

Clark became trainer of the Peruvian horse when one of his former employers, Liz Whitney Person, recommended him to Col. C. J. Tippett, owner of Lightning.

COACH Charley Lattimer informs us that Fred Joyce will be back in action when the Fort Hill Sentinels do battle with South Hagerstown's Rebels in the Hub City Saturday night.

Joyce, regular center and only regular holding over from last year's team, has been idle since the first quarter of the Martinsburg game Sept. 25 with an injured back. He has missed four games in a row.

Fred has been on the Fort Hill varsity squad for four years and lettered as a sophomore. He worked out this week and is expected to see limited action tomorrow.

BOBBY BROWN, Valley High School soccer star, who was injured in the Knights' final game at Frostburg on Tuesday, had his collarbone broken in three places, according to information received last night from Lonaconing.

J. GLENN BEALL, Jr., vice president, and John H. Mosner, secretary of the Cumberland Fair Association, will attend a meeting of the Maryland Half Mile Tracks Association to be held today at the Pimlico Hotel.

This is the first of a series of meetings to make plans for the 12-day racing meets at the five Maryland minor tracks in 1960.

THREE oft-defeated Florida college football coaches received the effigy treatment this week from unhappy fans and one was Andy Gustafson, of Miami University, where a number of Cumberland boys have played in recent years.

At Miami, a dummy lambasting Gustafson was propped up in the doorway of a fraternity shop. The Gustafson effigy carried the legend:

The sign referred to Quarterback Curci's getting most of the offensive duty in preference to other backs.

Dr. John K. Rozum, formerly of Cumberland, is often mentioned as one of Miami's grid scouts.

The teams will tangle for the ninth time since 1928 on Saturday at Moorefield. The series is all even now at 3-3-2.

Arthur Slocum was the Explorers' mentor in 1928, Pat Conway in 1941, Jack Plum in 1942, Phil Carolan in 1943, Phil Minks and Palmer in 1944, John Long in 1945 and 1946 and Norman Geatz in 1946. Don Harden made his debut as LaSalle's head coach this year.

UNDEFEATED Keyser High School (7-0) has yielded only 12 points in seven games with three left to play but Keyser's Golden Tornado of 1927, coached by Benjamin Jennings, gave up only six points in nine games.

That team won nine and lost none and scored 236 points.

The only touchdown scored against the 1927 team came in the final game of the season Thanksgiving Day when a guy named Hetzel of Harpers Ferry ran 65 yards for the score 10 seconds before the final gun.

Keyser shut out eight teams in a row before the final game, namely, Grafton 18-0, Parsons 30-0, Thomas 26-0, Tunnelton 34-0, Martinsburg 25-0, Allegany 12-0, Meyersdale 27-0, Charles Town 21-0 and took the final from Harpers Ferry, 33-6.

British And U.S. Pros Open Ryder Cup Matches Today

Middlecoff Paired With Sam Snead

Souchak, Rosburg Teamed; Hebert, Burke Sidelined

By HAL WOOD
United Press International

PALM DESERT, Calif. (UPI) — Sam Snead and Dr. Cary Middlecoff were paired Thursday to meet Harry Weetman and Dave Thomas of England in the feature match of the Scotch foursome in the Ryder Cup competition Friday.

Bob Rosburg and Mike Souchak, United States, vs. Bernard Hunt and Eric Brown, Britain.

Doug Ford and Art Wall Jr., United States, vs. Peter Alliss and Christy O'Connor, Britain.

Snead did not appear particularly happy with the pairings as he handed them out to reporters.

"If I could make the placings," said Snead, "I'd certainly juggle things around a bit."

Drawings Are Blind

The drawings are blind, with each captain naming two men to the No. 1 team, two to the No. 2 team and so forth. Then the pairings are picked from a hat.

Sitting on the sidelines for the U. S. will be Jay Hebert and Jackie Burke. Burke is having trouble with an injured hand.

The two men sidelined for the British are Norman Drew and Peter Mills.

The play will get under way Friday at 9 a.m. with foursomes going off at 10-minute intervals.

The strongest U. S. pairings aside from Snead and Middlecoff appeared to be Rosburg and Souchak — both of whom are playing fine golf.

"I certainly think we'll win it," said Snead, "I think we have the better players. But it won't be a push-over. You can't forget that they are the champions right now. They have some good boys."

Rees Is Confident

But Dai Rees, the British captain, was just as confident that the boys from the British Isles would retain the cup.

"We have a solid team," said Rees.

How About $1,475 Solid Gold Putter For Christmas?

NEW YORK (AP) — If you haven't finished your Christmas shopping, just relax. A swank Fifth avenue jewelry store has announced it is getting another shipment of those $1,475 solid gold putters.

Of course, it is understood that the club will not improve the recipient's golf score. But there is this consolation: If you miss a two-footer and smash the club across your knee, you can always melt the head of it into a $1,475 lump.

Wilt Chamberlain, Russell To Clash

BOSTON (UPI) — Towering Wilt (The Stilt) Chamberlain of Philadelphia and Boston's Bill Russell will clash for the first time Saturday night when the Warriors invade Boston Garden for a game with the Celtics.

Both teams are undefeated in the National Basketball Association. The Warriors have won three straight, while the defending champion Celtics have taken their first five.

Fans were reminded that, despite a general feeling that the game had been a sellout for weeks, there still were plenty of tickets available.

WMI Soccer League Ends Season Today

A three-way battle for second place highlights the final games of the season today in the W.M.I. Soccer League.

Mt. Savage, present occupant of the runner-up spot with a 3-2-2 record and eight points, hosts the Flintstone Aggies, last place club with one win and six losses.

Ray Ralston and "Moose" Arnone will officiate in the game at Mt. Savage. George Shaffer and Clifton Van Roby will handle the contest at Westernport.

West Virginia Ups Price Of Hunting, Fishing Licenses

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—The State Conservation Commission reminded West Virginians Thursday the price of hunting and fishing licenses will go up Jan. 1, 1960.

The 1959 Legislature raised the fee for resident hunting and fishing licenses to $3 each. A combination license will cost $5. They now cost $2 each with a combination permit $3.

The cost of a license for non-resident bow-and-arrow hunters was upped from $5 to $15. A resident hunter must buy a regular license and an additional $1 permit for deer and bear hunting.

Mike DeJohn Faces Powell At Syracuse

Heavies To Tangle In Bout Tonight

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (UPI)—Mike De John and Charlie Powell, two of the biggest men in boxing, place their inconsistent records on the line Friday night in a scheduled 10-round heavyweight fight at the War Memorial arena.

Powell, 27, is rated eighth by the National Boxing Association, on the strength of his 15 knockouts in 20 victories. He lost four and drew twice since becoming a prize fighter in 1953.

Prior to that he played defensive end for the San Francisco 49ers of the National Football League. The all-around athlete also played professional baseball and had an offer to try out for the Harlem Globetrotters. His brother Art plays football for the Philadelphia Eagles.

In two outings this year, the Californian knocked out Nino Valdes but lost to Roy Harris June 9, his latest fight. Powell figures he can handle the hot-and-cold De John despite the long layoff.

De John, at 28 the youngest member of a well-known boxing family, owns a 38-7-1 record. He enjoyed a brief moment of national acclaim after he stopped the then-onrushing Argentine Alex Miteff in one round two years ago. Since then his performances have been generally unspectacular. He is unranked.

This year he lost his first two fights, to Willie Besmanoff and Sonny Liston. He won his last outing by stopping Duke Sabedong at Sacramento Sept. 1.

Skirmish Is Victor

SAN MATEO, Calif. (UPI) — Skirmish, a 13-1 shot, grabbed the lead at the turn Thursday and went on to hold off odds on Currock to win the feature race at Bay Meadows.

Skirmish, a colt by Bullfighter, paid $29.00, $8.00 and $4.40 across the board. His time was 1:10 2-5.

Jones Plays Final Grid Game For Deaf School On Saturday

Larry Set Record Last Season; May Rejoin Buemi At Gallaudet

Jones is the 5-foot-11, 223 pound back, who has been a stickout of Coach Donald Bullock's football teams every year since he broke into the lineup during the 1956 season.

Started Era At WVSD

The arrival of Jones on the football scene was the start of an era for the West Virginia School for the Deaf. Since 1956 Bullock's teams have won 28, lost 3 and tied 2. Last season, the team went unbeaten in eight games and this season the Lions have played seven games without defeat though the American School for the Deaf, Hartford, Conn., held them to a 22-22 tie.

The Romney school also shared the Potomac Valley Conference title with Keyser in 1958 and this year the WVSD is assured of at least another tie, having gone through its conference slate without a loss.

During the 1956 season the Lions were selected as the national champion of schools for the deaf. In 1957 they slipped to fourth and last year they were tied for the runner-up slot with Connecticut's American School.

Set Record In 1958

Playing in the backfield with Charles Buemi, probably the greatest athlete in W.V.S.D.'s history, Jones first received recognition from his teammates who promptly dubbed him "First Down Jones." Last year the Dunbar, W. Va., lad set a new school record by gaining 1,094 yards in one season.

This year, Jones has gained 1,078 yards with one game remaining. He also broke the career scoring record of Hugh Boyd, 1951, who had scored 236 points. Jones passed Boyd's mark during the game with the Connecticut School and currently has chalked up 263 points. An All-Conference (Potomac Valley) selection last year, the 18-year-old senior also was chosen as All-America gridder among school for the deaf players.

May Rejoin Buemi

In addition to his football feats, Larry is also a good student. He aspires to attend Gallaudet College, the world's only college for the deaf at Washington, D. C. Should he be successful with the entrance examinations, (Gallaudet does not give athletic scholarships) next May, he may again team up with Charles Buemi who presently is a student there, and who knows, it may start an era at Gallaudet.

Fugitt Rites Set For Today

BECKLEY, W. Va. (UPI)—The death of Bill Fugitt has left a gap in the West Virginia Secondary School Activities Commission that will be hard to fill, commission president Jonathon Y. Lowe said Thursday.

Fugitt, 62, died Tuesday night in Beckley of a cerebral hemorrhage. Funeral services will be held in Beckley Friday.

"I have no idea when some one will be chosen to take his place," Lowe said. Fugitt was executive secretary of the commission for 13 years.

"I know that the task of finding a replacement will be a difficult one indeed," Lowe said.

Principal of a Huntington junior high school, Lowe said a meeting of the commission's three-member board of appeals would be held in Beckley on the weekend.

However, Lowe said the meeting would deal with the rating program and other phases of Fugitt's work.

Perez Knocks Out Yaoita In 13th At Osaka

Flyweight Defends Crown Ninth Time

OSAKA, Japan (UPI) — Little Pascual Perez of Argentina avenged the only loss of his career Thursday night when his two - fisted assault knocked out challenger Sadao Yaoita of Japan in 55 seconds of the 13th round of their scheduled 15-round world flyweight title bout.

Yaoita, who abandoned the fancy tactics that earned him a decision over the champion in a 10-round non-title fight last January, barely survived a 12th-round battering and then was floored twice in the 13th.

It was Perez' ninth defense of the 112-pound crown he won from Japan's Yoshio Shirai on Nov. 26, 1954. And it disappointed an enthusiastic throng of 20,000 at the Osaka Pool Stadium which had hoped to see the championship returned to this country.

Despite the differences in their ages, it was Perez who became stronger as the fight progressed and was well in command from the ninth round on.

Reese Signs 2-Year Television Contract

ST. LOUIS (UPI)—Thursday it became official.

PeeWee Reese, an infield star with the Dodgers when they performed in Brooklyn became a member of the game-of-the-week telecasting team with "my boyhood idol"—Dizzy Dean.

Reese signed a two-year contract for some $32,000 a year to replace Buddy Blattner as Dean's partner. His contract with the Falstaff Brewing Corp. also continued a clause providing an option for another two years.

Mrs. Frances Mahaney Bags Deer Opening Day

City Fireman's Wife Shoots Doe Opening Day At Green Ridge

Mrs. Frances Mahaney, wife of Ralph Mahaney, city fireman of 124 Oak Street, holds the distinction of being the first bow and arrow hunter to kill a deer in Allegany county for the 1959 season.

Mrs. Mahaney bagged a doe weighing 65 pounds while hunting with a group, including her husband, on Monday, opening day of the 12-day season, at Green Ridge.

"I'm just learning to shoot the bow and arrow and this was the first time I went hunting for deer," Mrs. Mahaney said.

The second deer reported killed in Allegany county was credited to John R. Nelson, of Laurel, Md. He shot a doe Wednesday at Green Ridge that weighed 125 pounds dressed out. On the hoof, the animal scaled approximately 150 pounds. This deer was checked at Shipway's Inn, Green Ridge.

Two other deer were reported slain this week in Western Maryland.

Douglas Schenk, of Deer Park, bagged a 111-pound doe at Penn's Point near Deep Creek Lake in Garrett county on Tuesday. It was checked at Carroll's Sport Shop in Oakland.

Lester Hart, Hagerstown, killed a 55-pound button buck on Tuesday at Pearre in Washington county. It was checked at Ankeney's Store, Clear Spring.

The deer season for bow hunters ends Saturday, November 14.

Last year bow and arrow hunters killed 10 deer in Allegany county, 10 in Washington county and nine in Garrett county, according to Joseph A. Minke, regional game warden.

Last year bow and arrow hunters killed 10 deer in Allegany county, 10 in Washington county and nine in Garrett county, according to Joseph A. Minke, regional game warden.

Teams Are Sought For Liberty Bowl

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The Liberty Bowl Association is conducting negotiations with Louisiana State, Air Force Academy, Penn State and Syracuse in a search for teams for its inaugural game here Dec. 19.

First Claim Paid Under Benefit Plan

CHICAGO (AP)—The Chicago Cardinals Thursday reported the first claim payment under the National Football League's pension and benefit plan was made to defensive halfback Jimmy Hill.

The NFL's group insurance plan protects players and their families in the off-season. It is financed by proceeds from the All-Star game, Pro Bowl game and championship game TV.

Is For Me Pays $51 At Laurel

Northcutt Pilots Victor In Feature

LAUREL, Md., Nov. 5 (AP)—Is For Me, a winner only once during her racing career, captured the $4,000 Saints and Sinners Purse at Laurel Race Track today, posting a $51 mutuel.

Giving her rider, Apprentice Frank Northcutt, his second tally of the afternoon, the 4-year-old daughter of John Constable gained a three-length decision over Canard.

Is For Me, owned and trained by John S. Burrows, ran the fastest seven furlongs of the meeting. She was clocked in 1.25 3/5, which bettered the seven-furlong track record by four-fifths of a second.

Howard Grant, the meeting's leading rider, was up on Navassa Light, odds-on favorite with the crowd of 12,073 fans. This 3-year-old gelding attained the lead on the inside in the stretch run-then commenced to drift out on his opposition. He finished fourth.

Northcutt brought home another longshot in the third race. He steered George Stribling's Triway to a five-length triumph in that six-furlong test, the 2-year-old filly posting a $26.80 mutuel.

Spahn Undergoes Surgery On Knee

To Play GWU Team

The young Terps have shown a pleasing scoring ability only to be unable to restrain their opponents. They lost 29-19 to South Carolina, 34-20 to North Carolina and 30-22 to Virginia.

Longden Delays Retirement, Will Ride Tomy Lee

ARCADIA, Calif. (UPI) — Veteran Jockey Johnny Longden, again putting off his retirement, said Thursday he would ride Tomy Lee in all races during the 1960 Santa Anita meeting that starts Dec. 26.

Tomy Lee is the 1959 Kentucky Derby champion, but has not raced since the Hollywood Park meeting last summer.

Longden, whose victory total is greater than any other rider, indicated earlier this year he would call it quits during the summer. But he said Thursday owner Fred Turner Jr., had engaged him to ride Tomy Lee in the Santa Anita meeting.

Is For Me Pays $51 At Laurel

Northcutt Pilots Victor In Feature

LAUREL, Md., Nov. 5 (AP)—Is For Me, a winner only once during her racing career, captured the $4,000 Saints and Sinners Purse at Laurel Race Track today, posting a $51 mutuel.

Giving her rider, Apprentice Frank Northcutt, his second tally of the afternoon, the 4-year-old daughter of John Constable gained a three-length decision over Canard.

Is For Me, owned and trained by John S. Burrows, ran the fastest seven furlongs of the meeting. She was clocked in 1.25 3/5, which bettered the seven-furlong track record by four-fifths of a second.

Howard Grant, the meeting's leading rider, was up on Navassa Light, odds-on favorite with the crowd of 12,073 fans. This 3-year-old gelding attained the lead on the inside in the stretch run-then commenced to drift out on his opposition. He finished fourth.

Northcutt brought home another longshot in the third race. He steered George Stribling's Triway to a five-length triumph in that six-furlong test, the 2-year-old filly posting a $26.80 mutuel.

Spahn Undergoes Surgery On Knee

Dr. Don H. O'Donoghue's office reported the 38-year-old hurler came through in fine shape and the knee "will be good as ever."

To Play GWU Team

The young Terps have shown a pleasing scoring ability only to be unable to restrain their opponents. They lost 29-19 to South Carolina, 34-20 to North Carolina and 30-22 to Virginia.

Longden Delays Retirement, Will Ride Tomy Lee

ARCADIA, Calif. (UPI) — Veteran Jockey Johnny Longden, again putting off his retirement, said Thursday he would ride Tomy Lee in all races during the 1960 Santa Anita meeting that starts Dec. 26.

Tomy Lee is the 1959 Kentucky Derby champion, but has not raced since the Hollywood Park meeting last summer.

Longden, whose victory total is greater than any other rider, indicated earlier this year he would call it quits during the summer. But he said Thursday owner Fred Turner Jr., had engaged him to ride Tomy Lee in the Santa Anita meeting.

Born To Bad Luck

"I, Don Quixote,: which DuPont is doing Monday, is listed as an original and how it came into being is a story in itself. The author, Dale Wasserman, was in Spain working on a movie when a press agent, just flexing his mind one day, sent out a story to the effect he was writing the screenplay for "Don Quixote."

Pretty soon Wasserman began getting offers to do an adaptation of the Cervantes masterpiece, which he had never read. So he read it — or most of it. "I feel strongly that some things should never be adapted for dramatic purposes. Don Quixote was one of those things. Dostoievsky is another. There are layers and layers of these works that are cheapened when they are adapted.

"But I got interested in Cervantes. He is such an apocryphal figure. There are great gaps in his life which no one knows anything about. He is the classic example of bad luck. He was born unlucky. He was a warm brilliant man and he was a poet. With perfect consistency life went wrong for him. It was one long slide downhill.

"Cervantes was poverty stricken, a cripple, and a slave for six years in Africa, and he was once in love with a woman who ran away from him and left him with an illegitimate daughter who was more evil than the mother. And through it all he retained his serenity of spirit, his remarkable sense of humor, and his lofty ideals.

"He was fifty-six years old and in prison when he began to write Don Quixote. This is the remarkable part. That is why in conceiving Cervantes, I conceive him as a man who was Don Quixote. That is my point of departure for the play I have written. I picture Cervantes as a man who faces a realization. He had a love of wonderful illusions, illusions being the greatest sustaining force in living. The play says in effect that one should live for illusion deliberately because life is an illusion regardless."

Mr. Wasserman, an old pro at this sort of thing, was commissioned by David Suskind to do the play from a two-page synopsis. He took a house on the top of a mountain in Switzerland, lived alone for eight weeks and came out with a three-hour script. "I've cut it down by pulling out pages at random, as I always do. But it is an idea that is higher and wider than most things done on television. It makes no concessions to the audience insofar as ideas or intellect are concerned. I don't assume the TV audience is composed of twelve- or fourteen-year-old age levels.

"The first conclusion that came to me was that 'Don Quixote' should not be dramatized. This was further corroborated when I saw a Russian film in Germany of 'Don Quixote' last year. The peculiar thing is that none of us know what 'Don Quixote' means. All the eminent critics who have written about it — some of them have written about nothing else — disagree on its meaning. One of the things that makes it so great a book is that it is protean — everything to everybody, if they can get through it."

Wasserman once wrote one of the most controversial scripts ever done for television. It was called "Fog" and it was first bought by "Studio One." It took five days, said Wasserman, for them to wake up to the real implications of "Fog," which were that man's greatest scientific brains were being directed toward self-destruction. "Studio One" abandoned the script to "Playhouse 90." Five days later, "Playhouse 90" woke up to its real meaning — and sent it to "Climax."

"Climax" was committed to doing it before they realized the play's message — and then the battle began. "After a short time, I walked out on it. It was the first time in my life I ever walked out on anything. It went on the air with a statement precisely opposite to what I wrote. It ended with science triumphant. I was told I would never work on television again.

Exactly the opposite happened. I was approached by many people to do something 'controversial.' Controversial to these people meant that intolerance is bad manners; lynching is naughty. So I have been doing movies mostly. There is a lot more freedom in movies these days and I get a chance to do a lot of bumming around."

Born To Bad Luck

"I, Don Quixote,: which DuPont is doing Monday, is listed as an original and how it came into being is a story in itself. The author, Dale Wasserman, was in Spain working on a movie when a press agent, just flexing his mind one day, sent out a story to the effect he was writing the screenplay for "Don Quixote."

Pretty soon Wasserman began getting offers to do an adaptation of the Cervantes masterpiece, which he had never read. So he read it — or most of it. "I feel strongly that some things should never be adapted for dramatic purposes. Don Quixote was one of those things. Dostoievsky is another. There are layers and layers of these works that are cheapened when they are adapted.

"But I got interested in Cervantes. He is such an apocryphal figure. There are great gaps in his life which no one knows anything about. He is the classic example of bad luck. He was born unlucky. He was a warm brilliant man and he was a poet. With perfect consistency life went wrong for him. It was one long slide downhill.

"Cervantes was poverty stricken, a cripple, and a slave for six years in Africa, and he was once in love with a woman who ran away from him and left him with an illegitimate daughter who was more evil than the mother. And through it all he retained his serenity of spirit, his remarkable sense of humor, and his lofty ideals.

"He was fifty-six years old and in prison when he began to write Don Quixote. This is the remarkable part. That is why in conceiving Cervantes, I conceive him as a man who was Don Quixote. That is my point of departure for the play I have written. I picture Cervantes as a man who faces a realization. He had a love of wonderful illusions, illusions being the greatest sustaining force in living. The play says in effect that one should live for illusion deliberately because life is an illusion regardless."

Mr. Wasserman, an old pro at this sort of thing, was commissioned by David Suskind to do the play from a two-page synopsis. He took a house on the top of a mountain in Switzerland, lived alone for eight weeks and came out with a three-hour script. "I've cut it down by pulling out pages at random, as I always do. But it is an idea that is higher and wider than most things done on television. It makes no concessions to the audience insofar as ideas or intellect are concerned. I don't assume the TV audience is composed of twelve- or fourteen-year-old age levels.

"The first conclusion that came to me was that 'Don Quixote' should not be dramatized. This was further corroborated when I saw a Russian film in Germany of 'Don Quixote' last year. The peculiar thing is that none of us know what 'Don Quixote' means. All the eminent critics who have written about it — some of them have written about nothing else — disagree on its meaning. One of the things that makes it so great a book is that it is protean — everything to everybody, if they can get through it."

Wasserman once wrote one of the most controversial scripts ever done for television. It was called "Fog" and it was first bought by "Studio One." It took five days, said Wasserman, for them to wake up to the real implications of "Fog," which were that man's greatest scientific brains were being directed toward self-destruction. "Studio One" abandoned the script to "Playhouse 90." Five days later, "Playhouse 90" woke up to its real meaning — and sent it to "Climax."

"Climax" was committed to doing it before they realized the play's message — and then the battle began. "After a short time, I walked out on it. It was the first time in my life I ever walked out on anything. It went on the air with a statement precisely opposite to what I wrote. It ended with science triumphant. I was told I would never work on television again.

Exactly the opposite happened. I was approached by many people to do something 'controversial.' Controversial to these people meant that intolerance is bad manners; lynching is naughty. So I have been doing movies mostly. There is a lot more freedom in movies these days and I get a chance to do a lot of bumming around."

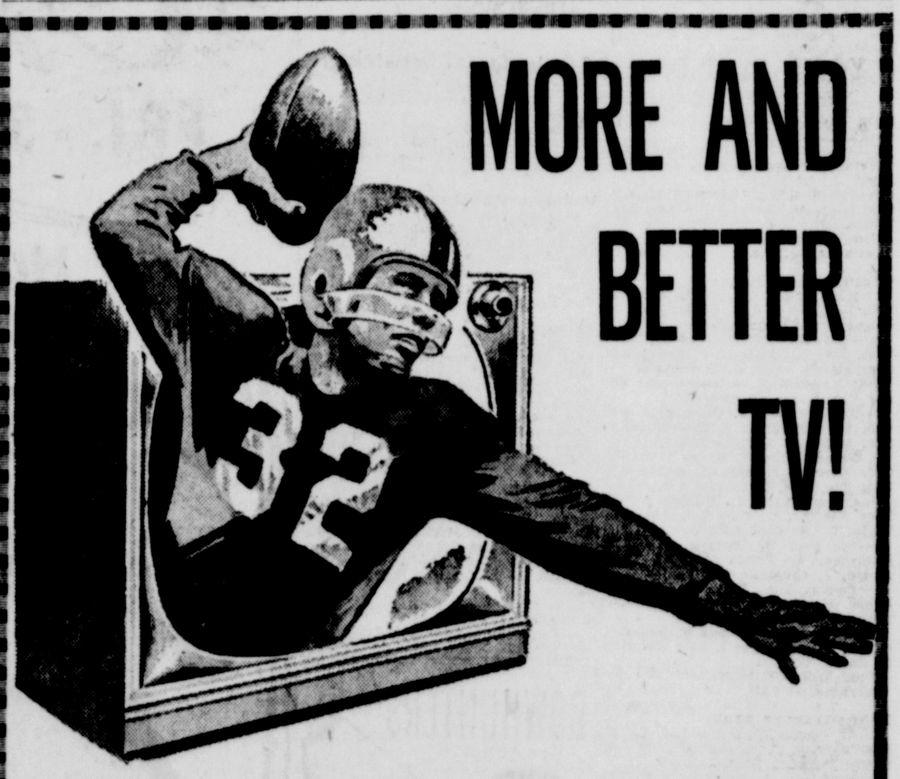
MORE AND BETTER TV!



That's what Cable TV means to you . . . Without any inconvenience or extra costs. Just watch for the programs you want and dial them in! Relaying the signals from Spring Gap Mountain has improved the reception from Washington and makes it possible to get special programs from Baltimore and this relay has also greatly improved COLOR reception. With what we have done and with the improvements that have been made in color broadcasting and TV sets and with the greater number of colored programs available, we can now recommend that you consider purchasing a colored TV set.

CHRYSLER
1958 HILLMAN DELUXE
This is a local, 1 owner, car that we sold originally and know the car to be in A-1 condition. This is an English made 4 door Imported economical car that has a 4 cylinder engine with a 4 speed transmission, that gives 25 to 35 miles per gallon of gas. It also has a Hydraulic Clutch and is easy for the wife and daughter to operate plus hydraulic brakes, forced air hot water heater, electric wipers, signal lights and excellent tires with only 17,000 miles on them. The construction of these cars is marvelous and the riding and handling will measure. So, call or stop for a demonstration. We have a special price on this very economical car at only

This is a local, 1 owner, car that we sold originally and know the car to be in A-1 condition. This is an English made 4 door Imported economical car that has a 4 cylinder engine with a 4 speed transmission, that gives 25 to 35 miles per gallon of gas. It also has a Hydraulic Clutch and is easy for the wife and daughter to operate plus hydraulic brakes, forced air hot water heater, electric wipers, signal lights and excellent tires with only 17,000 miles on them. The construction of these cars is marvelous and the riding and handling will measure. So, call or stop for a demonstration. We have a special price on this very economical car at only

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

ROY A. RODERNAUSER, 654 National Highway, LaVale, Maryland, vs. HARRIETT LEE RODENHAUSER, Address Unknown. No. 25761 Equity in the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Md.

The object of this suit is to obtain a divorce A VINCULO MATRIMONII of the Plaintiff from the Defendant.

The Bill states that the parties hereto were married on the 24th day of November, 1950, in Frostburg, Maryland; that no children were born as a result of said marriage; that although his conduct towards the said defendant was always kind, affectionate and above reproach, yet the defendant without just or reason, deserted and abandoned him on the 2nd day of May, 1958, and declared her intention to live with him no longer; and that such desertion and abandonment has been continuous and uninterrupted for more than eighteen months prior to the filing of this suit and is deliberate and final and without any reasonable hope of reconciliation; that your Orator is and has been a resident of Allegany County all his life and that he has no knowledge of the whereabouts of the defendant.

IT IS THEREUPON, this 4th day of November, 1959, by the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland, in Equity, ordered that the Plaintiff cause a copy of this Order to be published in some newspaper once in each of four (4) successive weeks, before the 5th day of December, 1959, giving notice to the absent defendant of the object and purpose of this suit, and warning her to be and appear in this Court, in person or by solicitor, on or before the 6th day of January, 1960, to show cause, if any she has, why a decree should not be passed as prayed.

Clerk of the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland

NOTICE

Pursuant to the provisions of Section 127 of the Charter of the City of Cumberland, Maryland, (1950 Edition), notice is hereby given that the Mayor and City Council of Cumberland did, in regular session Monday, October 12, 1959, approve the Report of Commissioners for the closing of a portion of Smith Street, which street is fourteen (14) feet wide and runs from the Northerly side of North Centre Street to the Southerly boundary of the Western Maryland Railway Company right of way, a distance of approximately two hundred forty-seven (247) feet.

After meeting on the premises (10:30 A.M., October 6, 1959) and remaining there for a period in excess of one-half (½) hour, the Commissioners report that several property owners appeared but no objections were filed and, after walking over the entire area involved, the following was the unanimous opinion of the Commissioners appointed to close said portion of Smith Street:

"That there are no damages or benefits to the owners of lots binding on the portion of Smith Street in said City, which street is 14 feet wide and runs from the northerly side of North Centre Street to the southerly boundary of the Western Maryland Railway Company right of way, a distance of approximately 247 feet.

Under the circumstances, the Commissioners feel that since the Light and Decker Company will own most of the property abutting on said portion of Smith Street to be closed, it should be required to pay all costs incurred by the City of Cumberland in connection with the closing."

Any person, persons, firm or corporation feeling aggrieved by the decision of the Commissioners may appeal therefrom within thirty (30) days after October 12, 1959, and filing written notice of such appeal with the City Clerk of the City of Cumberland, Maryland, who will transmit same to the Circuit Court for Allegany County to be docketed for jury trial.

Smart Youngster Saves Dad's Hand

GREENSBORO, Md. (AP) — Robert Edwards, who operates a farm near this Eastern Shore community, can thank his young son's ability to do what he's told for saving him from possibly serious injury.

Edwards got his hand caught in a corn picker Wednesday. He called to four-year-old Jimmy, playing in the wagon, to turn off the tractor's engine. Jimmy climbed up and turned off the switch.

Volunteer firemen who hurried there were unable to pry loose the bars that trapped Edwards' hand. They sent for a welder, Sonny Sieler, who cut Edwards free with a blow torch.

Even so, sparks from the torch ignited some dry corn shucks. But the firemen were there to take care of that.

Unemployment Rises

NUERNBERG, Germany (AP) —The West German labor market boom has ended and for the first time this year the number of unemployed has risen. During the month of October the increase was 9,862, to a total of 197,061, the West German Labor Office said Thursday.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

ROY A. RODERNAUSER, 654 National Highway, LaVale, Maryland, vs. HARRIETT LEE RODENHAUSER, Address Unknown. No. 25761 Equity in the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Md.

The object of this suit is to obtain a divorce A VINCULO MATRIMONII of the Plaintiff from the Defendant.

The Bill states that the parties hereto were married on the 24th day of November, 1950, in Frostburg, Maryland; that no children were born as a result of said marriage; that although his conduct towards the said defendant was always kind, affectionate and above reproach, yet the defendant without just or reason, deserted and abandoned him on the 2nd day of May, 1958, and declared her intention to live with him no longer; and that such desertion and abandonment has been continuous and uninterrupted for more than eighteen months prior to the filing of this suit and is deliberate and final and without any reasonable hope of reconciliation; that your Orator is and has been a resident of Allegany County all his life and that he has no knowledge of the whereabouts of the defendant.

IT IS THEREUPON, this 4th day of November, 1959, by the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland, in Equity, ordered that the Plaintiff cause a copy of this Order to be published in some newspaper once in each of four (4) successive weeks, before the 5th day of December, 1959, giving notice to the absent defendant of the object and purpose of this suit, and warning her to be and appear in this Court, in person or by solicitor, on or before the 6th day of January, 1960, to show cause, if any she has, why a decree should not be passed as prayed.

NOTICE

Pursuant to the provisions of Section 127 of the Charter of the City of Cumberland, Maryland, (1950 Edition), notice is hereby given that the Mayor and City Council of Cumberland did, in regular session Monday, October 12, 1959, approve the Report of Commissioners for the closing of a portion of Smith Street, which street is fourteen (14) feet wide and runs from the Northerly side of North Centre Street to the Southerly boundary of the Western Maryland Railway Company right of way, a distance of approximately two hundred forty-seven (247) feet.

After meeting on the premises (10:30 A.M., October 6, 1959) and remaining there for a period in excess of one-half (½) hour, the Commissioners report that several property owners appeared but no objections were filed and, after walking over the entire area involved, the following was the unanimous opinion of the Commissioners appointed to close said portion of Smith Street:

"That there are no damages or benefits to the owners of lots binding on the portion of Smith Street in said City, which street is 14 feet wide and runs from the northerly side of North Centre Street to the southerly boundary of the Western Maryland Railway Company right of way, a distance of approximately 247 feet.

Under the circumstances, the Commissioners feel that since the Light and Decker Company will own most of the property abutting on said portion of Smith Street to be closed, it should be required to pay all costs incurred by the City of Cumberland in connection with the closing."

Any person, persons, firm or corporation feeling aggrieved by the decision of the Commissioners may appeal therefrom within thirty (30) days after October 12, 1959, and filing written notice of such appeal with the City Clerk of the City of Cumberland, Maryland, who will transmit same to the Circuit Court for Allegany County to be docketed for jury trial.

Council Makes Progress On Major Issues

Discuss Wage Scale, Street Cost Sharing

Considerable progress was made by the Mayor and Council last night on issues which include wage classification of city employes and the sharing of costs for street construction and repair.

On wage classification, it was decided that the Mayor and Council will ask City Clerk Wallace G. Ullery and City Auditor Arthur B. Gibson to make tentative recommendations on salary scales of classified city employes.

When the studies are made, the Mayor and Council will decide whether the scales can be adopted as submitted or whether the study should be pursued further by getting expert advice, or whether a comparative wage scale study of cities of comparable size should be made.

It was also understood that the Maryland Municipal League, of which the city is a member, may be asked to help.

The matter of adopting a policy on the sharing of costs between the city and property owners of various street improvements, including street construction, resurfacing, curb and gutters, sewering and light surface treatment was discussed.

It was decided that the Mayor and Council will request the City Engineer to make a uniform cost study for all such work and report back.

There appeared to be general agreement that the study would be made on the formula of the city paying one fourth and the property owners three fourths of the cost.

It was agreed the issue will present many questions as to how the charges will be made on different widths of streets, and how the cost of intersections will be paid.

The Mayor and Council accepted an invitation of Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, American Legion, to take part in the Veterans Day parade November 11.

West Virginia Phone Network Gets Approval

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—The Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. received State Board of Public Works approval Wednesday to install new long distance circuits giving statehouse offices direct contact with 20 areas in West Virginia.

C&P Commercial Supervisor John Pope told the board such a direct dial system would cost about $10,000 but would ultimately save the state about $25,000 a year.

The board also authorized C&P to continue a survey on the possibility of installing a centralized dial system to permit state agencies to contact each other directly. At the present time, one agency calling another must put the call through one or more switchboards at the statehouse.

Pope said the cost of this system has not been determined but he assured the board once installed it would save between $5,000 and $10,000 a year. Part of this would come from elimination of all but one switchboard and a reduction in the number operators.

Areas to be connected directly with statehouse offices are Beckley, Bluefield, Buckhannon, Clarksburg, Clay, Elkins, Fairmont, Huntington, Keyser, Lewisburg, Logan, Martinsburg, Montgomery, Morgantown, Parkersburg, Pt. Pleasant, Ripley, Spencer, Weston and Wheeling.

Requests for various state agencies for transfer of a total of about $22,000 also were approved by the board.

Other requests approved by the board included one from West Virginia University to spend $500,000 in federal funds for educational and scientific equipment.

Officer Resigns

Richard M. Tabler, Ridgeley, police officer last night handed in his resignation to the Mayor and Council. He said he had obtained other employment which required his full time and attention. Tabler had been on the Ridgeley police force for one year.

Births

Mr. and Mrs. Carl R. Lewis, Hagerstown, announce the birth of a son Wednesday in Washington County Hospital there. The mother is the former Miss Juanita Heavner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Brook Heavner, RFD 5, city.

Memorial Hospital

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Humbertson, 13 East Second Street, a daughter Wednesday.

IN QUEEN CONTEST—Miss Treiba Silber, 19, Oldtown Road, is one of the contestants in the "Miss Cinderella Pancake III" event which is being held in conjunction with the annual Pancake Day Monday from 6 a.m. to 8 p.m. at the State Armory. Miss Silber is employed at the C&A Gas Company and is a graduate of Fort Hill High School. She was a member of the National Honor Society and Student Council while in school and enjoys bowling, dancing and skating.

Tawes Seen Shelving Walsh Plan

Legislative Group Opposes Proposal

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—Gov. Tawes was reported Thursday as having decided not to push further a plan which would give Maryland's four big metropolitan area counties more seats in the House of Delegates.

A rare coalition of rural county and Baltimore city legislators teamed up Wednesday to soundly defeat the proposal 12-5 in the Legislative Council, the between-session arm of the General Assembly.

The plan, which would ultimately enlarge the House from 123 to 141 members, was recommended by a study group headed by William C. Walsh of Cumberland and appointed by Tawes.

About the only support the proposal got was from the four counties which would benefit immediately, Baltimore, Prince Georges, Montgomery and Anne Arundel.

Isners Willing To Leave State For Rosemary

PARSONS, W. Va. (UPI)—Forest and Edith Isner, Parsons, Thursday said they would be willing to sell their home and leave the state if it would help them keep Rosemary Thomas.

The couple is involved in a custody dispute with the State Department of Public Assistance over the three-year-old child.

Mrs. Isner said Gov. Cecil H. Underwood had said that since so many pictures had been taken of the child and she was so well known in Parsons, "it would not be well for Rosemary to grow up there with fingers pointed at her."

The Tucker County couple met with the governor Wednesday in a last-ditch effort to retain custody of the child they have raised since she was a week old under a DPA foster home contract.

Philadelphia Sailor Held On Auto Count

$2,000 Bond Set On U.S. Charge

A Philadelphia, Pa., sailor is being held in Allegany County Jail under $2,000 bond on charges of unlawfully transporting a motor vehicle from Richmond, Va. to Cumberland.

Edward T. Kelly, stationed at Norfolk, Va., was committed to jail in default of the bond set at a hearing yesterday before U.S. Commissioner James Alfred Avirett. He is awaiting the arrival of a U.S. Deputy Marshal who will take him to Baltimore pending action of the U.S. District Court there.

Lt. James E. Van of the City Police Department said Kelly was one of four men arrested while sleeping in a car near Fort Hill High School Wednesday morning.

Being held in City Jail as AWOL from the Navy are two other sailors who also were stationed at Norfolk. They are Stanley Croff of Norfolk and Richard C. Lofgren of Yorktown, Pa.

The fourth man, James Alfred Woodruff, also of Norfolk, was described as a hitchhiker who was picked up by Kelly and was released by police yesterday following some questioning.

Lt. Van said Kelly related that the car belonged to his uncle in Philadelphia but was unable to supply police any other information.

The detective phoned Joseph B. Simon, Philadelphia, in whose name the vehicle was registered and was informed that the car was stolen four weeks ago.

Spotlighters Arrested, Fined $900

Four area men who were arrested for hunting deer with spotlights during the past week, have been fined a total of $900 and costs, Joseph A. Minke, regional game warden, said last night.

Robert Clay and Ulysses J. Everett, both of RFD 1, Berkeley Springs, W. Va., were arraigned before Magistrate John H. Stotlemeyer at Hancock and fined $200 each. The charges were preferred by District Game Warden Lawrence F. Fiorita of Hancock.

James Thomas of Lonaconing and Albert L. Lee of Nikep were arraigned before Magistrate Leslie B. Sharpless at Kitzmiller and likewise fined $200 each. Thomas was also fined an additional $100 for having deer meat in his possession.

The two Allegany County men were apprehended by Robert S. Brown, Leo G. Friend and Francis H. Ruge, game wardens of Garrett County.

Elkins Airport Swap Discussed

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—The city of Elkins may convey one-half interest in the Elkins Municipal Airport to the Randolph County Court so that each can contribute equally to its operation and maintenance, the state attorney general's office said Thursday.

State Atty. Gen. W. W. Barron suggested, however, the deed drawn up limit the use of the property to an airport. Barron said the deed should contain a "reverter clause" whereby the property will revert to the city in event the airport is abandoned.

City's Newest Park Area

"I Give You Only Sunny Hours" is the message of the sundial presented to the City of Cumberland by the Opti-Mrs. Club and installed on this new park area at the Greene Street approach to the Baltimore Street Bridge. The area has been landscaped with evergreens such as pine, yew, Japanese holly and dwarf boxwood and Mrs. Margaret Findlay, member of the City Park Board, said some additional landscaping of the plot is planned. The sundial has been set at an angle for much sunlight.

Cameron Cites Celanese Contributions

$1 Million Paid Here Each Month

A vivid picture of the economic contributions which an industry makes to a community was given here yesterday by Frank B. Cameron, production manager of the Amcelle plant of Celanese, in a brief talk to the Cunmberland Kiwanis Club.

First, Mr. Cameron said the Amcelle plants monthly payroll is about $1,000,000 for some 2,950 employes. Of that number 23 have been at the plant since it was started in 1924, 550 have over 30 years' service and 1,950 have been employed 25 years or longer.

Aside from actual pay, the Celanese employes get other benefits. Some $18,600,000 of insurance was in force for them in the first nine months of 1959.

Then, Mr. Cameron pointed to the Celanese expenditures here for utilities. In the first nine months this year, Amcelle has used about 119 million cubic feet of natural gas at a cost of about $74,000. City water consumption has amounted to 500 million gallons at a cost of about $34,000 in the same nine months. About 40 million kilowatt hours of electricity were used at a cost of about $370,000 in the first three-quarters of 1959.

Coal consumption at Amcelle amounts to 500 tons daily. In the 12-months period from June 1958 until June 1959, the coal cost to the plant totaled about $745,000.

Celanese also buys much of its supplies locally. The production manager said some 132 local business firms and manufacturers sold Amcelle about $850,000 in supplies and materials.

There other contributions which Celanese makes to the community. For instance, the employes contribute about $35,000 a year to health and charitable organizations. Many others serve the community through active membership in service clubs such as Kiwanis to which four Celanese employes belong.

Judges Named For Jaycee "My True Security" Event

Three faculty members of Frostburg State Teachers College will judge the finals in the Cumberland Junior Association of Commerce speech contest, "My True Security," which will be held on Saturday, January 16, at 10 a. m. in the FSTC auditorium.

Joseph H. Pellerzi, chairman of the Jaycee contest, said last night that the winners in nine Allegany County schools will be selected by December 18.

Participating schools include Allegany High School, Fort Hill High School, LaSalle High School and Ursuline Academy in Cumberland; Beall High School, Frostburg; Mt. Savage High School; Bruce High School, Westernport; Valley High School, Lonaconing and Oldtown High School.

The school from which the winner is chosen will receive a plaque which will be rotated each year to the winning school, he said.

The county winner will receive a trophy and the first, second and third runners-up will also be presented a trophy.

Mr. Pellerzi said that parents and teachers are invited to attend the finals at the college.

Theft Of Money Is Investigated

City police are probing the reported theft of five bottles of liquor and $80 in cash from the South End Democratic Club, 429 Virginia Avenue, sometime Wednesday morning.

Detective Thomas See is investigating the theft which reportedly was discovered Wednesday about 9 a.m. when the club was opened. Officials of the organization said the club had been closed at 1:30 a.m. that same morning.

The money was taken from the cash register, police were told. The five bottle of whiskey were removed from the bar, club officials said.

2,846 Must Sign Anew For Voting

Will Be Dropped For Inactivity

The Allegany County Board of Election Supervisors yesterday mailed cards to 2,846 residents of the county who must re-register on or before November 13 since they have not voted during the past five years.

John R. Kelly, chief clerk, said the reminder was mailed to the residents as provided in Article 33, Section 34 of the Election Laws of Maryland.

Thei rnames, he said, will be removed from the files of registered voters as their eligibility will be cancelled through failure to vote for five calendar years.

Those persons who have not voted since 1954 will be stricken from the books unless they re-register at the office in the basement of the Court House in order to vote in future county, state or national elections.

Mr. Kelly said the office will be open today from 8:30 a. m. to noon and from 1 p. m. to 4 p. m. for those wishing to re-register. They may also visit the office during the same hours Monday through Friday of next week, Friday being the deadline.

A breakdown of the 2,846 total shows there are 1,562 Republicans, 799 males and 763 female, and 1,263 Democrats, 640 males and 623 females; 20 independent and one Socialist.

Mr. Kelly said the supervisors are interested in learning the names of members of the armed services who are registered voters in the county.

A card or letter will suffice, according to Mr. Kelly, who said it will be filed with the person's name as a reference.

Firemen's Committee Meets On Monday

The Ways and Means Committee of the Allegany-Garrett Counties Volunteer Firemen's Association will meet on Monday at 7:30 p.m. at the LaVale Fire Hall.

Co-Chairmen David E. Kirk, Bowling Green, and Alvin Rankin, Frostburg, said the committee will make plans to finance various projects of the association throughout the year.

The association is planning to sponsor a circus next summer. The show will be presented in three separate places in the two counties.

Two Local Youths Face Trial Today

Two 16-year-old local youths charged with breaking and entering the Wilson Hardware Store here and the grand larceny of several guns and ammunition will be given a court trial today at 10 a.m. in Allegany County Circuit Court.

Chief Judge Morgan C. Harris will preside. The two youths, John N. Leighty, RFD 4, Christie Road, and Franklin C. White, RFD 1, Valley Road, will be tried on a criminal information filed in court by State's Attorney James S. Getty.

State Police arrested the two youths in Oakland on Sunday. They were questioned here Tuesday and admitted several other thefts. Six pistols and a quantity of ammunition were taken from the local store, police said.

Assault Case Expected To Go To Jury Today

Smith Claims His Property Damaged

The trial of James Smith, 62, of RD 1, Ridgeley, W.Va., charged with malicious assault, is expected to go to the jury today.

Judge Ernest A. See recessed the Mineral County Circuit Court yesterday with the defendant still on the stand and the case will resume this morning with Smith again taking the stand in his own behalf.

Both Smith and his wife testified yesterday as did Lewis Llewellyn, 26, and Preston Miller, 21, both wounded by Smith during a dispute on the defendant's property last September 15.

Smith Justified?

The defense attempted to show that Smith was justified in firing a shotgun blast at the two men pointing out that the man's gates and property had been extensively damaged in the past.

Smith told the court he did not mean to maim or kill Llewellyn and his nephew, both of whom also reside at RD 1, Ridgeley, when he fired the shotgun at them as they were on their way to work.

Both Smith and his wife testified that the two men were jumpin, up and down on a locked gate at the Smith property, and that the defendant fired one shot from a 12-gauge shotgun, hitting both with pellets.

Llewellyn was struck in the back and knee and Miller was hit in the abdomen, chest and ear.

Ownership Disputed

Smith also testified that the gate to his property, ownership of which is disputed in a civil suit, has been repaired or replaced at least five times. He said that Llewellyn twice had a part in damaging his property.

The defendant's wife accused two men of attempting to run over her husband with a truck on one occasion. She said Llewellyn deliberately swerved the truck at him, and that Ronnie Moreland, riding with his brother-in-law, swung his fist at him when the defendant jumped aside to avoid being hit.

Mrs. Smith corroborated her husband's testimony and told the court that Llewellyn and Miller made noise and blew horns, at night, cursed them and dared the Smiths to come out of their house.

She said that Llewellyn and Miller had run over her chickens and ducks and let her husband's

Court House Parking To Be Discussed

Parking in the vicinity of the Allegany County Court House will be discussed by Police Department officials at a meeting with the Board of Allegany County Commissioners today.

Commissioner Philmore Fleming and Police Chief B. F. Gaffney will represent the city at the conference scheduled at 11:30 a. m. at the Court House.

Mr. Fleming said the City of Cumberland wants to cooperate with county officials to alleviate the critical problem.

He said attempts will be made to work out something to relieve the situation which is bad at any time but critical when court is in session.

The conference will be a timely one, as attempts to control the situation yesterday resulted in the tagging of the car of Chief Judge Morgan C. Harris, by a city patrolman.

Judge Harris's automobile was ticketed as it was parked at the rear of the court house in a space the county painted with a yellow line and labeled "For Judges Only."

Driver Arrested Following Accident

James K. Carbaugh of 709 Princeton Street is being held in City Jail under $500 bond on two motor vehicle charges.

Police said an automobile operated by Carbaugh struck two parked vehicles and knocked a parking meter loose from its moorings.

Holy Name Society To Attend Mass

Members of SS. Peter and Paul Holy Name Society will attend the 7 o'clock mass Sunday and receive Holy Communion in a body.

Vespers will be held Sunday evening and the monthly meeting will be held in the cafeteria after the services. Rev. DePaul Ripko, OFM Cap., spiritual director, urges all members to attend the meeting.

Fun Fair Postponed

County ASC Committee Officials

Council Makes Progress On Major Issues

Discuss Wage Scale, Street Cost Sharing

Considerable progress was made by the Mayor and Council last night on issues which include wage classification of city employes and the sharing of costs for street construction and repair.

General policy on the issues was consolidated at the discussion session.

On wage classification, it was decided that the Mayor and Council will ask City Clerk Wallace G. Ullery and City Auditor Arthur B. Gibson to make tentative recommendations on salary scales of classified city employes.

When the studies are made, the Mayor and Council will decide whether the scales can be adopted as submitted or whether the study should be pursued further by getting expert advice, or whether a comparative wage scale study of cities of comparable size should be made.

It was also understood that the Maryland Municipal League, of which the city is a member, may be asked to help.

The matter of adopting a policy on the sharing of costs between the city and property owners of various street improvements, including street construction, resurfacing, curb and gutters, sewering and light surface treatment was discussed.

It was decided that the Mayor and Council will request the City Engineer to make a uniform cost study for all such work and report back.

There appeared to be general agreement that the study would be made on the formula of the city paying one fourth and the property owners three fourths of the cost.

It was agreed the issue will present many questions as to how the charges will be made on different widths of streets, and how the cost of intersections will be paid.

The Mayor and Council accepted an invitation of Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, American Legion, to take part in the Veterans Day parade November 11.

West Virginia Phone Network Gets Approval

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—The Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. received State Board of Public Works approval Wednesday to install new long distance circuits giving statehouse offices direct contact with 20 areas in West Virginia.

C&P Commercial Supervisor John Pope told the board such a direct dial system would cost about $10,000 but would ultimately save the state about $25,000 a year.

The board also authorized C&P to continue a survey on the possibility of installing a centralized dial system to permit state agencies to contact each other directly. At the present time, one agency calling another must put the call through one or more switchboards at the statehouse.

Pope said the cost of this system has not been determined but he assured the board once installed it would save between $5,000 and $10,000 a year. Part of this would come from elimination of all but one switchboard and a reduction in the number operators.

Areas to be connected directly with statehouse offices are Beckley, Bluefield, Buckhannon, Clarksburg, Clay, Elkins, Fairmont, Huntington, Keyser, Lewisburg, Logan, Martinsburg, Montgomery, Morgantown, Parkersburg, Pt. Pleasant, Ripley, Spencer, Weston and Wheeling.

Requests for various state agencies for transfer of a total of about $22,000 also were approved by the board.

Other requests approved by the board included one from West Virginia University to spend $500,000 in federal funds for educational and scientific equipment.

Officer Resigns

Richard M. Tabler, Ridgeley, police officer last night handed in his resignation to the Mayor and Council. He said he had obtained other employment which required his full time and attention. Tabler had been on the Ridgeley police force for one year.

Miss Silber is employed at the C&A Gas Company and is a graduate of Fort Hill High School. She was a member of the National Honor Society and Student Council while in school and enjoys bowling, dancing and skating.

Tawes Seen Shelving Walsh Plan

Legislative Group Opposes Proposal

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—Gov. Tawes was reported Thursday as having decided not to push further a plan which would give Maryland's four big metropolitan area counties more seats in the House of Delegates.

A rare coalition of rural county and Baltimore city legislators teamed up Wednesday to soundly defeat the proposal 12-5 in the Legislative Council, the between-session arm of the General Assembly.

The plan, which would ultimately enlarge the House from 123 to 141 members, was recommended by a study group headed by William C. Walsh of Cumberland and appointed by Tawes.

About the only support the proposal got was from the four counties which would benefit immediately, Baltimore, Prince Georges, Montgomery and Anne Arundel.

Isners Willing To Leave State For Rosemary

PARSONS, W. Va. (UPI)—Forest and Edith Isner, Parsons, Thursday said they would be willing to sell their home and leave the state if it would help them keep Rosemary Thomas.

The couple is involved in a custody dispute with the State Department of Public Assistance over the three-year-old child.

Mrs. Isner said Gov. Cecil H. Underwood had said that since so many pictures had been taken of the child and she was so well known in Parsons, "it would not be well for Rosemary to grow up there with fingers pointed at her."

The Tucker County couple met with the governor Wednesday in a last-ditch effort to retain custody of the child they have raised since she was a week old under a DPA foster home contract.

Assault Case Expected To Go To Jury Today

Smith Claims His Property Damaged

The trial of James Smith, 62, of RD 1, Ridgeley, W.Va., charged with malicious assault, is expected to go to the jury today.

Judge Ernest A. See recessed the Mineral County Circuit Court yesterday with the defendant still on the stand and the case will resume this morning with Smith again taking the stand in his own behalf.

Both Smith and his wife testified yesterday as did Lewis Llewellyn, 26, and Preston Miller, 21, both wounded by Smith during a dispute on the defendant's property last September 15.

Smith Justified?

The defense attempted to show that Smith was justified in firing a shotgun blast at the two men pointing out that the man's gates and property had been extensively damaged in the past.

Smith told the court he did not mean to maim or kill Llewellyn and his nephew, both of whom also reside at RD 1, Ridgeley, when he fired the shotgun at them as they were on their way to work.

Both Smith and his wife testified that the two men were jumping up and down on a locked gate at the Smith property, and that the defendant fired one shot from a 12-gauge shotgun, hitting both with pellets.

Llewellyn was struck in the back and knee and Miller was hit in the abdomen, chest and ear.

Ownership Disputed

Smith also testified that the gate to his property, ownership of which is disputed in a civil suit, has been repaired or replaced at least five times. He said that Llewellyn twice had a part in damaging his property.

The defendant's wife accused two men of attempting to run over her husband with a truck on one occasion. She said Llewellyn deliberately swerved the truck at him, and that Ronnie Moreland, riding with his brother-in-law, swung his fist at him when the defendant jumped aside to avoid being hit.

Mrs. Smith corroborated her husband's testimony and told the court that Llewellyn and Miller made noise and blew horns, at night, cursed them and dared the Smiths to come out of their house.

She said that Llewellyn and Miller had run over her chickens and ducks and let her husband's

Court House Parking To Be Discussed

Parking in the vicinity of the Allegany County Court House will be discussed by Police Department officials at a meeting with the Board of Allegany County Commissioners today.

Commissioner Philmore Fleming and Police Chief B. F. Gaffney will represent the city at the conference scheduled at 11:30 a. m. at the Court House.

Mr. Fleming said the City of Cumberland wants to cooperate with county officials to alleviate the critical problem.

He said attempts will be made to work out something to relieve the situation which is bad at any time but critical when court is in session.

The conference will be a timely one, as attempts to control the situation yesterday resulted in the tagging of the car of Chief Judge Morgan C. Harris, by a city patrolman.

Driver Arrested Following Accident

James K. Carbaugh of 709 Princeton Street is being held in City Jail under $500 bond on two motor vehicle charges.

Police said an automobile operated by Carbaugh struck two parked vehicles and knocked a parking meter loose from its moorings.

Holy Name Society To Attend Mass

Members of SS. Peter and Paul Holy Name Society will attend the 7 o'clock mass Sunday and receive Holy Communion in a body.

Vespers will be held Sunday evening and the monthly meeting will be held in the cafeteria after the services. Rev. DePaul Ripko, OFM Cap., spiritual director, urges all members to attend the meeting.

Fun Fair Postponed

County ASC Committee Officials
